No. 45 C 120

Be It Remembered, that the above-entitled action was commenced by the filing of the following Complaint in the above-entitled cause, in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, on this the 29th day of January, 1945:

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES
For the Northern District of Illinois
Eastern Division

• • (Caption—No. 45 C 120) • •

COMPLAINT.

Globe Liquor Co., Inc., a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware (hereinafter sometimes termed "plaintiff"), by its duly authorized attorneys, Ben W. Heineman, Max Swiren and Joseph P. Antonow, Chicago, Illinois, and H. Albert Young, Wilmington, Delaware, complaining of Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman, doing business under the firm name and style of International Industries (hereinafter sometimes termed "defendants"), alleges:

1. The jurisdiction of this Court depends upon the diversity of citizenship of the parties. The plaintiff is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, having principal place of business at Wilmington, Delaware. The defendants and each

4 of them are residents of the City of Chicago, County of Cook, State of Illinois. The amount in controversy exceeds, exclusive of interest and costs, the sum of three thousand dollars ($3,000.00).

2. By purchase order dated March 16, 1944, and an exchange of letters dated, respectively, March 24, 1944 and March 27, 1944, the plaintiff agreed to purchase and receive from the defendants, through the defendants' agent and salesman, one Gabriel H. Todes, and the defendants agreed to sell and deliver to the plaintiff seven hundred and fifty (750) cases of Mexican Tequila, more fully described as Mariachi Tequila Gold, in good merchantable condition, fit for human consumption, at a price of ten dollars and seventy-five cents ($10.75) the case, C.I.F. Laredo, Texas, the plaintiff to furnish the defendants with a letter of credit irrevocable for sixty (60) days and payable to the defendants or their assigns, in the full amount of the purchase price, to wit, eight thousand sixty-two dollars and fifty cents ($8,062.50). Copies of the purchase order of March 16, 1944 and the letters dated March 24, 1944 and March 27, 1944 are annexed hereto and marked Exhibits "A," "B" and "C", respectively and by this reference thereto made a part hereof.

3. On or about March 29, 1944, the Chase National Bank, a national banking association, having principal place of business in the City of New York, State of New York, issued its irrevocable commercial letter of credit No. 25668 in the amount of eight thousand sixty-two dollars and fifty cents ($8,062.50) to the defendants or their assigns, and at all times and in all other respects and particulars the plaintiff conformed to the terms of its agreement with the defendants. A copy of said letter of credit is annexed hereto marked Exhibit "D" and by this reference thereto made a part hereof. At the request of the defendants, said letter of credit was extended by the said The Chase National Bank to and including June 15, 1944, and amended in other particulars immaterial hereto.

4. By letter dated May 27, 1944 the defendants advised the plaintiff that the seven hundred and fifty (750) cases of Mariachi Tequila Gold were shipped from Mexico on May 22, 1944 in Car RI-159322. A copy of said letter is annexed hereto marked Exhibit "E" and by this reference thereto made a part hereof.

Complaint

5. On or about July 11, 1944 said seven hundred and fifty (750) cases of Mariachi Tequila Gold were inspected by the United States Food and Drug Administration and found to be adulterated under Section 402(a)(1) of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act of 1938 as containing a foreign substance dangerous to health, to wit, glass particles. Copy of the notice of said Food and Drug Administration is annexed hereto marked Exhibit "F" and by this reference made a part hereof.

6. At some time prior to July 11, 1944, the defendants did negotiate said irrevocable letter of credit and the agreed purchase price of said seven hundred and fifty (750) cases of Mariachi Tequila Gold has been paid in full by the plaintiff. Nevertheless, said defendants failed and refused to deliver said seven hundred and fifty (750) cases of Mariachi Tequila Gold to plaintiff in good merchantable condition fit for human consumption in violation of their agreement so to do, all to the plaintiff's damage.

7. In addition to the foregoing, and in direct consequence of said violation by the defendants and each of them of said agreement with the plaintiff, the plaintiff has suffered additional damage of one thousand sixty-three dollars and seventy-five cents ($1,063.70) by virtue of certain expenses necessarily incurred and paid by plaintiff in connection with the purchase of seven hundred and fifty (750) cases of Mariachi Tequila Gold, more specifically set forth as follows; to wit:

|--|-------------------|
| Cost of Irrevocable Letter of Credit | $19.69 |
| 9000 Internal Revenue Strip Stamps..... | 90.00 |
| Cutting and Imprinting Strip Stamps..... | 12.75 |
| Forwarding Expenses to Mexico—Strip Stamps | 14.49 |
| Preparing and Handling of I. T. Entry at Laredo, Texas | 11.37 |
| Expenses in Connection with Preparation and Handling Customs Entry at Wilmington, Delaware | 85.70 |
| Miscellaneous Telephone and Telegraph Charges | 25.00 |
| Freight Charges from Laredo, Texas, to Wil- mington, Delaware | 592.25 |
| Customs Storage at rate of 5c per Case, per Month from July 1, 1944 to January 1, 1945 | 232.50 |
| Total | $1,063.75 |

Exhibit A (Attached to Complaint)

Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment be rendered against the defendants and each of them in favor of the plaintiff in the amount of nine thousand one hundred and forty-six dollars and twenty-five cents ($9,146.25) together with interest thereon at the legal rate from July 11, 1944, and the costs of this proceeding.

Dear Mr. Lazarus:

This will confirm our telephone conversation of this morning relative to your order of Mariachi Tequila Gold, wherein the price for the Gold is $10.75, which is 25c more than the White, and which was agreeable to you.

Will you please forward to me your confirmation on this price, as I have already advised International Industries to cable your order to Mexico.

Please execute your letter of credit exactly in accordance with the form which I left with you, with the exception of changing the price from $10.50 to $10.75, and substituting your own customs broker in the place of Jovita Perez, if you so desire.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank you again for your patronage.

Kindest regards,

Dear Gabe:

This confirms our order placed with you last week for 750 cases of Mariachi Tequila Gold @ $10.75 f. o. b. Laredo, Texas. We have put through the letter of credit in accordance with the specimen you left here; but I changed to Tequila where you had the word Vodka.

Be sure to instruct the International Industries that these cases cannot come into Delaware without the Delaware State stickers which will be sent to any address that is specified when they notified us that the shipment is ready to come forward.

These stickers are only sent after we have paid the state tax, so that you should wire us in ample time for us to pay the tax and have these stickers forwarded—one to be put on each case.

Trusting that this is clear to you and with kind personal regards,

Very truly yours,

On motion of the defendants by their attorney
It is Ordered that leave be and it is hereby given to the defendants to file an amended answer herein.

19 And on the same day, to wit, the 4th day of January, 1946, came the Defendants by their attorneys and filed in the Clerk's office of said Court their certain Amended Answer to Plaintiff's Complaint in words and figures following, to wit:

AMENDED ANSWER OF DEFENDANTS TO PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT.

1. Defendants admit the allegations contained in paragraph 1 of plaintiff's complaint.

2. In answer to the allegations contained in paragraph 2 of plaintiff's complaint, defendants deny that during March of 1944, or at any other time, did they, as principals, agree to sell to the plaintiff the Mexican Tequila described in plaintiff's complaint. On or about March 16, 1944, the plaintiff orally requested one Gabriel H. Todes, the agent and salesman of the defendants, to place an order through the defendants to purchase from their principal, located in Mexico, 750 cases of Mexican Tequila, more fully described as Mariachi Tequila (Gold). At the time the plaintiff delivered its order, described as Exhibit "A" in its complaint, to said Gabriel H. Todes, the plaintiff and said Gabriel H. Todes, acting as the agent and salesman of the defendants, orally agreed that said order was subject to acceptance and confirmation by the shipper in Mexico; that the defendants, not being in the liquor business or having an importer's license, and not handling said merchandise in any manner, were not to be personally liable for the shipment of said liquor or its quality; that the time of shipment and quality of the merchandise would be the responsibility of the shipper in Mexico and not the defendants; that the plaintiff would deliver to the defendants a letter of credit for 60 days in favor of the defendants or their assigns for the amount of the purchase price of said merchandise; and that the terms or conditions of said letter of credit would be those contained in a form of letter of credit that said Gabriel H. Todes delivered to the plaintiff on or about March 16, 1944.

3. During the entire transaction described in plaintiff's complaint, the defendants were the sub-agents, middlemen or brokers for the shipper of said merchandise, one Gonzalo A. Larrea, of Mexico City, Mexico, in whose behalf the defendants obtained said order, request or offer of the plaintiff to purchase said merchandise. On or about May 12, 1944, the plaintiff was informed by the defendants that the name of the shipper of said merchandise was said Gonzalo A. Larrea, located in Mexico City, Mexico. On or about May 12, 1944, when the plaintiff was informed by the defendants of the name of said shipper, the said merchandise had not been shipped to the plaintiff and the plaintiff had not incurred any liability of any nature to any person under the terms of the letter of credit described in and attached to plaintiff's complaint as Exhibit "D," nor had the plaintiff incurred any liability of any nature to any person under the original order for said merchandise it had delivered to plaintiff's agent.

4. In answer to the allegations contained in paragraph 3 of plaintiff's complaint, defendants admit that The Chase National Bank, a National Banking Association having its principal place of business in the City of New York, State of New York, issued its letter of credit No. 25668 for Eight Thousand, Sixty-two Dollars and Fifty Cents ($8,062.50). The aforesaid letter of credit was issued pursuant to the understanding between the plaintiff and the defendants that the benefits under said letter of credit would be payable to the defendants or their assigns, and at the time there was a long established and uniform custom then in existence throughout the United States in the sale of said commodity, that the monies due for merchandise exported from a foreign country to a purchaser in the United States would first be paid to or under the control of the broker, agent or middleman who effected said sale, so that the broker, agent or middleman would have adequate security for the payment of the compensation or brokerage due to the agent, broker or middleman. Said custom was well known by the parties at the time said letter of credit was caused to be issued by the plaintiff, and the parties knew that the proceeds under the letter of credit were made payable to the defendants, or their assigns, so the defendants would have security for the payment of their brokerage or compensation from the said shipper.

5. Defendants deny that payment for the merchandise was made by the plaintiff to the defendants. Payment thereof was made to The First National Bank of Chicago under the terms of said letter of credit. The shipper of said merchandise, Gonzalo A. Larrea, would not have shipped said merchandise consigned to the plaintiff nor would he have sent to The First National Bank of Chicago, in accordance with the terms of said letter of credit, his commercial invoice, consular invoice, insurance certificate, original bill of lading and other documents designated in said letter of credit, unless the plaintiff, in accordance with the terms of said letter of credit, would have arranged to pay The First National Bank of Chicago for said merchandise so that the latter could remit the proceeds of said payment to or for the account of the shipper, Gonzalo A. Larrea, after first deducting from said payment the compensation or brokerage which the defendants were entitled to retain for said sale under their agreement with Pine Needle de Mexico, the 23 original agent of said shipper.

6. When the plaintiff received the letter of the defendants dated May 22, 1944, identified as Exhibit "E" in plaintiff's complaint, the plaintiffs were then advised that the shipper had accepted the plaintiff's order or offer to purchase said merchandise.

7. Defendants admit the allegations contained in paragraph 4 of plaintiff's complaint.

8. Defendants deny the allegations contained in paragraph 5 of plaintiff's complaint, except that the Federal Security Agency of the Food and Drug Administration issued its notice in writing relative to its inspection and analysis of the shipment of said merchandise and that a copy of said notice is attached to plaintiff's complaint and identified therein as Exhibit "F." Defendants further state that they have been informed by the plaintiff that only 48 bottles out of the shipment of 9,000 bottles of said merchandise were inspected by said Food and Drug Administration Agency and that out of said 48 bottles 3 bottles were examined in a laboratory.

9. In answer to the allegations contained in paragraph 6 of plaintiff's complaint, defendants deny that they were obligated to deliver said Seven Hundred Fifty (750) cases of Mexican Tequila to the plaintiff, but that said obligation was that of the shipper thereof, Gonzalo A. Larrea, of Mexico City, Mexico, for whom the defendants acted as the sub-agents, middlemen or brokers, as set forth heretofore.

10. In answer to the allegations contained in paragraph 7 of plaintiff's complaint, defendants are without knowledge, other than the statements contained in plaintiff's complaint, that the plaintiff incurred expenses described in said paragraph 7 of plaintiff's complaint.

Defendants further state, that if the plaintiff did incur said expenses, they were not incurred through any fault or obligation of the defendants, who acted as the mere sub-agents, brokers or middlemen for the disclosed shipper, Gonzalo A. Larrea, with whom the plaintiff entered into an agreement to purchase said merchandise.

11. The letter of credit procured by the plaintiff and identified as Exhibit "D" in plaintiff's complaint required that before any payment would be made under this letter of credit, the drafts drawn under this letter of credit had to be accompanied by "Mexican Shipper's Commercial Invoice . . . original bill of lading issued to the order of Mexican shipper, blank endorsed," and other documents specified in said letter of credit. Before the plaintiff paid for the merchandise in question, it or its agent was shown said Mexican Shipper's Commercial Invoice for said merchandise and other documents required by said bill of lading, which again disclosed that the name of the shipper and seller of said merchandise was Gonzalo A. Larrea.

12. After the defendants were notified by the plaintiff of the issuance by the Federal Security Agency of the Food and Drug Administration of its certificate of inspection and analysis, which is identified as Exhibit "F" in plaintiff's complaint, the defendants immediately communicated with the shipper of said merchandise, Gonzalo A. Larrea, who, in turn, during July of 1944, notified the plaintiff by telegram that he, the shipper, Gonzalo A. Larrea, would assume the expense of filtering and re-bottling the merchandise. A copy of the telegram of said shipper, Gonzalo A. Larrea, to the plaintiff is attached hereto marked Exhibit "A", and by reference thereto is made a part of this answer. The defendants also notified the plaintiff of this offer of filtering and re-bottling the merchandise by the shipper, Gonzalo A. Larrea, as evidenced by a letter written by the defendants to the plaintiff, dated July 24, 1944, a copy of which letter is attached hereto marked Exhibit "B"; and by reference thereto is made a part of this answer.

13. During June and July of 1944, there occurred a substantial drop in the market of alcoholic beverages, including Mexican Tequila of the kind purchased by the plaintiff, and the defendants are informed and believe, and on such information and belief so state the fact to be, that the plaintiff refused to accept the offer of the shipper of said merchandise, Gonzalo A. Larrea, of Mexico City, Mexico, to bear the cost of filtering and rebottling said merchandise because of the drop in the market price of alcoholic beverages, including said Mexican Tequila, during July of 1944.

14. Before the defendants received any notice that the said merchandise was claimed to be defective in quality, and immediately after the plaintiff caused payment to be made for said merchandise to The First National Bank of Chicago in accordance with the terms of said letter of credit, the defendants, in turn, caused payment to be made for said merchandise to said Gonzalo A. Larrea, after the defendants deducted and retained from the proceeds of the payment caused to be made by the plaintiff, the compensation or brokerage which the defendants were entitled to retain for said sale under their agreement with said Pine Needle de Mexico.

15. The gross brokerage or compensation that the defendants retained from the sale of said merchandise under its agreement with Pine Needle de Mexico, the general agent of the shipper, was Ten Hundred Twelve Dollars and Fifty Cents ($1012.50). The actual expenses incurred by the defendants in connection with said transaction are the following items:

|---|-----------------|
| 26 First National Bank charges | $ 43.81 |
| Commission to G. H. Todes | 150.00 |
| Commission to R. Turlan y Cia., 5 de R. L. | 241.88 |
| Refund to Pine Needle de Mexico, S. de R. L. for insurance and Mexican taxes | 63.58 |
| Long distance calls and cable charges (pro- rated) | 59.95 |
| Traveling expenses in connection with two trips by Mr. F. San Roman prior to June 1, 1944 (pro-rated) | 111.11 |
| Total | $670.34 |

A substantial part of the residue of this gross brokerage or compensation was spent by the defendants for traveling and other expenses incurred by the defendant, Frank San Roman, when he traveled to Mexico and endeavored to adjust the claim of the plaintiff against the shipper, Gonzalo A. Larrea.

16. Accordingly, the defendants deny that they are liable to the plaintiff in any sum whatsoever, and they, therefore, request that the plaintiff's complaint be dismissed at its own costs against the defendants.

Gentlemen:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of July 20 with enclosure of photostatic copies of the Pure Food & Drug Authority report on your shipment of 750 cases Mariachi Tequila.—

We have just been advised by our people in Mexico that the shipper, Gonzalo A. Larrea, S. de R. L., who as you know collected the full value of the merchandise as per their invoice rendered to you, is wiring you directly to the effect that they will assume expenses of filtering and rebottling of the shipment.—

Meanwhile, we have also received a letter from the shipper dated July 16 wherein they also state that they would reimburse to you the cost of filtering and rebottling.—

Yours very truly,
International Industries.

29 And afterwards on, to wit, the 8th day of January, 1946 there was filed in the Clerk's office of said Court a certain Deposition of Gabriel H. Todes in words and figures following, to wit:

31 IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

* * (Caption—No. 45 C 120) * *

The deposition of Mr. Gabriel H. Todes, taken on behalf of Defendants, in the above entitled case, before Harry Michaelson, a Notary Public of Cook County, Illinois, on the 24th day of December, A. D. 1945, at Suite 1757, No. 33 South Clark Street, Chicago, Illinois, pursuant to notice hereto annexed.

Present:

Mr. Ben W. Heineman,
on behalf of Plaintiff.

Mr. Nat M. Kahn,
on behalf of Defendants.

32 Mr. Kahn: Do you want to waive the signature?
Mr. Heineman: As far as I am concerned, I will waive it, subject to check as to accuracy.

GABRIEL H. TODES, being first duly sworn by the Notary to testify the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth in the cause aforesaid, was examined and testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Kahn.

Q. State your name, please. A. Gabriel H. Todes.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Todes? A. Syracuse, New York.

Q. How long have you lived there? A. Since November 1, 1944.

Q. Prior to that where did you live? A. Baltimore, Maryland.

Q. Will you give us the address where you reside in Syracuse? A. My home or business?

Q. Home. A. 600 James Street.

Q. And your business address? A. 415 Chimes Building.

33 Q. What is your present business or occupation?

A. I am the district manager for Schenley Distributors Corporation, for all of New York State with the exception of Metropolitan, New York; that is, from Westchester County, through Buffalo.

Q. How long have you been employed in that capacity?

A. Since November 1, 1944.

Q. Prior to that time what was your business or occupation? A. I was the district manager for the Mid-Atlantic District, which comprised Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Q. What is the business of Schenley Distributors?

A. Distilling spirits of all types; that is, whiskey, gins, wines.

Q. How long have you been in the liquor business? generally? A. Since August, 1933; just prior to repeal.

Q. The repeal of the 18th Amendment? A. That is right.

Q. State in general the nature of your business since repeal. A. Up to the time I was with Schenley?

34 Q. Yes.

A. I was in the brokerage business; whiskey brokerage business; case goods and bulk whiskey, doing business with wholesalers and rectifiers.

Q. Where was your place of business during that period? A. 410 South Michigan Avenue.

Q. Through what part of the United States have you traveled since you have been in the liquor business, as a broker or salesman? A. Well, I have covered practically all of the United States except the Western Coast; that is, California, Washington, New Mexico, Montana, and that part west of the Rockies.

Q. Since you have been in the whiskey business or liquor business, have you handled, would you say, thousands of separate sales of liquor? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Of all kinds? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Through wholesalers? A. To wholesalers and to rectifiers.

Q. Distributors? A. Well, wholesalers are distributors.

Q. Retailers? A. Well, I do very little selling to retailers. Our business is primarily with the larger 35 user.

Q. When did you first become acquainted with Frank San Roman, one of the partners of International Industries, located at 600 South Michigan Avenue?

A. I would say it was either the latter part of 1943 or the early part of 1944.

Q. Did you make an arrangement with him to act as a salesman for his firm? A. Yes, I got in touch with Mr. Roman and wrote him a letter asking him if he had any connection whatsoever where he could get merchandise from Mexico to sell in the United States.

Q. Do you recall when that was? A. It was in the very early part of 1944. I called him on the 'phone first and then I wrote him a letter.

Q. When did you first start selling merchandise as a salesman for International Industries? A. In January, 1944.

Q. You made some sales, did you? A. I made quite a number of sales.

Q. What commodity did you sell? A. I sold Tequila.

Q. Mexican Tequila? A. Mexican Tequila.

Q. What other commodity? A. Gin. That came 36 from Argentine, and some of it came from Mexico. I sold thousands of cases of the Tequila.

Q. Mr. Frank San Roman is the only member of the defendant firm that you dealt with? A. Yes.

Q. What were his oral instructions to you relative to the taking of orders or selling of merchandise in his behalf?

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to. The oral instructions of the defendant to the salesman has no bearing.

M. Kahn: Only to show his apparent authority or real authority.

Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

Mr. Kahn: I will withdraw it for the moment.

Q. Where and when did you receive your instructions from Mr. Frank San Roman relative to the sale of Tequila or other liquor?

Mr. Kahn: Strike that.

Q. Where and when did you receive your instructions from Mr. Frank San Roman as to the taking of orders for the sale of Tequila or other liquor?

Mr. Heineman: Objected to on the same ground.

37 Mr. Kahn: I suggest that you answer subject to the objection of counsel.

The Witness: A. Well, I received from Mr. San Roman of International Industries—

Mr. Kahn: The question is where and when.

A. Through the mail and by long-distance 'phone; what he was able to get from the various distillers in Mexico to offer for sale.

Q. When was that; early part of 1944? A. It was in the early part of 1944.

Q. What did he tell you?

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to on several grounds; one, that it is not binding on the plaintiff; two, that since the communications were written the letter should be produced. The testimony as to what was contained in said communications is not the best evidence.

Mr. Kahn: I think the point is well taken.

Q. Do you have Mr. San Roman's original letter to you with you? A. No, I do not have it with me.

Q. Did you have any conversation with him relative to your method of taking orders? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where did that conversation take place?

38 A. Over the telephone.

Q. When? A. Long-distance 'phone.

Q. When? A. In the early part of January or early part of 1944, when I first got the list of what merchandise I could offer for sale.

Q. Had you ever spoken to him prior to that, on the long-distance telephone? A. Yes, I had.

Q. Did you recognize his voice on this particular occasion? A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did he say relative to your method of taking orders in his behalf?

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to on the ground that any conversation between the defendant and Mr. Todes is not binding upon the plaintiff or related to the issues in this case; and, secondly, on the ground that since those instructions were reduced to writing, oral conversations with respect to that are not the best evidence.

Mr. Kahn: The purpose of the question is to show the actual authority of the witness and for no other purpose.

I suggest you answer the question subject to counsel's objection.

The Witness: A. My instructions were—

Mr. Kahn: Q. Just repeat what Mr. San Roman told you on the telephone. A. Mr. San Roman told me that I might offer this merchandise subject to acceptance and confirmation by the shipper in Mexico and subject to the prices as given me.

Q. What else did he tell you? A. Well, he told me that he was not in the liquor business, which I knew from my first conversation with him, and that at no time would he ever be responsible for any shipments. He couldn't guarantee the shipments or delivery of the merchandise because that was the responsibility of the shipper in Mexico.

Mr. Heineman: Is it understood that my objection stands to this entire line of examination?

Mr. Kahn: That is right.

Q. Go ahead. A. He said, "I don't know anything about the liquor business and will have to be guided by you because you have experience and you can direct me what the trade needs, and I will go down to Mexico, or I will 'phone them or write them, and try to get what you think you can sell."

40 Q. Do you recall whether he told you anything else? A. I asked him how this merchandise was going to be paid and he said, "Paid by a letter of credit made payable to International Industries or assigns, in a bank in the United States. The merchandise will be C. I. F. Laredo, Texas."

I said, "I don't want to handle any of the finances of the thing. I will simply get the orders and you tell me how to make out the letter of credit or send me a sample copy, and I will turn it over to the accounts to whom I sell and they will follow that form and then you can communicate directly with them and carry it through."

Well, my understanding of the thing was that the reason this was done was so the letter of credit would not have to be sent to the distiller or manufacturer or the shipper in Mexico, and that the funds would be in the United States.

Q. Is that what Mr. San Roman told you?

A. That was my understanding.

Q. Is that what he told you during that conversation?

A. Yes, I think that is what he did.

41 Q. Is there anything else you recall during that conversation that you have not given? A. No, I can not, for the moment.

Q. Well, to refresh your recollection, did he say anything about the responsibility of his firm for quality?

A. Well, he told me he was not responsible; that all he was going to act was as financial broker in the matter; that is, handling the letters of credit.

Q. Mr. Todes, this case is set for trial January 7, 1946, in the United States District Court here at Chicago. Is it possible for you to arrange to be personally present and testify as a witness in this case at that time?

A. That is very difficult for me to make a statement. I work for Schenley Distributors. I never know what they have in mind for me to do.

Q. Could you bind yourself now to be definitely here when the case is tried? A. No, I couldn't do it.

Q. And it is as a convenience to you that this deposition is being taken now? A. Yes.

Q. And you made the request? A. I asked you to 42 do that.

Q. During March of 1944 did you call on the Globe

Liquor Company? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And where is their office located? A. Their office is in Wilmington, Delaware.

Q. Who did you talk to there? A. Mr. Morton Lazarus.

Q. At that time what was his position with the Globe Liquor Company, if you know? A. I don't know whether he is vice-president, and Mr. Wolf is president, although I think Mr. Lazarus is the actual owner of the business. In the State of Delaware you must be a resident of the state—

Mr. Heineman: I object to that.

Mr. Kahn: That may be stricken.

Mr. Heineman: I move to strike out the last, about what he thinks.

The Witness: I have never asked him, "Do you own the business?"

Mr. Kahn: Q. How long prior to this call in March of 1944 had you known Mr. Lazarus? A. Oh I would say I have known Mr. Lazarus for five years.

43 Q. Had you had any prior business dealings with him? A. No, I had not.

Q. Had you ever attempted to sell him any whiskey?

A. No, I had not.

Q. You had no business dealings with his firm? A. No.

Q. I direct your attention to a statement in an affidavit that you supplied for the defendants, where you said, "I have known Mr. Lazarus for at least five years, and I had business dealings with him."

A. Well, I sold him probably a week before some Vermont, for a concern in New York.

Q. Had you ever sold him anything previous to that?

A. Nothing prior to that.

Q. Had you ever called on him prior to that?

A. No, never called on him in a business way.

Q. How did you get to know him? A. That is a very difficult thing for me to answer, how I get to know people. I was introduced to him. I know a lot of people in Baltimore. That was my home. I was born and raised there. He is a very good friend of Lee Eisman, who is a very good friend of mine, and I think Lee Eisman suggested that I call Mort on the telephone and see him. And I

44 know his son-in-law, Stewart Fischler, very well, who who is an employee of one of Schenley Distributors' affiliates, and who was in the same office with me in Baltimore, Maryland.

Q. Mr. Todes, did you talk or deal with any other person than Globe Liquor Company relative to this transaction? A. I dealt directly with Mr. Lazarus, who also discussed it with Mr. Wolf.

Q. In your presence? A. When I sold Mr. Lazarus he and I were alone.

Q. Coming down to that, do you recall the date that occurred; when you took an order from Mr. Lazarus?

A. During March, in the 20's sometime, I think. I don't know.

Q. To refresh your recollection as to the exact date that you called on Mr. Lazarus and took this order, I show you a photostatic copy of a purported order that you took. A. That is March 16th.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to the date?

A. Naturally, if that is on there, that is the date.
45 I thought it was somewhere around the 20th of the month. It is the 16th.

Q. Where did you talk to Mr. Lazarus? A. In Mr. Lazarus' office.

Q. Just the two of you were there? A. He and I.

Q. What did you say to him, stating your own words, and what did he say to you?

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to on the ground that there is a written agreement between the plaintiff and defendant, and that any oral testimony seeking to vary the terms of that agreement is incompetent and a violation of the parol evidence rule.

Mr. Kahn: I suggest that you answer subject to counsel's objection.

Mr. Heineman: It is understood that my objection stands to the entire conversation between Mr. Todes and Mr. Lazarus?

Mr. Kahn: That is right.

The Witness: You want to know how I obtained the order and what our conversation consisted of; is that it?

Mr. Kahn: That is right.

The Witness: Before I went over or after I was there?

46 Mr. Kahn: Both.

A. I called Mort on the 'phone and I said, "Mort, I have some"

Mr. Kahn: Q. On what date? A. On the same day.

I was in Wilmington, Delaware, calling on one of my wholesalers. I called Mr. Lazarus on the 'phone and I said, "Mort, I have some things that I think you can use."

Whiskey was very scarce at the time and the wholesalers were trying to get everything they possibly could.

Q. Is that part of your conversation?

A. Well, I am explaining why—

Q. You are only restricted to what you said and what he said. A. All right. I said, "Mort, I have some things for sale", and I named what they were—"and I would like to come over and see you."

He said, "All right, Gay. Come over."

Q. What did you name?

Mr. Heineman: If anything, over the telephone?

The Witness: A. Yes, I did. I named first some lower priced items in Vermouth and wines. I named gin, 47 and I named Tequila and Vodka.

He said, "All right, Gay. Come over."

I made an appointment for later in the afternoon, and I went over there and I walked into his office, and he and I sat down and we discussed generalities first.

I said, "Mort, I think you can use this Tequila. Lee Eisman has bought 750 cases."

I said, "Primarily the shipper in Mexico will not accept less than a 1500 case car, but I am permitted to sell 750 cases to two accounts, so that they can pool the car and ship it up here. Lee bought 750 cases. If you will take 750 cases you can ship it together."

He said, "Who is International Industries?"

I said, "Well, they are not in the liquor business. They don't know anything about the liquor business and they are not responsible for any shipments or the quality of the merchandise or anything about it. They have made connections in Mexico to get these various items. I am the only one who is selling for them, I think. And Mr. San Roman, who is the owner of International Industries, is guided solely by me."

48 Mr. Lazarus said, "O. K., Gay. How much is it?"

I told him the price, and he said—this was white Tequila.

He said, "I think if I can get it in gold, the colored people would think it was Mexican whiskey and it would sell much more readily."

I said, "Well, I don't know what the price is. I have no listing on any gold, but I will contact International Industries and see if they can give me some information."

He said, "Well, how soon will it be shipped?"

I said, "I can't tell you that either, but you have to pay for it in a 60-day letter of credit; a letter of credit to be made like this"—and I handed him the sample that I had of the letter of credit. It was payable to International Industries or assigns, C. I. F. Laredo, Texas.

I said, "You see, Mort, you don't have to send your letter of credit down to Mexico; it will be payable here in a bank in the United States, when the goods reaches Laredo, Texas."

So he made out this order on one of his little books. This is not my writing.

Mr. Heineman: By "this", what are you referring to?

Mr. Kahn: To the photostatic copy.

The Witness: This is not my writing.

Mr. Heineman: Let us get it in the record.

Mr. Kahn: That photostatic copy?

The Witness: That photostatic copy is not my writing.

Mr. Kahn: Q. Is your signature on there?

A. He wrote that, because he spelled my name "G-a-b-r-i-a-e-l", and I don't write it that way.

Q. Is your handwriting on that document which is represented by a photostatic copy?

A. The only thing on there of mine is this import license number. That is my handwriting.

Q. Your signature is not on there? A. My signature is not on there.

Q. What else did you tell him or what did he say to you during that conversation? A. He wanted to know again when he would get the merchandise.

Q. Did he say why? A. Yes, he did.

Q. What reason did he give?

A. Well, he said, "I would like to get the merchandise in as fast as possible because I think I can sell it now."

Q. Is there anything else that was said during that conversation that you have not given?

A. I think I have about covered it.

Q. Is your recollection exhausted? A. Yes.

Q. To refresh your recollection, did you say anything about whether International Industries were importers of liquor? A. Well, I mentioned before that they—that I told him that they had nothing to do with the liquor business; they were not in the liquor business and knew nothing about it.

Q. Did you tell him whether they had an importer's license? A. They had no license.

Q. Did you tell him that? A. I told him they had nothing to do with the liquor business; they were not in the liquor business, and if they are not in the liquor business they couldn't have an importer's license or any other kind of a license.

Q. To refresh your recollection further, did you say anything to Mr. Lazarus about whether International 51 Industries handled this merchandise or had possession of it in any way? A. I told him it was to be shipped from Mexico.

Q. Directly from Mexico? A. Directly from Mexico.

Q. To refresh your recollection further, during that conversation did you say anything about the orders that you took being subject to confirmation by anybody?

A. I told every account to whom I sold, as well as to Mr. Lazarus, that all orders were subject to acceptance and confirmation by the shipper.

Q. Which was located where? A. In Mexico. And every one of the samples of the letters of credit stated that in there; and when I gave it to him and when he read it, naturally, he saw that.

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to as a conclusion of the witness, as to what he saw.

Mr. Kahn: Q. But you gave it to him to read?

A. Yes.

Q. And did he read it in your presence?

A. Well, he looked at it. Whether he read it or not, I couldn't tell you, but he looked at it.

52 Q. Did he ask any questions about it? A. No.

Q. To refresh your recollection further, do you recall the language you used to explain to Mr. Lazarus the position of International Industries in this transaction? What term did you use, if any? A. I said they were financial brokers in it.

Q. Did you explain what you meant by that?

A. Yes, I think I did.

Q. What was your explanation? A. I told them that that made it easier for him, for the payment of his money; that it was safer. In other words, he don't have to send a letter of credit down to the distiller or the shipper in Mexico. By making it payable to International Industries or assigns, it would be paid in a bank in the United States, and that Lee Eisman had told me he had looked up Mr. San Roman and got a very fine recommendation from the First National Bank in Chicago.

Q. Mr. Todes, did you have any conversation with Mr. Lazarus that day relative to the payment by his firm to you of a separate brokerage or commission?

A. Yes. I said, "Mort, it will cost you a dollar a case as commission to me."

53 He said, "Oh, that's all right. I don't care."

Q. Was there anything further you said about that? A. Payable upon receipt of the merchandise.

Q. Is there anything further that you said about the payment about this separate brokerage to you by the Globe Liquor Company, that you have not given?

A. I don't recall.

Q. To refresh your recollection further, about this conversation of March 16, 1944, with Mr. Lazarus, was anything said about the difficulty of purchasing alcoholic beverages in the United States at that time? A. We discussed it in general.

Q. What did he say and what did you say?

A. Well, that is very difficult for me to say, what did I say and what did he say. We discussed the liquor situation, as it pertained to the American distillers. No one knew how long the war was going to last. The distillers were not manufacturing whiskey. We didn't know how long the supply would last; whether the distillers would be allocated more stringently than they were doing 54 at the time, and just how long the situation would exist, or if it would continue in such a way that after a while there would be practically no shipments of whiskey to any wholesalers whatsoever, and that they would have to try to get whatever they could from out of the country; any types of merchandise.

Q. From your knowledge of the trade conditions at that time, during March of 1944, and specifically March 16th, 1944, was merchandise plentiful?

A. What kind of merchandise?

Q. Were alcoholic beverages plentiful at that time?

A. Do you mean American?

Q. Both American and imported? A. Well, American merchandise was not plentiful at all. There were a lot of imports offered for sale from Argentine, from Chili, from Spain and from Mexico.

Mr. Heineman: I am sorry.

Has Mr. Todes left his conversation with Mr. Lazarus?

Mr. Kahn: Yes, for the moment.

Mr. Heineman: Go ahead. I want to make an objection pertaining to that answer. Let him finish first.

Mr. Kahn: Go ahead.

The Witness: A. That merchandise was more in 55 evidence and being offered more freely, but American goods, you couldn't get it.

Mr. Heineman: I ask that the answer be stricken and objection is made to the answer upon the grounds that the state of the liquor business at the time of the purchase and sale here involved is immaterial to the issues in this case.

Mr. Kahn: Q. Mr. Todes, directing your attention further to this conversation you had with Mr. Lazarus on March 16, 1944, do you recall whether you discussed the scarcity of alcoholic beverages in the market at that time? A. We discussed the situation in general.

Q. Would you please state your best recollection of what you said and what he said?

Mr. Heineman: Same objection to the conversation as made to the last question and answer and also renewing my objection to any answers with respect to the conversations between Mr. Todes and Mr. Lazarus.

Mr. Kahn: I suggest that you answer subject to the objection.

The Witness: Well, I simply repeat what I said
56 before.

Mr. Kahn: Q. Just restate it in the way of a conversation that occurred between the two of you.

A. He asked me what I thought about general conditions. I said, "Mort, it is hard to tell."

Mr. Kahn: It is not necessary to repeat.

Q. I am asking you specifically, to refresh your recollection, as to whether there was any discussion between the two of you as to the scarcity of liquor in the market at that time? A. Yes. He asked me if we were shipping at that time; meaning Schenley Distillers.

Q. What did you say? A. And I said allocations were cut to the bone.

Q. What else was said? A. I asked him how the firms whose brands he was handling are shipping, and he said, "We are not getting very much." And I don't remember verbatim what we discussed. We discussed it in general.

Whiskey was scarce at the time. American whiskey was very scarce at the time.

Mr. Heineman: Are you testifying to a conversation now or what you believe the facts to be?

The Witness: Well, I know what the facts were.

57 Mr. Kahn: Counsel is asking you are you talking about conversations. That is all I am asking you to give.

Q. Did you talk about the scarcity of liquor at that time? A. Well, we discussed the scarcity of whiskey, but just what the conversation, about who it was, and things in particular, I don't recall.

Q. I want you to give us your best recollection, that's all.

Now, when did you next talk to Mr. Lazarus about this transaction?

A. I wrote Mr. San Roman about the gold Tequila. He told me that he had contacted the shipper in Mexico, and that it would be 25 cents more a case than the price stated for the white Tequila.

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to. That is not the best evidence of what he wrote.

Mr. Kahn: That may be stricken.

Q. After the arrangements were made between you and Mr. Lazarus to pay the 25 cents additional price per case for the gold Tequila, when did you next talk to Mr.

58 Larzarus? A. Why, I talked to him two or three times. I don't know the dates.

Q. Relative to this transaction? A. I don't think I talked to him relative to the transaction until after he had sent me a check for the commissions, and then he either called me—he called me on the 'phone, I think, and told me that the Pure Food and Drugs had condemned the shipment that had arrived.

Q. That was during July of 1944? A. I think so.

Q. All right. Where did he call you, long-distance?

A. I don't know whether he called me from Wilmington. He lived in Baltimore. I don't know whether he called me from Wilmington or whether he called me from his home.

Q. But you did recognize his voice coming over the 'phone? A. Yes.

Q. What did you tell him after he told you that the Tequila was being held up by the Federal Food and Drug Administration? A. Well, I told him that I felt very badly about it, but, after all, neither I nor Mr. San Roman or the International Industries were responsible for the condition of the merchandise or the shipment of 59 the merchandise or the quality of the merchandise; that that was the sole obligation of the shipper. And I suggested that he contact the shipper in Mexico. And it is then that he said to me, "We want our money back."

And then is when I told him that neither Mr. San Roman, the International or I was responsible for the condition of the merchandise or the quality of it or the shipment of it; that the obligation was the sole responsibility of the shipper, and I suggested that he contact the American Consul in Mexico and go after the shipper for reimbursement.

Mr. Heineman: That answer is objected to, and I ask that it be stricken on the ground that any discussions after the material was condemned are irrelevant to the issues in this case, and certainly Mr. Todes' statement with respect to the legal liabilities or responsibilities of the parties is of no relevancy.

Mr. Kahn: Q. What did Mr. Lazarus say in response to that statement? A. Well, he said, "I agree that"—

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to on the same 60 ground.

Mr. Kahn: You may note the objection.

Q. Go ahead and give the conversation of Mr. Lazarus.

A. He said, "I agree that the shipper is responsible for it." He said, "We want our money back." He said, "I am not saying that it is your fault but it is the shipper's fault."

Q. Did you talk to him again about the refiltering or rebottling of the merchandise? A. Yes, I talked to him about refiltering the merchandise.

Q. Was that over the telephone or in person?

A. Over the telephone.

Q. How many days after the last conversation you have just given? A. I couldn't state. It may have been three or four days, or it may have been a week.

Q. Did he call you or did you call him? A. I don't recall that either.

Q. Do you remember recognizing his voice over the telephone? A. Yes.

Q. Will you state what you said to him and what he said to you? A. I said, "Mort, why don't you have 61 this refiltered?"

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to, and the whole conversation is objected to for the same reasons as heretofore given.

Mr. Kahn: Q. And rebottled?

The Witness: Shall I continue?

Mr. Kahn: Go ahead.

The Witness: A. "Why don't you have it refiltered and rebottled?"

I think in between that time I had received a 'phone call from Mr. San Roman, telling me that the shipper had agreed to pay all charges or costs of refiltering and rebottling the merchandise. And I told him that the shipper would pay for that.

And he said, "No, I can't do that." He said, "In the first place, I can't get anybody to do it, and, in the second place, it will take too long and I won't be able to sell the goods."

Mr. Kahn: Q. What else did he say, or what else did you say? A. Well, I told him he was making a mistake. He said he was going to—I don't know whether he said that or not.

62 Q. Did you return the $750 brokerage to the Globe? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did he ask you to return it? A. I had a letter from him and I sent him my check.

Q. And you complied? A. Yes.

Q. Now, is there anything further that you recall about the last conversation over the 'phone you had with Mr. Lazarus, that you haven't given? A. Well, I don't know whether it was in that conversation or the next, but he said he was going to sue International Industries for the amount of moneys, and I said, "You will be making a mistake, Mort, because you can't collect from them. Neither they nor I are responsible for the shipment of this merchandise."

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to and I ask that the answer be stricken.

Mr. Kahn: Q. Did you say anything about cooperating with his firm? A. I told him that my—

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to. Just a moment, please, until I make my objection.

63 The Witness: Yes, sir, I am sorry.

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to on the ground that it is irrelevant to the issues in this case.

Mr. Kahn: Go ahead.

Q. Did you say anything about cooperating with the Globe Liquor Company? A. I told him Mr. San Roman and I would do everything we possibly could to help straighten this matter, and we would cooperate as much as we could.

Q. In an action against the shipper? A. Yes.

Q. Did you use that language? A. In all respects.

Q. Did you say anything about cooperating with the Globe Liquor Company in their claim against the shipper? A. To help get the money from the shipper.

Q. Are you familiar with the custom and practices generally prevailing in the sale of alcoholic beverages to distributors of the United States during March of 1944? A. Yes, I was familiar. I don't set myself up as a criterion or the last word in it, but the general practices that the brokers had.

64 Have you an opinion, that you can state with reasonable certainty, as to the existence of any trade custom or practice in the liquor business whereby the purchase price in payment of the shipment of liquor from a foreign country to a buyer in the United States would be controlled by the broker, the financial broker, here in the United States?

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to as irrelevant to any issues here. The issue here is not what the trade custom is but what was the actual transaction between the parties.

Mr. Kahn: Your answer is yes or no.

Q. Have you an opinion as to the existence of any such custom? A. Yes.

Q. To what extent was this custom generally followed in the liquor business?

Mr. Heineman: Same objection, for the same reason.

Mr. Kahn: You may answer, subject to the objection.

The Witness: A. Well, many brokers who did business with foreign distillers collected the money from the consignees so as to protect any commissions that they might get out of the transaction. I don't say that every one did that.

65 Q. Have you an opinion that you can state with reasonable certainty as to the existence of any trade custom or practice in the sale of liquor to distributors in the United States, during March of 1944, whereby the brokers would perform all necessary acts to insure, as much as a broker could, the delivery of merchandise to the buyer?

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to on several grounds. It is objected to on the ground that it is irrelevant in that any custom and trade usages are irrelevant to the issues in this case, and the phraseology of the question is objected to in that it is stated in terms of brokers doing as much as they could, which is an unascertainable fact.

Mr. Kahn: Well, I will rephrase the question.

Q. Have you an opinion that you can say with reasonable certainty as to the existence of any trade custom or practice relative to the sale of liquor to buyers in the United States, during March of 1944, whereby a broker handling a sale would continue to perform services relative to the sale up to and including the time of the delivery of the merchandise to the buyer?

Mr. Heineman: The question is whether he has an 66 opinion?

Mr. Kahn: Yes.

The Witness: A. Yes.

Do you want to know the opinion?

Mr. Kahn: Q. If there is such a custom.

Mr. Heineman: Are you asking him what that opinion is?

Mr. Kahn: Yes.

Q. What is that custom; trade custom or practice?

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to on the ground that it is irrelevant to any of the issues in this case.

The Witness: A. It is always customary, when any broker takes an order from any account, to follow through on that order, particularly if he wants to sell the account again, to see that shipments—and he has no control over shipments—all he can do is to keep after the shipper to be prompt in delivery.

Mr. Kahn: Q. With reference to the payment of the brokerage compensation, do you want to add to your opinion as to the existence of any custom?

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to on the same ground.

The Witness: A. Well, it is not a general practice. Everyone does not handle it in the same way.

67 There are many brokers who require a deposit in advance, particularly in those days where they wanted a guarantee to themselves that the merchandise would be accepted. They took a deposit on that merchandise because a lot of the distillers—

Mr. Kahn: The point I am trying to ask is this.

Mr. Heineman: May I interrupt a minute, please?

Mr. Kahn: Yes.

Mr. Heineman: The entire line of questioning is objected to, and I now move that the answers be stricken upon the additional ground that from the answers of the witness it is apparent that there is no such custom and usage, and that there is no general practice.

Mr. Kahn: Q. I am asking you about the existence of a general trade custom and practice as to when the brokerage commission would be paid; due and payable to the broker.

Mr. Heineman: Objected to for all of the reasons heretofore stated with respect to this line of questions.

Mr. Kahn: Q. Under the prevailing trade custom and practice would the brokerage be payable when the 68 order is accepted, or under what circumstances?

Mr. Heineman: Objected to for the same grounds heretofore stated.

Mr. Kahn: Q. When is the brokerage payable?

A. When the merchandise is received.

By whom? A. By the consignee.

Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Albert Young, one of the attorneys for Globe Liquor Company? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did Mr. Young request you to appear as a witness in this case? A. He asked me if I could come.

Q. When did he make that request? A. When I was in his office.

Q. How long ago? A. Oh, I think it was in November.

Q. Of this year? A. Yes.

Q. What did you tell him? A. He wanted me to come out on the 16th of November, I think it was. I said I thought I might be at Chicago for the American Legion Convention. He said, "That will be fine if you can be there.?"

68A I said, "I can't state positively that I will be there because I never know what is coming up in my line of duty."

Q. Did he make any further request for you to be here during January of 1946? A. No.

Q. Where did this conversation occur; in what city?

A. In Wilmington.

Q. Wilmington, Delaware? A. Yes.

Q. Did International Industries know that you were getting a separate commission from the Globe Liquor Company? A. Yes.

Q. And did they make objection to that? A. No.

Q. You also received a brokerage commission from International Industries on the same transaction?

A. Yes. May I explain something?

Q. You may. A. The brokerage that I received from International Industries was 25 cents a case, and I wouldn't even handle it for that little.

And I told Mr. San Roman that I would collect my 69 brokerage from the buyer; and in those days it was known as a finder's commission. That was a term that was used during the tough times when whiskey was scarce.

Mr. Kahn: Cross examine.

Mr. Heineman: Any cross examination conducted by me, as attorney for the plaintiff, with respect to any matters to which I have heretofore objected, is subject to all of those objections.

Cross Examination by Mr. Heineman.

Q. You say that you wrote the defendant, San Roman, a letter asking him whether he had Mexican connections, prior to your becoming salesman for International Industries? A. Yes.

Q. What led you to write him such a letter?

A. Several things. One is that I knew that Mr. San Roman had been doing business in Mexico on other products. And I knew, from the general conditions in the trade, that merchandise, alcoholic merchandise, was coming from Mexico, and I thought perhaps he, doing 70 business in Mexico, on the various—I don't know whether it is food or drug or chemicals—that he might make connections down there, to get representation in the United States.

Q. When you say Mr San Roman was doing business on other products, do you mean he was importing other products from Mexico? A. I don't know whether he was importing or exporting, but I knew he was doing business in Mexico.

Q. You don't know what the character of his business was; whether he was an importer or an exporter?

A. At first!

Q. At the time you showed him a letter?

A. No. I knew he was doing business in Mexico.

Q. You didn't know whether he was an importer or exporter? A. No, sir.

Q. Directing your attention to your call on the Globe Liquor Company in March of 1944, on March 16, 1944, to be specific, at any time in the course of your conversation with Mr. Lazarus, did you mention the name of the shipper from Mexico who was to ship the Tequila which the Globe Liquor Company bought? A. No, I did not.

71 Q. As a matter of fact, at that time you, yourself, did not know the name of the shipper; is that correct?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Pardon? A. I did not.

Q. You did not know the name of the shipper? A. No. I had the label and the label had Francisco S. Rubio on there, and I never noticed whether he was the shipper or whether he was the distiller, so when I say I didn't know, I might have had the information, but I at least didn't know.

Q. Did you show that label to Mr. Lazarus at the time?

A. Yes.

Q. And at no time in the course of that conversation did you mention the name of Gonzalo T. Larrea? A. No.

Q. You at no time mentioned that name? A. No, I did not.

Q. As a matter of fact, you didn't know that that was the alleged shipper? A. That is right.

Q. Did you ever mention that name as the shipper
72 to Mr. Lazarus? A. No, I did not.

Q. At no time in any of the conversations that you have described, did you mention that Gonzalo A. Larrea was the shipper? A. No, sir, I did not.

Mr. Heineman: May it be stipulated that a true copy of the order dated March 16, 1944, with respect to which Mr. Todes has testified on direct examination, is attached to the complaint in this matter as Exhibit A?

Mr. Kahn: Yes.

Mr. Heineman: Q. Directing your attention to the order dated March 16, 1944, that was written by Mr. Lazarus? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is in his handwriting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. With the exception of the— A. Import license number.

Q. With the exception of the words "Import license 1-14.08", which is your handwriting? A. That's right.

Q. That was written by Mr. Lazarus, was it not, 73 at your dictation? That is to say, you told him what to write on that order? A. Well, he asked me—he put down the quantity and he put down the size. I had told him the price. I told him it is C. I. F. Laredo, Texas, and the 60-day letter of credit.

Q. And you had also told him, had you not, to write "International Industries" at the top? A. That's right.

Q. And their address, "600 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago"? A. I told him that the order would be sent to International Industries.

Q. And did you also tell him to write this at the top of the order? A. Well, I didn't tell him to write it at the top. It was his order blank, and that is the way he writes his orders.

Q. Now, how many copies of that order were made?

A. I wouldn't know. He gave me that one.

Q. And you took that one with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do with the order? A. I mailed 74 it to Mr. Sam Roman of the International Industries.

Q. Did you accompany that order with a letter?

A. I think I did. I think I requested in that letter that Mr. Lazarus wanted it in gold, if he could get it.

Mr. Heineman: Mr. Kahn, will you produce the copy of the letter?

Mr. Kahn: If I have it. Do you want to wait, and I will see if I can find it?

Mr. Heineman: You don't have to produce it now.

Mr. Kahn: Well, I don't know whether I have it or not. I will look for it.

The Witness: Because I think Mr. Sam Roman wrote to Mr. Lazarus direct regarding it. I remember, I think, receiving a copy where Mr. Sam Roman wrote to Mr. Lazarus direct.

Mr. Kahn: I will make a note of it and look for it.

Mr. Heineman: All right. I assume, if you find it, we can agree on its authenticity?

Mr. Kahn: Yes.

Mr. Heineman: Q. Now I show you a letter dated March 24, 1944, that is attached to the complaint as Exhibit B, and ask you whether that is a correct copy of a letter written by you to Mr. Lazarus on that date? A. Well, that is very difficult for me to say it is exactly the copy because I do not have the original, and I couldn't recall every word that I might have written on the original letter.

Q. Well, I will show you a photostatic copy of the original? A. I would say it is then.

Q. I show you a letter dated March 27, 1944, attached to the complaint as Exhibit C, and ask you whether that is a correct copy of a letter of that date, written to you by the Globe Liquor Co., Inc., signed by Mr. Morton Lazarus, vice-president?

Mr. Kahn: What is the date of that?

Mr. Heineman: The 27th.

The Witness: A. Yes.

Mr. Heineman: Q. You testified that in the course of that conversation you advised Mr. Lazarus that the International Industries were not responsible for the quality of the merchandise?

A. As part of many things that I told him. I said, "They have nothing to do with the shipment of the merchandise. They are simply financial brokers.

They are not responsible for the shipment or the quality or anything about the merchandise."

He asked me who they were, and that is how it came up.

Q. Ordinarily when a man buys liquor, through a broker, unless it is a standard branded item, he knows who the seller is, doesn't he? He knows who the manufacturer of the merchandise is, or distiller or rectifier, as the case may be? A. I would say so.

Q. In the course of your conversations with Mr. Lazarus; that is to say your conversations of March 16, 1944, you referred to the fine report that a Mr. Lee Eisman had obtained upon Mr. Sam Roman from the First National Bank? A. That is what Mr. Roman told me.

Q. And you also told that to Mr. Lazarus? A. And I also told that to Mr. Lazarus.

Q. At the time? A. That's right.

Q. Now, Mr. Lazarus knew Mr. Eisman, did he not?

A. They were friends.

Q. What was the purpose of your telling that to Mr. Lazarus?

77 A. Well, making the letter of credit to International Industries or assigns, that meant that they were turning over money to them and you just don't want to turn over money to someone whom you don't know.

Q. You meant to convey the impression to Mr. Lazarus that the defendants, Mr. San Roman and the International Industries, were reliable people? A. That's right.

Q. Liquor is often imported from foreign countries, is it not, by the distributors themselves? A. Yes.

Q. Does Schenley import any liquor from foreign countries? A. Yes.

Q. Frequently liquor is imported by importers, is it not for special order of distributors or wholesalers in the United States? A. By importers?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And it would not have been an unusual transaction, would it, for the Globe Liquor Company to have gone to an importer and requested that the importer import into the United States and sell to Globe a given quantity of liquor? A. No, it would not be unusual.

Q. That would have been a very usual transaction?

A. Yes, it is done very often. That is why they have an import license, so that they can personally import it.

Q. You mean an importer? A. A wholesaler. When a wholesaler takes out an import license, he does it for the purpose that if he wants to import anything himself he is licensed to do so.

Q. In addition to a wholesaler having an import license, there are persons who are importers?

A. Importers?

Q. Who import for wholesalers for special order by wholesalers, is that not so? A. Yes.

Q. And it would not have been an unusual transaction for Globe to have gone to such an importer and requested the importation of such liquor for Globe's account? A. No, it would not have been unusual.

Q. As a matter of fact, that would have been a very usual transaction? A. Yes.

79 Q. And even though the wholesaler might have his own import license, he might, nevertheless, go to such an importer who would have such a particular source; is that correct? A. Yes. The purpose of an importer, in normal times, having an import license—

Q. Now, by "importer", are you referring to one who is exclusively an importer? A. No; I say the purpose of a wholesaler having an importer's license was for the purpose of importing merchandise for himself, at the import price, rather than have an importer get the merchandise in and then resell it to him at a higher price.

Q. That is right; but there are certain importers; are there not, who have sources for liquor in foreign countries which are not available to a particular distributor or wholesaler in a particular locality of the country?

A. That is correct.

Q. Such a wholesaler or distributor, as the Globe Liquor Company, the plaintiff here, might well go to such an importer, even though Globe itself has an import license? A. That is correct.

80 Q. And that would be a frequent, day to day, occurrence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And on such occasions the importer would import the liquor from the foreign country and resell it or sell it to Globe; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. As a matter of fact, in such transaction it would not be unusual, would it, for the importers to have the liquor consigned directly to the consignee, if the quantity purchased was sufficiently large? A. If the wholesaler had an import license, yes, sir. If the wholesaler did not have an import license he couldn't do it.

Q. But in this case Globe Liquor did have an import license? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that it would not be an unusual transaction for Globe Liquor to go to an importer and have the importer direct the importation into this country of a quantity of liquor, consigned directly to Globe, and charge Globe for the merchandise? A. That is correct.

81 Q. That would be a relative—

A. That is the usual procedure.

Q. A usual procedure? A. Yes, sir. We do that in our company very often.

Q. Now, in such a transaction Globe Liquor Company might or might not know who the foreign shipper was, is that not correct?

Mr. Kahn: If they were buying direct?

Mr. Heineman: No.

Do you understand the question?

The Witness: I would like you to repeat it.

Mr. Heineman: All right.

Q. Where the Globe Liquor Company were buying from an importer, with the merchandise consigned directly to Globe, Globe might or might not know who the shipper was in the foreign country, is that correct?

A. That would depend on the product.

Q. Will you explain that? A. Well, if Globe were buying, or any other wholesaler, were buying a product, they would want to know what the product is and what the package looks like. That is in normal times. During the times when whiskey was scarce, it didn't make any difference what the package looked like. They might 82 want to see the label.

To follow through on that, they would want to see what the package looked like, what the label looked like, and most of the time on the labels the distiller's name is on there.

If the importer from whom the wholesaler was buying the merchandise, the importer would have on that label who the shipper is.

Q. The shipper or the distiller? A. The distiller.

Q. The shipper and the distiller are not occasionally the same person, are they? A. Not always.

Q. Is it frequently the fact that the shipper and the distiller is the same person? A. It depends upon where you buy your merchandise. If you buy it from France or Spain, the distiller is the shipper in most instances. They have a broker but the broker does not appear as the shipper. And at other times, from Mexico and Argentine, there may be two or three people intervening between the distiller and the importation of it.

Q. Now, returning to the question that I asked you, your answer then to the question of whether Globe,
83 if it bought from an importer, with consignment direct to Globe, would necessarily know who the shipper was, or would be—your answer was “no”? I understand? A. That is right; unless the importer said, “Make your letter of credit”—

Now, when merchandise came in from Spain or Argentine, the letters of credit were made directly to Argentine and to Spain and not to the importer.

I did some business for Gualaivis in New York. They are importers. They had their letters of credit made directly to Spain and to Argentine and not to them, although they were the importers.

Q. And being the importers, they were the seller and the purchaser? A. That is right.

Q. It was customary, was it not, in cases in which the wholesaler or distributor would buy directly from an importer, with consignment direct to the wholesaler, for the wholesaler not to know the name of the shipper? He might or might not know? A. That is possible.

Q. In such cases the wholesaler, the purchasing
84 wholesaler, would be relying upon the standing and credit of the importer with whom he dealt; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Why did you return the commission of $750 that you had been paid by the Globe Liquor Company?

A. Mr. Lazarus is a friend of mine and he wrote me and told me that he would like to have the check back, and to keep his friendship I returned the check. Seven hundred and fifty didn't mean that much to me. Not that I couldn't use it; don't misunderstand me.

Q. Did you feel badly about the way the transaction turned out? A. Very badly. Not from a personal loss on my side. I want you to understand that. Because I was involved in the transaction, I felt badly to think that the merchandise came in that condition.

Q. Did you at any time examine the condition of the merchandise? A. No.

Q. Did you go to the warehouse where it was held?

A. No.

Q. Did you talk to any of the representatives of 85 the Bureau of Internal Revenue? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you familiar with condemnation procedure? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you also testified that in the course of your conversation with Mr. Lazarus on March 16, 1944, you advised him that it would be safer for him to have the letter of credit made payable to the International Industries; is that correct. A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you mean by "safer"? A. Well, I hadn't too much confidence in the Mexicans' way of operating their business, from reports that I had received of various transactions from other people who had done business in Mexico, and rather than have him send his letter of credit directly down there to the shipper, or a bank in Mexico, and they do things very slowly and very slipshod, I thought it would be safer, probably, for him to do business with a letter of credit to International Industries or assigns.

Q. What you mean is that if the letter of credit had gone directly to the so-called shipper in Mexico, that the merchandise might never have been shipped?

86 A. They had a peculiar habit—

Q. Will you answer the question? A. Yes.

Q. That the merchandise might never have been shipped; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And the shipper would have the merchandise and the money? A. That is right.

Q. And the Globe Liquor Company would have parted with its money and have no merchandise? A. That is correct.

Q. So you advised him to make the letter of credit payable to the International Industries? A. According to the instructions of Mr. Sam Roman, to make it to them.

Q. So as to protect the Globe Liquor Company against such an eventuality? A. That is right.

Q. Who suggested the use of the customs broker, Joviti Perez to the Globe Liquor Company, do you know? Was that suggested by you? A. I don't recall whether it was suggested by me from Mr. Sam Roman. I 87 think I told Mr. Lazarus that name, which I got from Mr. Sam Roman, or to use his own broker, whichever he preferred.

Q. As a matter of fact, didn't he advise you that they had no customs brokers in Laredo and that they would use the broker that you recommended? A. I think so.

Mr. Heineman: I have no further questions.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Kahn.

Q. Mr. Todes, in your conversation with Mr. Lazarus, on March 16, 1944, do you recall telling him that one of the reasons the letter of credit was made to run in favor of International Industries or assigns, was to also assure International Industries the payment of its brokerage?

A. No, sir, I did not tell him that.

Q. What did you say about him having the letter of credit run in favor of International Industries or assigns?

A. To help Mr. Lazarus to prevent him from sending a letter of credit down to Mexico to the shipper or the 88 distiller, and say that he would pay for the merchandise when it reached the United States through a United States bank.

Q. Do you recall that in the letter of credit requirements that you discussed, it was to be specified that the Mexican shipper's commercial invoice in triplicate was to be produced? A. That was in the form that was sent me and I gave it to Mr. Lazarus.

Q. Do you recall whether the form for the letter of credit also stipulated that the original bill of lading, issued to the order of the Mexican shipper blank endorsed was in the form? A. I recall that it was in the form.

Q. Are you familiar with the procedure of buyers furnishing letters of credit in the sale of liquor in the United States during March of 1944? A. What do you mean by that? Am I familiar with the procedure? You mean letters of credit were issued for merchandise to be imported into the country?

Q. Yes, were you familiar with that? A. I know that whenever anyone wanted to get merchandise out of the country, they issued letters of credit.

89 Q. You have seen letters of credit, haven't you?

A. I never had anything to do with letters of credit until I did this business. My business was all in the United States.

Q. Then your statements in response to Mr. Heineman's questions, as to the nature of sending a letter of credit to Mexico was not based on your actual experience, was it? A. No, I said it was from reports that I had gotten of transactions.

Q. Well, don't you know that no money can be paid, under a letter of credit, until the shipping documents are first produced? Don't you know that as a general rule?

A. Can they be forged?

Q. I beg pardon? A. Can they be forged?

Q. Forged? A. Shipping documents.

Q. I suppose anything can be forged at any time, at any place.

You told Mr. Lazarus the reason for having the letter of credit read to the International Industries or assigns was to insure the delivery of the merchandise into the 90 United States; is that right? A. No, I said it was safer.

Q. I see. You told him that, did you? A. I said it was safer.

Q. You were following the directions of Mr. San Roman, weren't you? A. Exactly.

Q. And you had a form there for a letter of credit?

A. That's right.

Q. And you gave it to Mr. Lazarus? A. I gave it to Mr. Lazarus.

Q. So far as you know, he followed that form?

A. I suppose he did. After all, Mr. San Roman handled the transaction financially. My job was to sell.

Q. You personally don't know much about the mechanics of the procedure of letters of credit at all?

A. I do not.

Q. That is out of your line? A. That is right.

Q. You have never had any personal experience in letters of credit? A. No.

91 Q. Now, do you know, of your own knowledge, from the conditions of the liquor business during the months of April, May, June and July of 1944, whether there was a drop in the buying demand of Tequila during those months?

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to as irrelevant to any of the issues in this case.

Mr. Kahn: You may answer subject to counsel's objection.

The Witness: A. There was no drop in the buying in April and May, and probably not in the first week in June. Buying did not drop. The demand for importations did not decline until there was an announcement that there would be a liquor holiday; that is, the resumption of making American whiskey, in the month of August, 1944.

Mr. Kahn: Q. When was that announcement made?

A. I think in May sometime.

Q. Of what year? A. 1944.

Q. What happened to the market on Tequila after that announcement?

Mr. Heineman: That is objected to on the ground
92 that it would be irrelevant to any issue.

Mr. Kahn: You may answer.

The Witness: A. There just wasn't any demand for it.

Mr. Kahn: Q. The bottom dropped out of the Tequila market, is that it? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Kahn: You may cross examine.

Recross Examination by Mr. Heineman.

Q. You advised Mr. Lazarus that the letter of credit should be made payable to the International Industries or assigns because it was safer for the Globe Liquor Company, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You thought that you were following your instructions from Mr. San Roman when you made such a statement? A. No, sir. He never instructed me to say that it was safer.

Q. He instructed you to get the letter of credit made payable to International Industries or assigns?

93 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you advised Mr. Lazarus that the purpose of so doing was because it was safer for Globe Liquor Company; that was your understanding of the reason, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. You have heretofore testified as to why you thought it was safer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you expressed those reasons to Mr. Lazarus?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And whether you knew or did not know anything about the letter of credit procedure, those were your reasons and those were the reasons you gave Mr. Lazarus?

A. Yes.

Mr. Heineman: No further questions.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Kahn.

Q. During this March 16th, 1944 conversation with Mr. Lazarus, when you told him the International Industries would not be responsible for the shipment of the merchandise or the quality of the merchandise, what, if 94 anything, did he say? A. Nothing.

Q. He didn't object to that statement on your part? A. No.

Q. He had no comment? A. I understand—

Q. You can not give us your understanding. You can only state what you heard and what was said. A. All right.

Q. Was there any comment about it at all? A. No comment.

Mr. Kahn: That is all.

And thereupon it was stipulated by and between the parties hereto, by their respective counsel, that the signature of the witness to this, his deposition, may be waived, and that the same may be read on the trial of this cause with the same force and effect as if the witness had read, signed and again made oath to the same.

95 United States of America
Northern District of Illinois
Eastern Division.

State of Illinois,
County of Cook—ss.

I, Harry Michaelson, a Notary Public in and for the County of Cook and State of Illinois, do hereby certify that the foregoing deposition of Mr. Gabriel H. Todes, of Baltimore, Maryland, was taken on behalf of the defendants in a certain cause now pending and undetermined in the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, wherein Globe Liquor Co., Inc., a Delaware Corporation, is plaintiff, and Frank Sam Roman and Dorothea Sam Ronan, doing business under the firm name and style of International Industries, are defendants, before me, at the office of Nat M. Kahn, Suite 1757, No. 33 South Clark Street, Chicago, Illinois, on Monday, the 24th day of December, A. D. 1945, at 9:30 o'clock a. m.; that Mr. Ben W. Heineman was present on behalf of the plaintiff and Mr. Nat M. Kahn on behalf of the defendants during the taking of said depositions; that the said witness was duly sworn by me before the commencement of this deposition;

96 that by agreement of counsel for the respective parties the signature of the witness to the deposition was waived; that said deposition was taken down in shorthand by me and afterwards transcribed into typewriting under my direction; that the taking of said testimony was concluded on the 24th day of December, A. D. 1945.

I further certify that I am not connected by blood or marriage with either of the parties to this suit, nor am I a relative or employee or attorney or counsel of any of the parties, nor am I a relative or employee of such attorney or counsel, or financially interested in the action, or interested, directly or indirectly in the matter in controversy.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 8th day of January A. D. 1946.

Harry Michaelson

MOTION OF PLAINTIFF TO STRIKE
DEFENDANTS' DEPOSITION OF GABRIEL H. TODES.

Now Comes Globe Liquor Co., Inc., plaintiff herein, by its duly authorized attorney, Ben W. Heineman, and respectfully moves the Court to strike the deposition of Gabriel H. Todes, taken by the defendants in opposition to the plaintiff's motion for summary judgment and in support of the defendants' motion for summary judgment.

In support of this motion, the plaintiff respectfully shows that by said deposition the defendants seek to vary the terms of a written contract between the plaintiff and the defendants, all in violation of the parol evidence rule.

/s/ Ben W. Heineman

Attorney for the Plaintiff.

100 And afterwards on, to wit, the 6th day of June, 1946 there was filed in the Clerk's office of said Court a certain Transcript Of Proceedings, had on March 11-14, 1946 in words and figures following, to wit:

TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS.

had in the above-entitled cause before the Hon. John P. Barnes, one of the Judges of said Court, and a jury, in the United States Court, at Chicago, Illinois, beginning on March 11, A. D., 1946, at 2:00 o'clock P. M.

Present:

Ben W. Heineman, Esq.,
(of Messrs. Swiren, Heineman & Antonow, 135 S. LaSalle St., Chicago 3, Ill.),
on behalf of plaintiff;

Nat. M. Kahn, Esq.,
(33 S. Clark St., Chicago 3, Ill.),
on behalf of defendants.

103 And thereupon the following proceedings were had herein:—

And thereupon, a jury having been duly empaneled and sworn to try the issues herein, the following:

And thereupon Mr. Heineman addressed the jury in opening statement on behalf of the Plaintiff:

By Mr. Heineman: Ladies and Gentlemen of the Jury:—At the commencement of a lawsuit the attorney for the plaintiff, which in this case is the Globe Liquor Company, takes the opportunity to make a statement to the jurors about the case, in order that the jurors may understand the evidence better as it is put in.

Usually the attorney for the defendant also makes a statement, to explain to the jurors his view of the case.

What we say to you at this time is not evidence, but is what we believe the evidence will show.

You should listen to what we say to you at this time, to assist you in understanding the evidence. But it is the evidence that is actually admitted by Judge Barnes, and the law as given you by Judge Barnes, which should control—which must control your decision.

Now, the Globe Liquor Company is a wholesaler of liquor. Its principal place of business is Wilmington, Delaware.

It has come to Chicago to file this suit because that is where the defendants live and have their principal place of business.

In March of 1944, a man by the name of Todes called on Mr. Lazarus at his place of business at the Globe Liquor Company in Wilmington, and said that he was a salesman for International Industries; that the principal partner of International Industries was Mr. Sam Roman, that gentleman there (indicating Mr. Sam Roman).

He told the Globe Liquor Company that he was selling Mexican Tequila, which is a form of liquor manufactured in Mexico, and asked whether Globe wished to buy.

And the Globe Liquor Company said that they would buy 750 cases. And by a form of order and an exchange of letters a contract was entered into to buy 750 cases of tequila at $10.75 a case.

That was to be C.I.F. Laredo, Texas, which is a port of entry into the United States.

The tequila was to come from Mexico.

Mr. Todes left with the Globe Liquor Company a form of letter of credit—an irrevocable letter of credit, which is a document which in this type of transaction enables the seller to know that the money for the goods is available when the goods are delivered.

And the Globe Liquor Company bought an irrevocable letter of credit in the approximate amount of $8,000, which represented the total cost of the shipment, from the Chase National Bank of New York.

And that letter of credit, which was irrevocable, and which was made out to International Industries, that is, to the defendant or their assigns, was then sent to Mr. Sam Roman—to the International Industries in Chicago.

The money was to be paid against the delivery of what are called shipping documents, that is to say, the bill of lading and the invoices and all the rest from Mexico.

There was a subsequent, rather considerable exchange of correspondence.

Revenue stamps had to be printed and sent to Mexico, to be put on the bottles before they could be brought 106 into the United States.

Labels describing the liquor had to be put on the bottles, and on the cases, and had to be registered in this country and approved.

And then in late May the defendants advised the Globe Liquor Company that the shipment had left Mexico, and was on the way.

Shipments of liquor come into the United States in bond, which means that they cannot be taken out of bond by the purchaser until they have been inspected by the Food and Drug Administration, to make certain that they are not adulterated—not harmful to drink, in the case of liquor; and then not until the tax is paid by the purchaser.

These 750 cases of tequila came into the country in bond, were shipped to Wilmington, Delaware, where they were inspected by the officials of the Food and Drug Administration.

Before they reached Wilmington, Delaware, the shipping documents had been presented by Mr. Sam Roman, the defendant—one of the defendants, together with the irrevocable letter of credit, and the funds were paid to International Industries; in other words, the irrevocable letter of credit was cashed, or negotiated, we will say, 107 just like a check.

When the liquor got to Wilmington it was inspected by officials of the Pure Food and Drug Administration—the Food and Drug Administration; and upon inspection they found that the tequila was adulterated, in that it contained particles—glass particles dangerous to health.

The Globe Liquor Company—or, I should say, the Government of the United States refused thereupon to release that liquor from bond; in other words, refused to permit Globe Liquor Company to claim the liquor which it had purchased.

Thereupon Globe Liquor Company immediately made demand upon the defendants in this case for a return of the purchase price, because after all they could not receive and use the liquor.

The defendants claimed that they were not really the sellers, that they were only agents for the sellers, and that Globe Liquor Company should seek to recover its money from the seller—from the persons whom the defendants here say were the real sellers, some people—

Gonzalo A. Larréa, in Mexico.

108 Our people said—the plaintiff said that the only persons whom they had known in this transaction, the only persons with whom they had dealt, were the defendants; they had assumed that the defendants were selling them the merchandise, and they insisted upon payment, that is, upon return of the money.

But the return of the money was refused. And for that reason we are here before you ladies and gentlemen today.

That in very brief summary is the substance of the plaintiff's position.

As I told you, it is not what I say to you, it is not what Mr. Kahn, the attorney for the defendants will say to you, it is the evidence that counts, it is the evidence that comes in here, that is admitted by his Honor, Judge Barnes.

And thereupon Mr. Kahn addressed the jury in opening statement, on behalf of the Defendants.

By Mr. Kahn: May it please the Court, and Ladies and Gentlemen of the Jury:—

The opening statement in behalf of defendants, and 109 what the defendants will seek to prove, are these facts:

In the spring of 1944 there was a great shortage of liquor in the United States. The demand was far short of the supply.

The plaintiff, the Globe Liquor Company, who are wholesale liquor dealers—experienced wholesale liquor dealers in Wilmington, Delaware, a corporation, were very anxious to get liquor of any kind from anywhere.

My clients, Mr. Frank San Roman, and his wife, doing business under the name of International Industries—and by the way, that name is merely a name that they use, and they have two rooms, or a space at 600 North Michigan Avenue, and carry on an export business; and my clients have had considerable business dealings as agents in Latin countries principally, and they knew of a source where Mexican tequila could be purchased.

Mr. San Roman the prior winter, or several months prior to the spring of 1944 had made the acquaintance of one Gabriel H. Todes, who has been in the liquor brokerage business a good many years, who lives at Syracuse,

New York, who was a personal friend of Morton 110 Lazarus, vice-president of the Globe Liquor Company. And Mr. Todes knew that the Globe Liquor Company were in the market for liquor. And he told them what he had learned, that the International Industries of Chicago, that is, Frank San Roman knew a source where Mexican Tequila could be purchased, and gave them a price of $10.50 a case for the plain, or white colored tequila, and 25 cents a case extra for the gold or yellow colored tequila, known as Mariachi Tequila, that is the trade-name.

Mr. Todes told Mr. Lazarus that they were in the international business, that they did not handle the merchandise anyway, and didn't have possession of it, and never had a right to possession of it, but knew where it could be purchased in Mexico.

And he announced also that the brokerage that Mr. Todes was to receive, and did receive from my clients was 25 cents a case—or 35 cents a case for the gold, 10 cents extra for the additional market price.

Mr. Lazarus was so anxious to get this tequila from Mexico that he paid Mr. Todes what is known as a finder's commission. That is, when the buyer is anxious to buy 111 he will pay a broker an extra commission or brokerage to be sure that he will be able to buy the merchandise.

And this finder's commission was one dollar a case, or four times the amount that Mr. Todes was to receive from my clients.

And he received this finder's commission with the full knowledge and approval of my people.

Mr. Todes told Mr. Lazarus that since International Industries did not handle the merchandise in any way, that it could come directly from Mexico. That the responsibility for the quality and the time of shipment would be the sole responsibility of the shipper, and not International Industries, the broker.

And International Industries could not and would not be responsible for anything in connection with the shipment.

And Mr. Lazarus agreed to those stipulations.

Although at the time Mr. Todes did not state the name of the shipper, the reason is obvious. Because the demand for liquor was so strong in behalf of purchasers that had they known the name of the shipper, and his name and location they could have dealt directly with the ship- 112 per, and in that way would obviate and deprive my clients from the small commission they were to earn.

The total amount involved is something like $8,060.50 for the 750 cases.

My clients received a brokerage of $1,012.50, of which they paid out practically all in salesman's commission to Mr. Todes, and other expenses.

Now, the money was not paid to International Industries.

Here is the way payment was made.

When you deal with a seller in a foreign country he won't ship when he gets a mere order. That is just a piece of paper to him. He wants to be sure that when he ships merchandise from Mexico or Argentina, or any Latin country, and delivers it all the way up here in the United States, that the money will be here for payment.

Accordingly, there is a device known as a letter of credit, where the buyer goes to the bank and makes credit arrangements.

And his bank in this case was the Chase National Bank, which issued its letter of credit, stating that if the merchandise, 750 cases of this tequila would come here, 113 with certain documents, namely, the shipper's invoice directly from Mexico certifying that the merchandise was in good condition, and so on, that is the documents would come directly from the shipper, and upon the delivery of those documents here, at the First National Bank in Chicago, who was the appointed sort of clearing house, that if the documents were in good order, if they showed that the merchandise was here and available in this country with the bill of lading, that is, the title papers that the railroad gives you, and the Mexican shipper's invoice showing that the Mexican shipper sold directly to the Globe Liquor Company, that if all these papers were in order, then and only then is the merchandise paid for, since the San Romans were only getting a small portion of this money, and the shipper wanted to be sure that he would get his money, so he insisted on this bill of lading, and the bill of lading was made—I beg your pardon, the letter of credit. And the letter of credit was in favor of International Industries here, or assigns. And because of the words “or assigns”, Larrea, the shipper, who knew of this arrangement—then and only then, when he knew there was a letter of credit delivered, moved forward with 114 his shipment. And it came up here.

So the money was not paid to International Industries but was paid to the First National Bank, the agent appointed by Globe Liquor Company itself to act as the clearing house for this payment.

All the documents were in order.

My folks got their $1,012, and the rest of the money went to Mexico.

Now, this tequila was distilled by a distiller named Francis Rubio, of Mexico.

The shipper, however, was a man by the name of Gonzalo A. Larrea, also in Mexico.

The original order that Mr. Lazarus gave Mr. Todes was not a contract. You will see it in the evidence. It was nothing more than a request and offer—we offer to buy so much tequila at such and such a price.

Now, before Globe would be liable under this transaction all the documents from the Mexican shipper would have to be here available for inspection by Globe or by its agent, or the Chase National Bank.

So before they let loose of their money they had the full opportunity to see that all the title papers and 115 documents were in order.

The merchandise, which my clients never saw to this day, was delivered in bond.

The Government people came to inspect it.

There are 9,000 bottles for 750 cases.

There are 12 bottles to a case.

The Government inspectors took only forty-eight bottles.

And out of those forty-eight bottles, five bottles showed the presence of foreign matter—loose glass.

And they held up the shipment.

In other words, the evidence will show only 5 bottles out of 9,000 contained this loose glass.

It is quite possible there may have been some defects in the blowing of the glass when the bottles were made. And in the jerking of the cars all the way from Mexico, all the way to Wilmington, why some of those glass particles came loose.

As soon as Globe were notified of this inspection, they notified my people, and we immediately wired Larrea.

Larrea immediately sent a wire to Globe and offered 116 at his own expense to re-filter and re-bottle the merchandise.

Globe refused that offer.

And the reason for the refusal also is obvious.

During the interim from the time the order was given on March 16, 1944, until July when this re-filter offer was made, you folks may remember that there was a distilling holiday, and the market was flooded.

So the bottom dropped out of the tequila market.

No one wanted tequila when they could get whiskey.

And because of the drop in the market Globe refused that offer to re-filter and to re-bottle.

And they refused to take the shipment because of the drop in the market.

Before Globe ever incurred the liability of one cent on this transaction, before the merchandise was even sent out of Mexico on May 10, 1944, my folks sent Globe a letter saying:

"We are enclosing herewith an affidavit of the shipper which you will need in fixing your OPA ceiling 117 prices."

Attached to that letter was the affidavit of Gonzalo A. Larrea, the name of the shipper.

So Globe knew exactly with whom they were dealing, they knew the name of the shipper and his address before the order was ever accepted. They knew who they were dealing with.

If they didn't want to deal with him, they could have withdrawn that order.

And before the shipping documents came up here on May 27, 1944, the Customs broker at Laredo, Texas, who represented Globe, sent Globe a letter saying that the merchandise was enroute, and again told them the name of the shipper, who was Gonzalo Larrea.

And when the shipping documents came they showed, as you will see when you examine them, that the sale was made directly from the shipper in Mexico to Globe Liquor Company in Wilmington, Delaware.

The name of the shipper was Gonzalo A. Larrea.

His location was given.

Consular invoices were attached—consular statements were attached, and there was a certificate by Larrea 118 showing that the merchandise was in good condition, and of good quality when he delivered it to the carrier railroad.

And going back a bit, Mr. Todes also told Mr. Lazarus—and he is the man that took the order originally—he told Mr. Lazarus that the order would be subject to acceptance and confirmation by the shipper in Mexico.

And that is exactly what happened, as will be shown by the documents.

The shipper shipped the merchandise and Globe accepted it.

And in this case it is unfortunate that these people who are beginners in this business advanced and paid their money. But they didn't pay it to our folks. And they knew that our folks were brokers.

Under the circumstances we did everything that anyone could have done to straighten out the transaction.

After the trouble started Mr. San Roman took it upon himself to make a trip to Mexico to try to straighten the thing out. But Mr. Larrea evidently didn't want to bother with it. He made one offer to refilter and re-bottle the merchandise but it was rejected.

119 I think you will find the reason that Globe didn't go through with this transaction is that the market dropped off and they found it very unprofitable.

But our folks were the disclosed agents of a disclosed shipper. And that even if the shipper's name was not known to Globe they knew and understood and agreed with Mr. Todes that they bought knowing that the sole responsibility for the quality, the delivery, or anything about the shipment would be that of the shipper in Mexico, and not Mr. San Roman and his wife here in Chicago.

By the Court: Do you want to put a witness on tonight?

By Mr. Heineman: Whatever is convenient for your Honor.

By the Court: I usually adjourn at four-thirty and it is about that now, you see.

By Mr. Heineman: I think perhaps with so short a time remaining it might be more convenient for the jury, to give them the connected story in the morning.

By the Court: Very well.

120 I have a first call of cases at ten o'clock.

Accordingly, you gentlemen, and the jury may come in at ten-thirty.

And let me say to you ladies and gentlemen of the jury, do not discuss this case with anyone, nor permit anyone to discuss it with you. If anyone attempts to communicate with you about the case, report that fact at once to the court. You will not discuss the case amongst yourselves until finally it is submitted to you for decision at the close of the case.

Report here tomorrow morning promptly at ten-thirty.

And Thereupon, the Plaintiff, to Maintain the Issues in its Behalf, Introduced the Following Evidence:—

MORTON L. LAZARUS, called as a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, having been first duly sworn by the Court, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Heineman.

Q. Will you state your full name, please? A. Morton L. Lazarus.

By the Court: I did not get that.

By the Witness: Morton L. Lazarus.

By Mr. Heineman: Q. Spell your last name.

A. (Spelling) L-a-z-a-r-us.

By the Court: Morton L. Lazarus?

By the Witness: Yes, sir.

125 By Mr. Heineman: Q. Will you state your business or occupation, sir?

A. I am Vice-President of Globe Liquor Co. of Wilmington, Delaware.

Q. Will you keep your voice up so that both the jury and the Court can hear you?

A. I am Vice-President of Globe Liquor Company of Wilmington, Delaware.

Q. You are Vice-President of the Globe Liquor Company? A. Yes.

Q. For how long have you been Vice-President?

A. Eight years.

Q. What is the character of the business of the Globe Liquor Company? A. We do a jobbing business, that is we sell to the saloons and hotels and clubs—sell whole sale.

By Mr. Heineman: If the Court please, in order to save time, I think with almost no exception both counsel have examined each other's exhibits, and are familiar with them.

Again, I think almost with no exception, the authenticity of them is admitted. And accordingly we shall not go through the process of identifying them by the witness, but simply have them marked and admitted, if that is 126 satisfactory to your Honor.

By Mr. Kahn: Just show them to me singly, and we will save time on it.

By the Court: Very well.

By Mr. Heineman: Will the reporter please mark this document Plaintiff's Exhibit 1?

By Mr. Kahn: No objection.

By the Court: It may be received.

(Said document was received in evidence by the Court, and marked PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 1. Said document is as follows:—)

127 By Mr. Heineman: Q. I show you a document marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 1—

By Mr. Heineman: I would like to read Plaintiff's Exhibit 1 to the jury. It appears to be a form of order blank, and reads as follows:

Order No. _____ Date 3/16/44
M _____ International Industries
Ship to 600 So. Michigan Ave.
At Chicago
How Ship Globe Liquor Co.
Wilmington, Del.
750 Ga. 5's Tequila $10.50

(Mariachi Gold)

C.I.F. Laredo, Texas

60-day letter of credit

Import License 1-1408

Globe Liquor Co.

By: M. L. Lazarus.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Would you state in your own words, please, whether that document was signed by you on or about the date it bears?

A. That is right.

128 Q. Would you state what that is, please?

By Mr. Kahn: Objected to. It speaks for itself.

By Mr. Heineman: Very well. Counsel is quite right. I withdraw the question.

(Question withdrawn.)

By Mr. Heineman: Q. Do you recall a Mr. Gabriel Todes? A. I do.

Q. Did he call on you on or about March 16, 1944?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did he come to see you at your place of business? A. He did.

Q. Would you state the purpose of his call?

A. Well, Mr. Todes was a whiskey salesman, and a broker, and he came up and solicited me, to sell me some tequila.

Q. Did he tell you whom he was representing?

A. He said he was representing International Industries of Chicago.

Q. Did you place an order with him? A. I did.

By Mr. Kahn: I object to leading the witness. I think counsel should permit the witness just to state what the conversation was.

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: Q. Did you buy any tequila from him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time? A. Yes.

Q. Did you give any written document to show that you had purchased tequila?

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that as calling for a conclusion; there is an order in evidence that speaks for itself.

By Mr. Heineman: I think that I am entitled to ask.

By Mr. Kahn: That is one of the issues in this case, as to whether that was a binding contract.

By the Witness: Can I state what transpired?

By Mr. Kahn: Why, yes.

By Mr. Heineman: Q. Yes. A. We talked the matter over, and I gave him an order for 750 cases of 130 tequila and he said, "Confirm it by giving me a written order". So we didn't have any forms actually to confirm it, and I keep a regular salesman's order book at my desk, so I wrote him up an order for it, what I wanted, I wrote up the order, and I wrote exactly what I specified, and that is a confirmation of my order there (indicating document).

Q. And is Plaintiff's Exhibit 1 a photostatic copy of the order? A. Yes.

Q. That you wrote, and that you have just described?

A. That is right.

By Mr. Heineman: Will you mark this Plaintiff's Exhibit 2?

(Document marked as directed.)

By Mr. Heineman: Q. The reporter has marked as Plaintiff's Exhibit 2 what purports to be a letter from Mr. Todes to Mr. Lazarus, at the Globe Liquor Company, dated March 24, 1944, which I now offer in evidence.

By Mr. Kahn: No objection.

By the Court: It may be received.

(Said letter was received in evidence by the 131 Court and marked PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 2.

Said exhibit is as follows:)

By Mr. Heineman: I should like to read Plaintiff's Exhibit 2 to the jury, if I may. It is on the letterhead of

GABRIEL H. TODES

903 Lake Drive

Baltimore 17, Maryland

March 24, 1944

Mr. Morton Lazarus,
Globe Liquor Company,
18th and Market Streets,
Wilmington, Delaware.

Dear Mr. Lazarus:

This will confirm our telephone conversation of this morning relative to your order of Mariachi Tequila Gold, wherein the price for the Gold is $10.75, which is 25 cents more than the White, and which was agreeable to you.

Will you please forward to me your confirmation on this price, as I have already advised International Industries to cable your order to Mexico.

Please execute your letter of credit exactly in accordance with the form which I left with you, with the 133 exception of changing the price from $10.50 to $10.75, and substituting your own customs broker in the place of Jovita Perez, if you so desire.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank you again for your patronage.

Kindest regards,

(Signed) Gabriel H. Todes

cc: International Industries.

By Mr. Heineman: If the Court please, there is a further stipulation that counsel have made, prior to the commencement of this proceeding:

Certain of these letters show that carbon copies have been dispatched to various other persons. It is stipulated that the carbon copies were sent to the companies or persons shown by the exhibits at or about the date or dates of the exhibits, and were received within a few days thereafter, in the ordinary course of mail.

134 By the Court: Very well.

By Mr. Heineman: Q. Mr. Lazarus, Plaintiff's Exhibit 2, the letter which I have just read to the jury, refers to a telephone conversation, in which the price was increased from $10.50 to $10.75. Would you state what happened, please? A. Well, I think the usual tequila is white, and we didn't care particularly about it being white, and we wanted the colored. It is colored by some process, and they charge 25 cents a case extra for the color. And we specified the colored instead of the other.

By Mr. Heineman: Will the reporter please mark this Plaintiff's Exhibit 3.

(Said document was accordingly marked PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 3, as directed.)

By Mr. Heineman: Q. The reporter has marked as Plaintiff's Exhibit 3 a copy of a letter from Mr. Lazarus, Vice-President of the Globe Liquor Company, to Mr. Gabriel H. Todes, dated March 27, 1944, which I now offer as Plaintiff's Exhibit 3.

By Mr. Kahn: No objection.

135 By the Court: It may be received.

(Said document was received in evidence by the Court, and marked PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 3.
Said exhibit is as follows:—)

136 By Mr. Heineman: I should like to read this letter to the jury.

March 27, 1944

Mr. Gabriel H. Todes,
903 Lake Drive,
Baltimore, 17, Maryland.

Dear Gabe:

This confirms our order placed with you last week for 750 cases of Mariachi Tequila Gold at $10.75 f.o.b. Laredo, Texas. We have put through the letter of credit in accordance with the specimen you left here, but I changed to Tequila where you had the word Vodka.

Be sure to instruct the, International Industries that these cases cannot come into Delaware without the Delaware State stickers which will be sent to any address that is specified when they notify us that the shipment is ready to come forward.

These stickers are only sent after we have paid the state tax, so that you should wire us in ample time for us to pay the tax and have these stickers forwarded—
137 one to be put on each case.

Trusting that this is clear to you and with kind personal regards,

Very truly yours,
Globe Liquor Co., Inc.
s/ Morton Lazarus,
Vice President.

ML:MS

By Mr. Heineman: Would you state whether Plaintiff's Exhibit 3 was a letter directed by you to Mr. Todes in response to his letter to you, which has been introduced in evidence as Plaintiff's Exhibit 2? A. Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: That is admitted.

By Mr. Heineman: Q. Mr. Lazarus, Plaintiff's Exhibits 2 and 3 refer to a letter of credit: Did the Globe Liquor Co. obtain such a letter of credit? A. Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: That is all admitted, if you will show me that and the other.

138 By Mr. Heineman: If counsel will please permit, I am very anxious to expedite this.

By Mr. Kahn: All documents that we have looked at are admitted. Just produce them, and one glance at them will suffice if they are in.

By Mr. Heineman: I am going to have to ask counsel to permit me to try this case in my own fashion, your Honor. I will do my best to expedite it.

Will the reporter please mark this Plaintiff's Exhibit 4.

(Said document was marked PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 4, as directed.)

By Mr. Kahn: No objection to the admission of Plaintiff's Exhibit 4.

By Mr. Heineman: I offer Plaintiff's Exhibit 4 in evidence.

By the Court: Very well. It may be received.

(Said document was received in evidence by the Court, and marked PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 4. Said exhibit is as follows:—)

139 By Mr. Heineman: I don't think the record shows what it is.

I offer as Plaintiff's Exhibit 4 letter of credit dated March 29, 1944, by the Chase National Bank, payable to International Industries.

By Mr. Kahn: Does it say "or assigns" there?

By Mr. Heineman: Beneficiaries.

By Mr. Heineman: This is the letter of credit which I should like to read to you. It is in evidence as Plaintiff's Exhibit 4.

THE CHASE NATIONAL BANK OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK,

Pine Street Corner of Nassau,
New York.

Irrevocable Commercial Letter of Credit

Cable address Chasebank, New York,

Gentlemen:

We hereby authorize you to draw on The Chase National Bank, New York by order of Wilmington Trust Company, Wilmington, Delaware, and for account of 140 Globe Liquor Co., Inc., up to an aggregate amount of Eight Thousand Sixtytwo Dollars and Fifty cents (U. S. Currency) available by your drafts at sight for full invoice value, payable at First National Bank of Chicago, Chicago, Illinois Accompanied by: Mexican Shippers'

Commercial Invoice in triplicate, showing "750 cases of Tequila (Gold color) at $10.75 per case, CIF Laredo, Texas" Consular invoice in duplicate Insurance certificate Original bill of lading issued to order of Mexican Shipper blank endorsed evidencing shipment of 750 cases of Tequila to Laredo, Texas. Partial shipments are not permitted. Of the above documents the original consular invoice and original bill of lading are to be forwarded by the negotiating bank direct to Jovita Perez, 112 Convent Ave., Laredo, Texas. Certificate to this effect and the remaining documents are to accompany the draft. This credit may be assigned provided the assignee is a person, firm or corporation in whose favor the issuance of this credit is permissible under the Trading With the Enemy Act of the U. S. A. and Executive Orders and drafts must be drawn and negotiated not later than May 28, 1944.

Each draft must state that it is "drawn under letter -141 of credit of The Chase National Bank, New York, No. 25668 dated March 29, 1944," and the amount endorsed on this letter of credit.

We hereby agree with the drawers, endorsers, and bona fide holders of all drafts drawn under and in compliance with the terms of this credit, that such drafts will be duly honored upon presentation to the drawee.

"Regulations issued thereunder. Should drafts under this credit be drawn by assignee they must be accompanied by your letter of assignment.

Yours very truly,

Second Vice President Assistant Cashier

Assistant Manager, Foreign Department

Non-Negotiable Copy

By Mr. Heineman: If the Court please, I have asked someone from the First National Bank to come over to testify with respect to letters of credit. I should like the indulgence of counsel to put him on the stand. He is 142 a busy man, and I would like to put him on.

By the Court: Any objection?

By Mr. Kahn: None at all. You should have put him on first.

By Mr. Heineman: I would appreciate it if counsel would refrain from those comments.

By Mr. Kahn: Put him on, by all means.

(The witness Morton L. Lazarus was thereupon temporarily withdrawn.)

143 By Mr. Heineman: Would you take the stand, Mr. Tedford?

FRED B. TEDFORD, called as a witness on behalf of plaintiff, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Heineman.

Q. Will you state your name, please? A. Fred B. Tedford.

Q. Will you spell that for the reporter? A. (Spelling) T-e-d-f-o-r-d.

Q. What is your business or occupation? A. I am a banker.

Q. At what bank? A. First National Bank.

Q. How long have you been connected with the First National Bank? A. Since February of 1929.

Q. And were you a banker before that? A. I was.

Q. Will you state where? A. I was in several 144 banks; I was with the Union Trust Company before that.

Q. I think that is sufficient. In what department of the First National Bank are you employed? A. Foreign Banking Department.

Q. Does that banking department deal with letters of credit? A. It does.

Q. Do you in the ordinary course of your business each day, or from day to day deal with letters of credit?

A. We do.

Q. And do you personally? A. I do.

Q. And are you familiar with the practices followed with respect to letters of credit, and in particular with respect to the practices followed by the First National Bank of Chicago? A. I am.

Q. I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 4, would you state if you have ever seen that before? A. You mean this?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, I did, I saw it this morning. 145

Q. Will you state where and when for the first time? A. You showed it to me this morning just before coming into the court room.

Q. Would you state what the practice of the First National Bank would be, oh, say, in 1944, with respect to the dates—

By Mr. Heineman: Withdraw that question.

(Question withdrawn.)

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Would you state what functions the First National Bank of Chicago would perform when a letter of credit like that, or a similar letter of credit was presented to the First National Bank of Chicago for payment?

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that, for the following reasons:

The evidence that should be submitted was what was actually done. If there is someone else at the bank that actually handled this transaction, I am going to produce him, as I have told counsel. And I don't think the witness should be permitted to testify what was the custom and practice. The thing sought is what actually did occur 146 in this particular transaction, and that is susceptible of proof.

By Mr. Heineman: If the Court please, counsel on his opening statement made several statements with respect to the functions performed by the Bank in connection with letters of credit.

A letter of credit, as your Honor knows, is a complicated banking transaction. I know it is difficult for me to understand, and I have studied it somewhat. I would like this witness, who is qualified, as an expert, to explain the practice and custom with respect to letters of credit. And I think that that is proper evidence.

By Mr. Kahn: If your Honor please, there is no expert testimony required on an ordinary banking transaction with a letter of credit.

And as I stated heretofore, there is one of the employees of the bank who actually handled this particular Globe Liquor Company transaction with the accompanying letter of credit issued by the Chase National Bank. He is available to testify, and will tell exactly what did happen, and 147 what the bank's functions were in this particular transaction. It does not require an expert; nothing complicated, nothing peculiar, nothing unusual about it.

By Mr. Heineman: Our clients were in Wilmington, Delaware. The evidence has shown that Mr. Lazarus of our client, was directed to conform to the letter of credit, which they followed meticulously.

Our clients have no idea what transpired at the First National Bank of Chicago when this letter of credit was cashed.

By Mr. Kahn: I object to counsel testifying.

By Mr. Heineman: They are in Wilmington, Delaware, and they don't know—

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that, to the testimony of counsel.

By Mr. Heineman: If Mr. Kahn is going to put a witness on, whom I don't know, and with whose testimony I am not familiar, who is going to testify that they did something that is in accord with their ordinary practice and custom—

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that.

By Mr. Heineman: (Continuing)—I am entitled to show what that particular custom and practice was.
148 By the Court Objection overruled.

By Mr. Heineman: Thank you. Would you read the question?

(The pending question as above recorded was read by the reporter, as follows:

“Q. Would you state what functions the First National Bank of Chicago would perform when a letter of credit like that, or a similar letter of credit was presented to the First National Bank of Chicago for payment?”)

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. (Continuing) Upon the presentation of a draft under that letter of credit, would you state what the First National Bank would do, or would have done in the summer of 1944, with respect to the payment of that draft under that letter of credit, and letters of credit of that kind?

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that for the reasons heretofore given to similar questions.

By the Court: Do you have a uniform custom, Mr. Witness?

By the Witness: Yes, there is.

149 By The Court: You may tell us what it was in the summer of 1944.

By The Witness: When the draft is presented—

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Speak up so the jury can hear you. A. I say, when the draft is presented, the documents which are attached to the draft are checked to see whether or not they conform to the conditions outlined in the credit. If they do conform strictly with the conditions outlined in the credit the draft is paid.

Q. The First National Bank would pay the draft at once? A. Yes.

Q. Would it send the documents to the Chase National Bank in New York, or to Wilmington, Delaware, before payment? A. Before payment?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. Now, referring to this particular letter of credit, Exhibit 4, would you state what the conditions of that letter of credit were?

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that. It speaks for itself 150 in the very letter of credit.

By Mr. Heineman: I am asking him to state in order—

By The Court: Let me see it.

(Document handed to the Court.)

By Mr. Heineman: I am not asking him to state the contents.

By Mr. Kahn: It requires a draft.

By Mr. Heineman: I am asking him to state merely what it says.

By Mr. Kahn: I can read. It requires a draft drawn on the Chase National Bank. The draft was paid in New York under the terms of that particular letter of credit.

By The Court: It is not plain to me. I will let the witness state.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. State what the conditions of that particular letter of credit were, please. A. I don't think I understand your question.

Q. You have stated that the bank upon presentation of a draft would pay that draft if the conditions of the letter of credit were met; is that correct? A. Can I ask what you mean by "payment?" We would give them 151 the money.

Q. That is what I mean.

A. We don't consider that final payment, though. The draft is drawn on the Chase National Bank of New York, and that is where it is payable.

Q. When presented to the First National Bank, who is the beneficiary of this letter of credit? A. The beneficiary of this letter of credit is the International Industries.

By Mr. Kahn: If the Court please, the document itself shows that the letter of credit may be assigned.

By The Witness: Right.

By Mr. Kahn: And it was assigned. So the question was, I think, unfair.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Are you familiar with letters of credit—you have testified that you are—are you not? A. Yes.

Q. May I ask you again, who is the beneficiary of that letter of credit? A. The beneficiary of that letter of credit is the International Industries, if it has not been assigned.

Q. And if it has been assigned? A. Then the assignee.

Q. Thank you. If the beneficiary of that letter of credit, whoever that may be, presented, or presents a draft on the First National Bank, under this letter of credit, or letters of credit comparable to it, does the First National Bank pay the money to the person presenting the draft if the conditions of the letter of credit are met? A. Yes, we do.

By Mr. Kahn: Be plain! Did you say that the First National pays it? That is what I understood you to say—just the other way around.

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to. Counsel will have full opportunity to cross examine.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. You understood my question? A. I think I did.

By Mr. Heineman: Will you read the question so that there will be no confusion?

(The record as above recorded was read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Kahn: I want to register a further objection, that the evidence as to what actually happened in this case is available, which is different.

By The Court: Overruled.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. You have heard the question, and you heard the answer, and that was the correct answer to that question? A. Yes.

Q. Would you state the conditions of that letter of credit?

By Mr. Kahn: Objected to, the document speaks for itself.

By The Court: Overruled.

By The Witness: You mean, you want me to read the whole credit?

By The Court: Just tell us.

By The Witness: The conditions constitute the whole credit.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. If a draft under this letter of credit had been presented to you as a banker at the First National Bank, in the Foreign Department, what would you have done to satisfy yourself whether you should pay the money 154 to the man presenting it?

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that. There is actual evidence as to what happened.

By The Court: Overruled.

By Mr. Kahn: I am merely stating—

By The Witness:

A. We would first examine the draft to see whether or not the draft was drawn in proper form and in accordance with the terms of the credit. Then we would proceed to examine the documents attached to that draft to determine whether or not those documents conformed to the conditions of the credit.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. And under this letter of credit what documents would you have looked for? A. We would have looked for a Mexican commercial invoice in triplicate showing 750 cases Tequila gold color at $10.75 per case cif Laredo, Texas; consular invoice in triplicate; insurance certificate; original bill of lading issued to the original shipper with blank endorsement.

Q. Those are the documents you would have looked for? A. Those are the documents that we would have looked for.

155 Q. Are there any other things you would do before paying the money to whoever presented the draft under this letter of credit, if it had been presented to you in 1944? A. None that I think of at the moment.

Q. That is all you would have done. Is that correct?

A. I think so.

Q. Would you have inquired who was the owner of the Tequila in question? A. No, we would not.

Q. Would you have made any inquiry into the terms of the contract between the buyer and seller? A. We would not.

Q. Would you even have determined whether or not the documents attached to the draft were genuine?

A. We would not.

By Mr. Heineman: No further questions.

156

Cross Examination by Mr. Kahn.

Q. Mr. Tedford, you personally did not handle this Globe Liquor Company transaction, did you?

A. No, I did not.

Q. When was the first time you ever heard about the transaction? A. I am not sure. I probably heard about it more or less at the time; but the first time it came to my particular attention was this morning.

Q. Mr. Tedford, did the bank have a different procedure on shipments originating from Mexico during the spring and summer of 1944 than what you have testified to?

By The Witness: I didn't get that question.

By Mr. Kahn: Read it.

(The pending question as above recorded was read by the reporter.)

By The Witness:

A. No, it did not.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Isn't it a fact that on shipments originating from Mexico, which were to be paid eventually on a letter of credit issued by an eastern bank, that when the documents would come from Mexico, like the shipper's invoice and the customers invoice and the like, you would take the draft and all those papers and send them east to the Chase National Bank? A. Certainly.

Q. That was the procedure? A. Absolutely.

Q. That was the uniform custom of the bank? A. Yes.

Q. That particular letter of credit you have there provides for a draft to be drawn on the Chase National Bank, doesn't it? A. It does.

Q. In other words, the First National Bank of Chicago itself did not advance its funds to pay the invoice price, but it called on Chase to do it, didn't they—if you can tell from that letter of credit? A. I can't tell from this letter of credit.

Q. But what you have said about the custom on Mexican invoices and shipments previously was your custom?

A. We would do it if requested.

Q. You don't know what happened in this particular case? A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. Can you tell to whom the letter of credit was assigned? A. I can't.

By Mr. Heineman: If it was assigned.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Do you know whether it was assigned? A. I do not.

Q. You have seen the term "shipper's invoice" frequently in letters of credit, haven't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Doesn't that mean that the invoice—which is the bill in common language—for the merchandise in question is the invoice of the shipper in Mexico? A. It is.

Q. And that the assignee's or buyer's name is usually inserted in these Mexican shipper's invoices? A. It is.

Q. And that the consular invoice in duplicate is also a bill or invoice required by the United States consular regulations, which also contains the name of the shipper in Mexico and the name of the buyer in the United States? A. That is true.

159 Q. And you would give the same answer as to the insurance certificate, in the name of the shipper in Mexico, which would be on the insurance certificate plus the name of the buyer in the United States which would appear thereon? A. The name of the shipper would probably show, but not necessarily the buyer.

Q. The original bill of lading issued to order of the Mexican shipper, blank endorsed, doesn't that mean that the shipper in Mexico delivers the tequila to the railroad or other carrier in Mexico, and as a bill of lading it is evidence of the goods being in the possession of the carrier, and made out and issued to the shipper—the Mexican shipper, and that the Mexican shipper in turn takes that bill of lading and endorses it on the back? A. That is right.

By Mr. Kahn: That is all.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Heineman.

Q. Mr. Tedford, I think perhaps some little confusion has become introduced into your testimony—

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that.

160 By Mr. Heineman:

Q. (Continuing)—did you mean to—

By The Court: Overruled.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. (Continuing)—to suggest that in the summer of 1944 when a letter of credit was presented—I mean when a draft was presented under this letter of credit, that the First National Bank did not make the funds available at once to the person presenting it? A. Sometimes we do and sometimes we don't; but in a case like this we would be perfectly willing to give it to them on the strength of the Chase National Bank.

Q. And so long as the conditions of the credit were complied with? A. Exactly.

Q. Then you would honor the draft and collect the money from the Chase National Bank? A. We would.

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that question and answer as being in the speculative, and not as to what actually happened.

By The Court: Overruled.

161 By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Is it your uniform practice to act as a paying agent for other banks on letters of credit?

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that. The witness answered "in some cases we do and in some cases we don't," it depends on the request of the shipper.

By Mr. Heineman: I am sorry. I don't think counsel understood the question.

By The Court: I understood it perfectly. Overruled.

By Mr. Heineman: Will you answer that question?

By The Witness: State it again, please.

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Where you act as the paying agent for another bank under a letter of credit, then you uniformly collect the funds that you pay from the bank issuing the credit, don't you?

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that. There is no evidence that the First National Bank acted as the paying agent. The letter itself shows that the First National merely acted as the middle man or clearing house in the 162 whole transaction.

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to. The letter of credit says, "This letter of credit is payable at the First National Bank."

By Mr. Kahn: That doesn't mean they pay it. It is payable at the First National Bank.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Do you understand what I mean when I say "paying agent?" A. I am not so sure I do.

Q. Your bank acts as paying agent in numbers of situations, does it not? A. Yes, we do.

Q. And your bank has frequent occasion, does it not, to pay for the accounts of other banks. A. We do.

Q. When you are presented with a letter of credit from the Chase National Bank, such as this one, for example, with the draft and the necessary documents, would you pay it if the draft were presented to you?

By Mr. Kahn: Objected to as speculative. It assumes things that are not in evidence; and assumes a situation which is not justified by the letter of credit.

163 By The Court: Overruled.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Would you answer that question? A. We don't consider that really paying the draft; we are simply advancing the money.

Q. For whom? A. For the Chase National Bank.

Q. But you are advancing the money at once for the account of the Chase National Bank? A. We would do so if requested.

By Mr. Heineman: No further questions.

Recross Examination by Mr. Kahn.

Q. I understand you to say, Mr. Tedford, a few moments ago that you would advance the First National's funds if requested? A. Yes.

Q. You don't know what happened in this particular case? A. I do not.

By Mr. Kahn: That is all.

By Mr. Heineman: No further questions.

(Witness excused.)

164 By Mr. Heineman: Will you resume the stand please, Mr. Lazarus.

MORTON L. LAZARUS, a witness heretofore called on behalf of the plaintiff, having been heretofore first duly sworn, resumed the stand and further testified as follows:

Direct Examination (Con'd) by Mr. Heineman.

Q. You are the same Morton L. Lazarus who has heretofore been sworn and testified? A. I am.

By Mr. Kahn: Will you repeat that, please?

(Record read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Heineman: Will you mark these Plaintiff's Exhibits 5, 6 and 7, please?

(Said documents were marked, respectively, PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBITS 5, 6, and 7, as directed.)

By Mr. Heineman: I offer as Plaintiff's Exhibit 5 a letter from International Industries to Globe Liquor Co., dated April 1, 1944.

And I offer as Plaintiff's Exhibit 6 a revised form 165 of letter of credit which is attached to Plaintiff's Exhibit 5.

And I offer as Plaintiff's Exhibit 7 a telegram from International Industries to Globe Liquor Co., dated April 10, 1944.

By Mr. Kahn: No objection to all three.

By The Court: They may be received.

(Said documents were received in evidence by the Court and marked, respectively, PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBITS 5, 6 and 7. Said exhibits are, respectively, as follows—)

166 By Mr. Heineman: Plaintiff's Exhibit 5 is a letter from International Industries dated April 1, 1944, to Globe Liquor Company, Inc., Wilmington, Delaware.

International Industries,

Chicago 5, Illinois, U. S. A.
Telephone Harrison 3266.

April 1, 1944.

Globe Liquor Company, Inc.,
Wilmington, Delaware,

Gentlemen:

We are sending herewith copy of letter addressed to the Wilmington Trust Company of Wilmington, Delaware in which we acknowledge receipt of L/C No. 25668 in the amount of $8,062.50.

By Mr. Heineman: Is it stipulated, Mr. Kahn, that that reference is to Plaintiff's Exhibit 4, which has just been put in evidence, the letter of credit?

By Mr. Kahn: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: (Reading continued) "We are also sending copy of L/C as established by The Chase National Bank of the City of New York by order of Wilmington Trust Co., "Likewise, we are sending a revised form of the credit as it should be. You will note that we have made two or three changes as follows:

"1. Mexican shipper's commercial invoice in triplicate showing 750 cases Mexican Tequila (Gold Color) at $10.75 per case, Inbond cif Laredo, Texas. We are thus interpolating the words inbond which do not appear on the original letter of credit.

"2. Since yours represents only one-half of the entire car of 1,500 cases, the original bill of lading will have to be modified to indicate that the bill of lading will cover the entire lot of 1,500 cases and we have changed the wording of the original credit to read as follows: Original bill of lading, issued to order Mexican shipper, blank endorsed, evidencing shipment of 1,500 cases of Tequila to Laredo, Texas, it being understood that the balance of 750 cases represents a separate shipment included in the same car and destined for another consignee.

"With the above changes referred to, the credit in our opinion would be in order.

"Monday we expect to have additional labels from 168 Mexico and we will send them to you for registration.

Yours very truly,

International Industries,

F. San Roman,

Managing-Director.

F. San Roman: pm.

enc. cc.: G. H. Todes."

By Mr. Heineman: In order to avoid the necessity of reading in the revised form of credit, Mr. Kahn, will you stipulate that there was inclosed the revised form which has been introduced as Plaintiff's Exhibit 6, which forms a part of this exhibit which I have just read into the record?

By Mr. Kahn: Just add that at the beginning of Plaintiff's Exhibit 6, that it is addressed to "International Industries or Assigns."

By Mr. Heineman: Oh, yes, there is that additional change.

By Mr. Kahn: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: That is right. Will you stipulate?

169 By Mr. Kahn: Yes, with that change.

By Mr. Heineman: It is stipulated that the enclosure with this letter, which is the letter which I have just read, is this "revised form". I think it unnecessary to read that.

Now, Plaintiff's Exhibit 7 is a telegram from International Industries to Globe Liquor Company, Wilmington, Delaware.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Was this letter of credit amended in accordance with this last request? A. It was.

By Mr. Heineman: Mr. Reporter, will you please mark these as Plaintiff's Exhibits 8 and 9?

(Documents marked, respectively, PLAIN-TIFF'S EXHIBITS 8 and 9, as directed.)

By Mr. Heineman: If the Court please, I offer as Plaintiff's Exhibit 8 what purports to be a notice of exclusion from the United States Federal Security Agency, Food and Drug Administration, of the tequila in question, by the Food and Drug Administration of the United States Government, upon the grounds—

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that. You can just identify it for us in the presence of the jury. It is dated July 12, 1944. I object to the admissibility of the document. And I should like to be heard a few minutes on it.

By the Court: All right, step into the jury room, ladies and gentlemen.

(Thereupon the jury retired from the court room, 171 and the following proceedings were had out of the presence and hearing of the jury:—)

By Mr. Heineman: Since I assume that your objection also goes to Plaintiff's Exhibit 9, why don't you argue both of these together? Plaintiff's Exhibit 8 was received first by the defendants, in point of time.

By Mr. Kahn: Now, as to Plaintiff's Exhibit 8 for identification, this notice is addressed to John A. Steer & Co., whom I assume were acting for the Globe Liquor Company.

If that document is admitted in evidence, it may be highly prejudicial to the defendants. And I think it should be excluded as an exhibit, for the following reasons:

Towards the bottom of the document after "Description of Shipment", your Honor will find that the document states that there were 9,000 bottles in the shipment: "Sample taken 7-11-44 (3 bots.)".

On that showing, your Honor, in a civil suit between two individuals no person in an official capacity or otherwise could tell that an examination of three bottles 172 from a shipment of 9,000 reflects the physical condition of the entire 9,000 bottles.

I have authorities on that. I have prepared a brief, and I will give counsel a copy of the brief, exhibiting these various points which I would like to submit to the Court as we go along. (Handing document to the Court.)

If your Honor will please turn to page 4 of this memorandum of points and authorities, which cites 55 Corpus Juris 4. c and three authorities.

The proof that only a few units of the entire shipment is inferior did not justify the plaintiff in rejecting the entire shipment.

Then I submitted to your Honor the other day the International Remedy v. Hyde case, that findings and conclusions of the Department of Agriculture respecting adulteration are merely tentative and not binding; that the burden of proof is on the buyer to prove that the merchandise is inferior.

I say on the showing in that paper, Plaintiff's Exhibit 8 for identification, and the authorities submitted, that that paper should be excluded, not only because it is highly prejudicial but because it is incompetent to prove one of the basic burdens of the plaintiff in this case, that a substantial part of the 9,000 bottles contained foreign matter justifying the rejection of the entire shipment.

By Mr. Heineman: May I be heard, your Honor?

By Mr. Kahn: Now, as to Plaintiff's Exhibit 9 for identification—

By Mr. Heineman: Oh, I beg your pardon.

By Mr. Kahn: That of course is highly prejudicial. That follows and is based on Plaintiff's Exhibit 8 for identification. Plaintiff's Exhibit 9 for identification is highly prejudicial, and would be, to the rights of my client before the jury.

By Mr. Heineman: I propose to follow these two with that affidavit, your Honor, that you will recall you examined the other day, showing exactly what was done.

It seems to me that what Mr. Kahn argues may properly be a matter of argument by him to the jury.

But the fact remains that the plaintiff here had tequila shipped to them in Wilmington. The next thing they knew, they received in the ordinary course of business, without any inquiry or solicitation by them, an official notice from the Government of the United States, in which it is stated,

"We have determined that the tequila in question is adulterated as containing glass and foreign particles, to-wit, ground glass."

That is clearly competent evidence of what the United States thought of that shipment.

Whether there are different legal consequences flowing from that, or whatever inference may be drawn from that, may be a matter of judgment for the jury if this matter gets to the jury. And it seems to me that as a matter of competent evidence it is clearly relevant and competent.

It shows the detention by the United States. It shows that the merchandise was never delivered. And it shows the reasons that the United States had for detaining the merchandise.

175 I should say that the cases which counsel cites are not cases involving forcible detention by the United States. They are sales cases in which the merchandise is shipped directly to the buyer. The buyer makes a quick sampling and finds out that the quality is not up to standard of sample or warranty as the case may be, and rejects it.

By the Court: Let me see the order.

By Mr. Kahn: If counsel will produce one case—

By the Court: No, your order, your papers which show the order.

By Mr. Heineman: I am sorry. (Documents handed to the Court).

By Mr. Kahn: If counsel will produce one case that a buyer can reject payment of an entire shipment on an examination of a few units by a government agency, I will withdraw my objection.

By Mr. Heineman: The question is not whether we rejected. We never had an opportunity to reject it. The Government would never deliver it.

176 The contract is made up of these three documents (handing documents to the Court).

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that, if the Court please. That is counsel testifying.

By Mr. Heineman: We will show it.

By Mr. Kahn: That is not so.

By Mr. Heineman: Wait until we get up to that point.

By Mr. Kahn: Don't be assuming things as you go along.

By the Court: What does "CIF" mean?

By Mr. Heineman: Cost, insurance and freight.

By Mr. Kahn: At Laredo, Texas.

By Mr. Heineman: If your Honor would examine the affidavit, you will note that what was done was that they took four cases out of a shipment of a hundred and fifty, and examined them.

By Mr. Kahn: Forty-eight bottles.

By Mr. Heineman: That is four cases, forty-eight bottles.

By Mr. Kahn: Forty-eight bottles.

By Mr. Heineman: May I make a statement to the Court, please?

These four cases composed of forty-eight bottles 177 were sampled and examined—forty-eight bottles.

They found that five had foreign particles. Whereupon they took three to the laboratory to determine what those foreign particles were. And they found that the three contained glass.

In point of fact these five bottles were chosen at random out of forty-eight bottles. There were 750 cases. And if that same proportion were maintained throughout the 9,000 bottles it would represent better than ten percent of the entire shipment which were adulterated.

And there is one more rather important point: We have put in the request of the defendant that the letter of credit be modified to show that the shipment was in bond; hence what it means is that they are not in the country at all until inspected and passed by the Food and Drug Administration.

By Mr. Kahn: If that is so, then your people ought to sue some bank here if they paid the money.

178 By Mr. Heineman: Let us confine ourselves to this. I am giving your Honor the picture. And I am just giving you another defense.

By Mr. Kahn: You are not giving me another defense. But if what counsel says is so, I don't know, then some bank is at fault, if they paid on this letter of credit before it cleared the bond.

By Mr. Heineman: The letter of credit specified the conditions which were set forth by your client. And your banker testified that they pay according to the conditions; they do not even look to see if the documents are true documents. They look to see if they are attached to the draft, if the documents are attached as specified.

The defendants knew that this tequila must pass the test of the Food and Drug Administration.

But apart from any of this which in my judgment is pretty much controlling right here, the fact remains that these notices were received from the United States Government saying, "We are not going to give you the 179 merchandise, for the following reasons". And it seems to me that in a suit like this they are clearly competent.

By the Court: I think they are admissible. Objection overruled. Bring in the jury.

(Thereupon the jury returned to the court room, and the following further proceedings were had in the presence and hearing of the jury:—)

By Mr. Heineman: I have offered Plaintiff's Exhibit 8. I now offer Plaintiff's Exhibit 9, your Honor.

By the Court: They may be received.

(Said documents were received in evidence by the Court, and marked, respectively, PLAIN-TIFF'S EXHIBITS 8 and 9. Said exhibits are respectively as follows:—)

180 By Mr. Heineman:

Q. I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 8, which has just been admitted in evidence, and which appears to be a document—

By Mr. Kahn: I admit that they received it.

By Mr. Heineman: You admit that?

By Mr. Kahn: Of course. No question about it.

By Mr. Heineman: I will read Plaintiff's Exhibit 8 to the jury. It is a document entitled Federal Security Agency Food and Drug Administration 12-4 U. S. Customhouse, Phila-6, Pa. July 12, 1944" Counsel has admitted that the Globe Liquor Company received this.

By Mr. Kahn: The last two paragraphs on the first page, and the last paragraph on the second page. The rest of it is unobjectionable. (Handing document to the Court.)

By the Court: The last two paragraphs on the first page, and the last paragraph on the second page, is that it?

By Mr. Kahn: The last two paragraphs on the first page, and the last paragraph on the second page.

By the Court: Objection overruled. It may be 186 received.

(Said document was received in evidence by the Court and marked PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 10. Said exhibit is as follows:—)

187 By Mr. Heineman: I will read you Plaintiff's Exhibit 10. It is an affidavit by Robert C. Stanfill, Chief, Philadelphia Station, Federal Security Agency, Food and Drug Administration.

I will pass the formal parts, and commence with the affidavit:

"I am an employee of the United States Government and I am Chief of the Philadelphia Station of the Food and Drug Administration of the Federal Security Agency, which Agency is charged with the enforcement of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act; that records on file in the said Food and Drug Administration, and which I have examined, show that a duly authorized wharf examiner of the Food and Drug Administration examined in possession of a United States bonded warehouse in Wilmington, Del., and collected from the bonded warehouse samples labeled, in part, as follows:

Sample Laboratory No. P-5300

Product Tequila

Label "Mariachi Tequila Imported Prod. of Mexico 100 proof 4/5 quart."

188 "That the shipment examined and sampled under No. P-5300 was from a lot of 750 cases of 12 bottles each covered by Entry WH-LA (Wilmington) Tequila 750 cs. (9000 bottles) S M, 1/750 from Gonzalo A. Larrea, S de R. L. Mexico:

"That on July 11, 1944, a representative of the Philadelphia Station of the Food and Drug Administration examined four cases or 48 bottles, the four cases having been taken at random without any selection;

"That in the 48 bottles examined, he found present in 5 bottles what appeared to be particles of glass;

"That he took as samples three of the 5 bottles in which glass particles appeared to be present and proceeded with them to the laboratory of Philadelphia Station of the Food and Drug Administration where examination of the particles in each of the three bottles showed the particles to be glass;

"That notice was given the importer on July 11, 1944 and that a written notice was issued on Form FD-777, Importer-Date of Hearing" on July 12, 1944, the notice of detention being sent to John A. Steer, Drexel Building, Philadelphia 6, Penna. with copies going to the 189 Collector of Customs, Philadelphia, Penna., and Deputy Collector of Customs, Wilmington, Del. The notice bore notice that testimony could be given or a written statement could be filed in writing within three days after the notice; also "description of shipment", and "results of analysis".

"It is adulterated under Section 402 (a) (1) of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act of 1938 since it contains a foreign substance dangerous to health—glass particles'";

"That no response having been received, an identical notice was sent to John A. Steer, et al, on January 2, 1945, on which was conspicuously stamped "Second and Last Notice. Shipment will be Refused Entry if you Fail to Reply";

"That no response or testimony was offered; therefore, the case was closed by this office on January 16, 1945 by an order for destruction or exportation of the goods, this order having issued on form FD-776a;

"That the procedures followed by the Food and Drug Administration were those customarily followed by Philadelphia Station under similar circumstances; and that the procedures followed were adequate to demonstrate that the shipment of Tequila is adulterated under Section 402 (a) (1) of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act of 1938 in that it contains a foreign substance which is dangerous to health: namely, glass particles.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Mr. Lazarus, did the Globe Liquor Company ever have delivered to it the 750 cases of tequila which it bought? A. No. The Government detained it.

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that; he should answer that "yes" or "no".

191 By Mr. Heineman: I think the witness should make his own answer. You don't want to stop the witness from answering, do you?

By the Court: Let him answer.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Would you answer? A. I say, the Government detained it so we had no access to it at all.

Q. Was it ever delivered it to you? A. No, sir.

By the Court: What was the answer?

(Record read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Heineman: Q. Was the letter of credit, which is in evidence as Plaintiff's Exhibit 4, ever cashed, and were the funds called for by that letter of credit paid by the Globe Liquor Company? A. They were.

Q. Did the Globe Liquor Company pay the freight for that tequila from Laredo, Texas, to Wilmington, Delaware?

By Mr. Kahn: I will admit all those items if you will just show them to me.

By Mr. Heineman: They are set forth in the 192 complaint.

May we have an off-the-record discussion for a minute, your Honor?

By the Court: We will recess at this time, Ladies and Gentlemen, until two o'clock. Be here promptly at two o'clock.

(Whereupon a recess herein was taken until 2:00 o'clock p. m. of the same day, March 13, 1946.)

By the Court: Bring in the jury.

(Thereupon the jury took their places in the jury 194 box.)

By the Court: Proceed, gentlemen.

By Mr. Heineman: If the Court please, a stipulation has been entered into between counsel for the plaintiff and counsel for the defendant as to the costs and expenses incurred and paid by the plaintiff in connection with this shipment, so that I will read those amounts into the record:

|---|------------|
| The purchase price..... | $8,062.50 |

By the Court: Very well. It has been so stipulated.

Ladies and Gentlemen, it has been stipulated between counsel for plaintiff and counsel for defendant that the plaintiff paid out these sums for the items which have been enumerated—the various sums of money which counsel has stated to you.

The purpose of this stipulation is to save the time of the Court and of the jury.

By Mr. Heineman: Will you please mark this 196 Plaintiff's Exhibit 11?

(Said document was marked PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT 11, as directed.)

By Mr. Heineman: I offer as Plaintiff's Exhibit 11, if the Court please, a letter dated July 20, 1944; addressed to International Industries, the defendant, by the plaintiff, Globe Liquor Co., Inc.

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that. It is self-serving, and was after the controversy between the parties arose.

By Mr. Heineman: The purpose of the offer is—

By Mr. Kahn: And the stipulation we just made covers that.

By Mr. Heineman: No. If the Court please, the purpose is to show demand after breach of contract.

By Mr. Kahn: I will admit demand; you don't have to prove it.

By Mr. Heineman: No, I will put the letter in.

By Mr. Kahn: I will admit that the Globe Liquor Company asked my client for the money they spent.

197 By Mr. Heineman: Will you also admit that Globe

Liquor Company not only made a timely demand for the money that they spent, but asked in addition for directions with respect to the disposition of the merchandise?

By Mr. Kahn: I will so stipulate.

By Mr. Heineman: In that case there is no occasion for me to put the exhibit in, your Honor.

May we have Exhibit 11—the number physically stricken so that our next exhibit may be Exhibit 11, your Honor?

By The Court: Yes.

(Said Exhibit number '11' was thereupon physically stricken from the aforesaid document.)

By Mr. Heineman: Cross examine.

Cross Examination by Mr. Kahn.

Q. Mr. Lazarus, did you ever receive a written communication of any kind from Gonzalo A. Larrea, the shipper in Mexico, telling you, or advising you or your firm that he had accepted your order?

198 By Mr. Heineman: That is objected to unless there is some foundation in this record: It is objected to, on several grounds.

First, it goes beyond the scope of the direct;

Second, there is no foundation in this record for the statement that Gonzalo A. Larrea is the shipper.

By Mr. Kahn: I will rephrase the question.

By Mr. Heineman: I withdraw that objection. There is foundation for the fact that he is the shipper, but there is no foundation showing that he is the seller of the merchandise, other than that he is a person who shipped merchandise from Mexico.

By Mr. Kahn: I will connect that up.

By the Court: What is the question?

(The record as above recorded was read by the reporter.)

By The Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Did you ever receive a communication from the defendant, International Industries, telling you that Gonzalo A. Larrea, the shipper, had accepted your order of March 16, 1944? A. I don't recall the names after a couple of years; I would assume though that International Industries accepted the order; and if they specified who the shipper would be, I don't recall.

199 By Mr. Kahn: I move that that answer be stricken as not responsive.

Read the question.

(Record read by the reporter.)

By The Witness:

A. No, sir.

By The Court: Well, do you want to strike out the answer?

By Mr. Kahn: Yes.

By The Court: Strike it out.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Did you ever receive a communication from anyone after you gave the original order to Gabriel Todes on March 16, 1944, that the shipper, Gonzalo A. Larrea of Mexico City had accepted your original order?

By Mr. Heineman: That is objected to for the grounds stated in my previous objection.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Have you given the substance of the entire conversation you had with Mr. Gabriel Todes relative to 200 your giving him an order for 750 cases of tequila?

A. Well, the only thing I can say is just reiterate what I have said before.

Q. Was there anything else that was said between the two of you relating to the order, that you have not given?

A. Nothing of any importance.

Q. Didn't you promise to pay him a finder's commission of one dollar a case, or $750? A. Well, that is nothing unusual; that was customary.

Q. The question is, did you? A. Yes.

Q. And didn't you in fact— A. But I didn't offer it. That was his price, and I accepted his price.

Q. Didn't you in fact pay him $750? A. Yes.

Q. Or a dollar a case, as finder's commission?

A. I did.

Q. Did he show you a sample of this tequila?

A. He did not.

Q. Did you ask him for a sample? A. I did not.

201 Q. Didn't he tell you that the tequila was being shipped directly from Mexico? A. Well, naturally.

Q. Did he tell you that? A. Sure.

Q. Didn't he tell you that International Industries were not in the liquor business? A. I assumed they were brokers, I didn't know what kind they were, I assumed that they were whiskey brokers.

Q. You assumed that from what Mr. Todes told you?

A. When a man comes in selling whiskey, you assume that he is a whiskey man.

Q. A whiskey broker? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is, unless he is a distiller of nationally advertised merchandise? A. Yes.

Q. Didn't he tell you that International Industries were not in the whiskey business? A. No. I assumed that International Industries were the brokers. They didn't have to be in the whiskey business.

Q. Didn't he tell you that they didn't have an importers permit to import whiskey into the United States? A. I don't recall.

Q. You know that, don't you?

By Mr. Heineman: I object to that unless he can show that he knew it at the time.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Didn't he tell you that International Industries never had possession of the tequila? A. When you buy merchandise you don't go into all those details. You give a man an order, and you don't sit there and elaborate on their business. They are just minute details that are not of any importance, so you don't discuss it.

Q. But didn't he tell you that International Industries didn't have possession of this merchandise? A. Of course they didn't have possession, I was told this merchandise was coming from Mexico.

Q. Directly shipped to you? A. That is nothing unusual; we buy Scotch the same way, from Scotland.

Q. You are wholesalers and jobbers? A. Yes.

203 A. That is our principal business.

Q. To sell to retail stores? A. Absolutely.

Q. You also sell to wholesalers and jobbers as well? A. No.

Q. In March of 1944 there was a great demand for liquor of all sorts, was there not, in the United States?

By Mr. Heineman: That is objected to as irrelevant and going beyond the scope of the direct.

By Mr. Kahn: I will couple that up by showing that the reason for not accepting the merchandise was a drop in the market.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Did you know Mr. Gabriel Todes prior to the time he dealt with you that day? A. I did.

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to as irrelevant, and I ask that it be stricken.

By The Court: Strike it out.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Had you known him more than five years?

205 By Mr. Heineman: Objected to, on the same grounds.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Had you ever seen Mr. Todes prior to March 16, 1944?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to on the same grounds.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Have you any reason to believe that Mr. Todes is not a man of integrity?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Now, the usual mark-up in your business when you buy from a distiller, or a shipper having merchandise, is about 20 percent, is it; isn't that right? A. It is not.

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to as irrelevant, your Honor.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: And would the witness refrain from answering questions until I have had a chance to 206 make my objection known to the Court?

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. This tequila came in two colors, did it not?

A. Yes.

Q. From the description given to you? A. Yes.

Q. The white, or the plain, is one kind? A. And the gold.

Q. And the gold, which is a gold or yellow color; is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And you preferred the gold? A. That is right.

Q. Mr. Todes left a form with you, did he not, for a letter of credit? A. He left—yes.

Q. You read that form? A. I wouldn't say I did.

Q. You had an opportunity to read it? A. They are pure formalities, Mr. Kahn, there is no significance.

Q. What did you do with that form? A. I kept it until he said to execute it. Then we copied it accord-207 ing to his subsequent requirements or whatever you prefer.

Q. Didn't you take that in to your bank? A. Yes.

Q. The First National Bank of Wilmington? A. Yes.

Q. Didn't you do that when you purchased the letter of credit in this case? A. Yes.

Q. Didn't you give them that form? A. Yes, they made up the form for us.

Q. And then submitted it to you? A. Well, I possibly had to sign it.

Q. You mean the application for letter of credit?

A. Yes.

Q. You gave it to your bank, the First National Bank of Wilmington? A. The Wilmington Trust Company.

Q. Or the Wilmington Trust Company, who in turn caused the Chase National Bank in New York to issue this letter of credit?

By Mr. Heineman: Objection. I want counsel to have full latitude, but it is admitted that the letter of credit was issued, and presumably application must have been made. So I object to further questions along that line.

By Mr. Kahn: I want to show the opportunities for observing and weighing all these various conditions.

By The Court: Observing what?

By Mr. Kahn: That they had full opportunity to read them.

By The Court: They are all there. Nobody seems to seek to vary them.

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to on the grounds stated, your Honor.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Now, you received quite a number of letters from International Industries after you gave the original order to Mr. Todes?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. You never met Mr. Frank San Roman, did you?

A. Not until this week.

Q. You have checked up on him, have you not?

A. I got a Bradstreet report after I had obligated myself for that sum of money.

Q. You found he was a man bearing a good reputation?

By Mr. Heineman: Objection.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. And did you order this letter of credit after you received the credit on Mr. Frank San Roman? A. No.

By Mr. Heineman: Objection.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. This original order that you gave Mr. Todes, you took that from a scrap or a pad of forms that you had in your office? A. Yes.

Q. And everything in that paper, that original order, is in your handwriting with the exception of Mr. Todes' signature; is that right? A. I don't recall whether Todes signed it or not; the order is in my handwriting, and signature; I don't know whether Todes' name is on it or not.

Q. To refresh your recollection, I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 1; everything on there except Mr. Todes' signature is in your writing, isn't it? A. That is 210 my handwriting, Todes' signature.

Q. It is? A. That is my handwriting.

Q. Then he didn't write any part of it? A. No. He dictated it and I put his name and address on there for reference, that is all.

Q. How long have you personally been in the liquor business? A. All my life, with the exception of during prohibition.

Q. And you have bought merchandise from foreign countries, have you not—liquor?

By Mr. Heineman: Objection.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Has your firm an importer's permit?

By Mr. Heineman: Objection.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. In connection with this transaction your firm appointed at Laredo, Texas, a customs broker called Jovita Perez, isn't that so?

By Mr. Heineman: That is objected to. I believe it is shown by the records, what happened; the exhibits 211 show the exact transaction.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. That is the fact, isn't it?

Mr. Heineman: Objected to. The exhibits speak for themselves.

By Mr. Kahn: I don't know what exhibit it is in. If you call my attention to it—I don't think there is any dispute about it.

By Mr. Heineman: There is none.

By Mr. Kahn: Then why object?

By Mr. Heineman: Because we are taking an awful lot of time on unimportant matters. It is in these records. But I have no objection.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. That is so, isn't it, Jovita Perez?

A. She was the customs broker, and she admitted stuff into the United States.

Q. In your behalf? A. Yes.

Q. There were some extensions of this letter of credit, weren't there? A. That is right.

Q. The time was extended until June 15, as I recall it; is that so, is that your recollection?

212 By Mr. Heineman: I have the document which shows the exact date.

By Mr. Kahn: I am asking for his recollection.

By The Witness:

A. I don't know the exact date of the extension, because they were not ready to ship.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q.—And there were several amendments to the letter of credit?

By Mr. Heineman: As to the amendments, this is not the best evidence, your Honor, if there were amendments.

By Mr. Kahn: I am just asking that as a fact, to show the passage of time, that is all.

By The Court: Do you know?

By The Witness: Yes. I said that this morning.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Now, before the merchandise—

By The Court: Do you know whether there were any amendments to the letter of credit?

By The Witness: Other than the corrections of the words "in bond"—something about in bond, and that 213 the shipment had to come in full and not in parts.

By Mr. Heineman: Are you speaking of the amendments that went into evidence this morning?

By The Court: Yes.

By The Witness: You mean on the letter of credit?

By The Court: Yes.

By The Witness: There were some minor corrections of the wording of it.

By The Court: Any others than the ones that are in evidence?

By Mr. Kahn: There were specified—

By The Witness: No.

By The Court: I am asking the witness.

By The Witness: I don't recall anything else.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Your firm has had issued letters of credit before on foreign shipments?

By Mr. Heineman: That is objected to.

By Mr. Kahn: I want to show his familiarity with this type of transaction.

By The Court: Sustained.

214 By Mr. Kahn: Q. Mr. Lazarus, a day or two after May 10, 1944, do you recall receiving a letter from Frank San Roman dated May 10,—yes, or no.

A. I couldn't say off hand.

Q. To refresh your recollection, I show you a letter bearing date May 10, 1944—

By Mr. Heineman: Counsel has a general stipulation with me, your Honor, as to the fact that these documents were received at or shortly after the dates they were sent, in the ordinary course of mail. We are trying to get the facts into the record, and I have stipulated that these documents were received by the plaintiff.

By Mr. Kahn: I want to show that the witness has a recollection of specific facts which may bear on the vital issues in this case.

By Mr. Heineman: I think that the stipulation should control, your Honor.

By The Court: What is the answer?

By The Witness: The letter is of no consequence.

By Mr. Kahn: I will withdraw it.

215 (Question withdrawn.)

By The Court: No, the answer is, whether you received it.

By The Witness: I could not recall, no, sir; I may have.

By Mr. Kahn: Of course, it is stipulated that he did receive it.

By The Witness: All right.

By Mr. Kahn: Q. I show you this purported affidavit of Gonzalo Larrea, do you remember receiving that letter of May 10? A. I couldn't say whether I got this one or not. That looks like it is a piece of International Industries, some form of copies.

Q. You have no recollection? A. Those things come in such voluminous lots that I haven't got time, and don't take time to read them.

Q. All right. Do you remember this telegram of May 17 to International Industries—I show it to you.

A. Yes. Well, I mean I assume that is one of the extensions.

Q. Do you recall? A. Yes, the date of the letter of credit was extended once or twice; I would not swear that this is the exact date.

Q. I show you a letter to Jovita Perez of May 27, 1944—

By Mr. Heineman: Show me what you are showing the witness.

By Mr. Kahn: Surely. I thought you were familiar with it.

By Mr. Heineman: Before you answer, may I see it?

By The Witness: What are you asking me?

By Mr. Kahn: Q. Do you recall getting that letter?

By Mr. Heineman: Before you answer may I see it?

By Mr. Kahn: That is covered by the stipulation.

By Mr. Heineman: If it is covered by our agreement, why do you continue to interrogate him?

By Mr. Kahn: Because I want to find out what he personally recalls.

By The Witness: A. These are a lot of International Industries items and I don't know if I got copies 217 of them or not, I could not recall.

By Mr. Kahn: Counsel has stipulated that you did.

By Mr. Heineman: If the Court please—

By The Court: Rely upon the stipulation and put them in.

By The Witness: These letters are endorsed International Industries and I don't know if I got copies of them.

By Mr. Kahn: Q. All right. I just want to finish with three or four on the same line.

Do you recall this special consular certificate?

By Mr. Heineman: If the Court please, apparently counsel is asking this man who is vice-president of the plaintiff for his personal recollection as to whether it was received. It is stipulated that the documents were received by the company of which he is vice-president. And I object to further questioning along this line on the ground that it is irrelevant whether this man personally recalls receiving them or not.

218 By Mr. Kahn: I want to find out his personal recollections.

By The Court: What difference does it make?

By The Witness: I told you I don't read them, no one reads them, they are formalities.

By Mr. Kahn: I move to strike that "they are formalities."

By The Court: Let it stand.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Do you recall personally signing this letter bearing your purported signature dated July 24, 1944?

By Mr. Heineman: May I see it?

By The Witness: A. That is my signature.

By Mr. Kahn: Q. Do you remember dictating that letter?

By Mr. Heineman: It is stipulated that it was signed and mailed by Mr. Lazarus, or mailed by the Globe Liquor Company.

By Mr. Kahn: I want to know if he recalls dictating it.

By The Court: He may answer.

By The Witness: A. Yes.

219 By Mr. Kahn: Q. You do recall it? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall getting this telegram from Gonzalo Larrea, offering to re-filter and re-bottle the merchandise that had been sent? A. Yes.

Q. After you received that first government notice telling you about the shipment being held up—perhaps counsel will stipulate to this if I may confer with him—do you recall receiving two blank forms from the Food and Drug Administration, being an application for conditional release of merchandise detained for reconditioning? A. I don't understand that question.

Q. Now, to refresh your recollection, I showed your counsel a letter which describes—

By Mr. Heineman: I object to showing the witness a document in an entirely different matter.

By Mr. Kahn: It may refresh his recollection.

By Mr. Heineman: It cannot refresh his recollection because it has nothing to do with the Globe Liquor Company—on another shipment.

By Mr. Kahn: I object to counsel's comment.

By the Court: What is it?

By The Witness: That letter was sent to the firm at Baltimore. I had nothing to do with that.

By Mr. Kahn: Q. Does that refresh your recollection that your firm got similar forms? A. I don't think it did.

Q. The same form, wasn't it? A. I don't think it was.

Q. Are you familiar with the Government Regulations that permit merchandise to be conditionally released from bond?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: Q. For reconditioning, aren't you?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: That is all.

221 Redirect Examination, By Mr. Heineman.

Q. You spoke of the payment of a finder's fee, or, rather, counsel characterized that as a finder's fee of a dollar a case to Mr. Todes, the salesman for International Industries; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Did he keep that finder's fee of a dollar a case?

A. No, he returned it afterwards.

Q. Why did he return it to you?

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that.

By Mr. Heineman: Counsel opened the door, your Honor.

By Mr. Kahn: That calls for his mental operation. Why don't you produce Todes' letter?

By Mr. Heineman: Q. Did Mr. Todes tell you why he returned it to you?

By Mr. Kahn: Objected to as hearsay.

By the Court: He may tell us what was said about it.

By Mr. Heineman: Q. What was said and done?
222 A. As soon as I knew that the shipment was in transit I sent Mr. Todes a check for $750; and as soon as I found out that the tequila was not available, or was detained by the Government, I immediately wrote or phoned Mr. Todes, and he immediately sent me his check for $750.

Q. And was that a return of the dollar a case?

A. That is right.

Q. Which counsel has characterized? A. That is right.

Q. As having been paid him as a finder's fee?

A. That is right.

Q. So that in fact Mr. Todes never did keep that dollar a case? A. He kept it until he knew I could not get my tequila, and then of course he wasn't entitled to it.

Q. And then he returned the money? A. Then he returned the money.

Q. You have said that you assumed that International Industries was acting as a broker.

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that. I don't believe he said that.

By the Court: I think he said several times they were acting as broker.

223 By Mr. Heineman: He said "I assume that they were". The record will speak for itself on that.

By Mr. Heineman: Q. Precisely what did you mean by that?

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that, if the Court please.

By the Court: Let him answer.

By the Witness: A. I said I assumed that they were whiskey brokers. He wanted to know whether, if I knew whether they were in the whiskey business or not, and I said I assumed that they were whiskey brokers.

By Mr. Heineman: Q. I am speaking specifically about the term "broker", what did you mean by that when you answered?

By Mr. Kahn: If the Court please, that is objected to.

By the Court: Let him answer.

By Mr. Heineman: Q. What did you mean by the word "broker" in connection with what your estimation was about International Industries? A. Well, pro-

224 bably—

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that question.

By the Court: Overruled.

By Mr. Kahn: As calling for a conclusion of the witness.

By the Court: Overruled.

By the Witness: A. Some brokers operate differently; some of them buy the stuff outright and re-sell it. They are not distillers.

By Mr. Heineman: Q. Is that that you meant?

A. Yes, they are not distillers. Some of them buy it outright and re-sell it, and some sell it on commission.

Q. From whom did you order this tequila?

A. International Industries.

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that. That is a conclusion of the witness, and the so-called order speaks for itself.

By Mr. Heineman: I think we can agree that the orders and letters speak for themselves.

By Mr. Kahn: Oh, no, I am not agreeing with that.

By the Court: Yes, objection sustained.

225 By Mr. Heineman: No further questions of this witness.

Recross Examination by Mr. Kahn.

Q. Mr. Todes does business with you now? A. No, sir.

Q. As a salesman since that particular transaction?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to as irrelevant.

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: I want to show the reason for him returning that money, just to carry on in good faith with his contact.

By Mr. Heineman: I will withdraw the objection.

By the Court: Let him answer.

By the Witness: A. Mr. Todes represents a big distillery, and this was purely something on the side, and I assume—I imagine he has discontinued it by now. He has a responsible position.

By Mr. Kahn: Q. He is with Schenley's, is he not?

A. That is right.

226 Q. Doesn't he sell you as the representative of Schenley's?

A. He doesn't call on our territory; he has been transferred; he lives in Syracuse; he lived in Baltimore before.

Q. Did he ever call on you after March, 1944?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he do any further business with you?

A. Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: That is all.

By Mr. Heineman: No further questions at this time of this witness.

By the Court: Step down.

(Witness excused.)

LEE EISEMAN, JR., called as a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Heineman.

Q. Will you state your name, please? A. Lee Eiseman, Jr.

Q. What is your business or occupation, Mr. Eiseman?

A. I am in the wholesale whiskey business in Maryland.

Q. In Maryland? A. In Maryland.

Q. Did you hear the testimony here today? A. Yes.

Q. In March, 1944, did you order some whiskey from Mr. Gabriel Todes—some Mexican tequila? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Mr. Todes tell you whom he was representing?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was he representing? A. International Industries, of Chicago.

Q. How many cases of Mexican tequila did you order from Mr. Todes? A. 750.

Q. Did you pay for that tequila? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it shipped to you from Mexico? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it shipped to you in the same railroad car that—

By Mr. Kahn: That is admitted.

By Mr. Heineman: Will you stipulate it was shipped in the same railroad car as this shipment?

By Mr. Kahn: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Where was that tequila taken—your tequila taken?

A. I don't know what you mean, "Where was it taken?"

Q. To where was it shipped? A. To Baltimore, a bonded warehouse in Baltimore.

Q. Is that the Government warehouse? A. Government bonded warehouse.

Q. Did you ever get delivery of that tequila?

A. No, sir.

Q. Why not?

229 By Mr. Kahn: That is objected to, if the Court please. It happened in another transaction, and bears no pertinency or relevancy to this transaction.

By Mr. Heineman: I would like to be heard briefly.

By The Court: You may step into the jury room, Ladies and Gentlemen.

(Thereupon the jury retired from the court room, and the following proceedings were had out of the presence and hearing of the jury—)

By Mr. Heineman: If the Court please, this was tequila from the same sellers, sold by the same person, shipped in the same car, from this so-called seller, Mr. Larrea.

Mr. Kahn, both in his opening statement and to this court has said that there is no proof that any substantial proportion of the Globe shipment was adulterated with glass. Here is another lot of 750 cases in that Globe shipment, that was sent to a separate station of the Food and Drug Administration, was inspected by separate inspectors, and was condemned as being adulterated with glass, and destroyed.

230 I think that that bears definitely on the point of the extent of the adulteration.

By Mr. Kahn: If your Honor please, the proof in the Globe case—which is the case we are trying—is that out of 750 cases, that Mr. Stanfill, according to his affidavit, took four cases at random, which is a fair way of sampling; four cases, that is 48 bottles. And he testified that five out of the forty-eight, according to his affidavit, appeared to have foreign matter in them; that the five bottles were subjected to laboratory tests, and out of those five three—

By Mr. Heineman: Counsel is misstating the evidence, which shows that it was five and they took three to the laboratory—

By Mr. Kahn: All right.

By Mr. Heineman: And that all three were found to have glass.

By Mr. Kahn: Is that it?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: All right. Then we will assume that five out of the forty-eight had foreign matter, which, if that was a fair sample—and I say it is—and if 231 every other bottle had been examined, we have a right to assume that the same proportion would have prevailed, which would have been about $5/48$, which is not a substantial part.

By Mr. Heineman: It is more than ten percent.

By Mr. Kahn: Which I say, as a matter of law, is not a substantial part, particularly when the witness Mr. Lazarus admitted that the shipper agreed immediately at his own expense to recondition and refilter the merchandise.

By Mr. Heineman: He did not admit it.

By Mr. Kahn: That is all right—

By Mr. Heineman: But I will not interrupt.

By Mr. Kahn: I thought that he got such a telegram. If he did not I will introduce it.

By Mr. Heineman: You should have introduced it, if it is admissible. Go ahead.

By Mr. Kahn: I didn't heckle you the way you are doing.

By Mr. Heineman: I am sorry if I interrupted you. I apologize.

By Mr. Kahn: The Globe Liquor Company should 232 recover on the strength of their own case. It is unnecessary for them to aggravate the situation by any evidence of a companion suit that should be tried separately on its own merits.

I am perfectly willing to try the two cases together—anything that would shorten the time; and I think I have shortened the time of this case by a number of stipulations that we have entered into.

I think that this evidence here is of no particular probative force, and it would be highly prejudicial to the jury because the evidence will show that the proportions are a little bit different.

By the Court: What is the purpose of this evidence?

By Mr. Heineman: The purpose is to show that there was one lot of 9,000 bottles that went to Globe, and one lot of 9,000 bottles that went to Mandl.

Counsel suggests that it was almost an accident that some of those bottles were found to have glass in them.

And I wish to show that not merely the 9,000 but 233 the whole 18,000 were contaminated.

By the Court: What was the percentage there?

By Mr. Kahn: 9 out of 60.

By the Court: What was found?

By Mr. Kahn: Glass.

By the Court: Let me see the papers.

By Mr. Kahn: The same thing as in the other case
(handing documents to the Court).

By the Court: They examined 60 bottles of this shipment and found foreign particles in 9 bottles out of 60. And of the 6 bottles taken of the 9, the other four samples were examined by filtering and found to have particles of glass in each bottle.

By Mr. Heineman: If counsel will stipulate that there was material adulteration of the entire shipment—

By Mr. Kahn: I will do no such thing. What do you want me to do, stipulate to enter judgment?

By the Court: Let me see that other statement.

By Mr. Heineman: Yes (handing document to the 234 Court). Is that what your Honor wanted, the affidavit?

By the Court: Where does it appear that those shipments came together?

By Mr. Heineman: Counsel has stipulated it.

By Mr. Kahn: They came in the same car.

By Mr. Heineman: They came in the same car.

I think it is adequately proved but I would like to batten it down.

By the Court: Well, if these were two separate cars of grain where an inspector examined the whole car as it came through a chute, I wouldn't see any reason for evidence of this kind. But where the examination is by sampling—

By Mr. Heineman: And by different inspectors.

By the Court: (Continuing)—and the two shipments come from the same shipper in Mexico, and they are the same material, I think the evidence has probative force.

By Mr. Kahn: Except that the proportions are slightly different.

By the Court: How slightly different?

By Mr. Kahn: Let us assume that they are the same.

Suppose we had five people all buying out of the same 235 car, and they bring all five here, the cumulative proof of all five, as bare facts, isn't any greater.

By the Court: It negatives the possibility that it is just a bottle here and there.

By Mr. Heineman: Precisely.

By the Court: It negatives that possibility.

It shows that out of ten percent, out of the sixty bottles, nine were found to have foreign material in. And they took six of those, and two were kept, and they examined and found out that all four from the six had glass.

By Mr. Kahn: They took nine out of the sixty.

By the Court: Nine out of the sixty, and found foreign material.

By Mr. Heineman: That makes the sample that much wider.

By the Court: That makes the sample that much wider.

By Mr. Kahn: I think it is prejudicial; that is my principal reason for objecting, because the proportions are not the same.

By the Court: It would be prejudicial if it did not have probative force. If the examiner had happened to examine every bottle, then there would be absolutely no reason for even referring to another shipment.

By Mr. Heineman: That is exactly right.

By Mr. Kahn: Then you get down to this basic fact: Since the ten percent seems to be rather a rule of thumb here, which we can both adopt for purposes of illustrative argument, is the presence of ten percent—or, if ten percent of the shipment is adulterated, does that give the buyer the right to reject the entire shipment?

By Mr. Heineman: That is a matter of law.

By the Court: I don't know. But if you were buying—I assume you buy whiskey—if you were buying a case of whiskey would you want even one bottle to have broken glass in it?

By Mr. Kahn: I do not buy whiskey.

By Mr. Heineman: If a dealer delivered a case of whiskey to you in Chicago, and the first bottle had glass in it, you would send it back.

By Mr. Kahn: From what I know of the Scotch situation it is extremely doubtful if he gets any.

By Mr. Heineman: I am asking you as an expert.

By Mr. Kahn: I am just using my powers of observation.

Here was a tight market. They wanted anything that had alcohol in it when they bought it. But when two or three months went by and the bottom dropped out they seized upon any excuse at all to reject it.

By Mr. Heineman: I think with ten percent having sharp splinters of glass in it is a very good reason.

By Mr. Kahn: One percent is pretty good.

By the Court: What are you going to do, open up every bottle and examine it?

Objection overruled. I think it has probative force because the examination was by sample. The shipments came from the same place, from the same shipper in Mexico, and of the same material.

Bring in the jury.

(Thereupon the jury resumed their places in the 238 jury box, and the following further proceedings were had in the presence and hearing of the jury:—)

By the Court: Ladies and Gentlemen, this witness on the stand is testifying concerning another shipment, one not in issue in this case. The evidence—the Court rules—of this witness is admissible only on the question of the fairness of the sampling, in the case before you, and not otherwise, and must not be considered by you on any other question, just simply on the question of the fairness of the sampling of the shipment which we are now concerned with.

By Mr. Heineman: Will you read the pending question, Mr. Reporter:

(The record as above recorded was read by the reporter, as follows:

“Q. Did you ever get delivery of that tequila?

“Q. Why not?”)

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Will you state why not, please? A. We were 239 not allowed to; it was detained by the Federal Government.

Q. Why was it detained?

By Mr. Kahn: I object to that. He can tell by whom.

By Mr. Heineman: He has said, by the United States Government.

By Mr. Heineman:

Q. Do you know why it was detained? A. Yes.

Q. Would you state why it was detained?

By Mr. Kahn: That is objected to, as calling for his conclusion.

By the Court: Sustained.

(Counsel for the parties conferred privately.)

By Mr. Kahn: We are trying to stipulate on something to save the time of the Court.

By the Court: Very well.

(Counsel further conferred privately.)

By Mr. Heineman: It is stipulated as a fact that the shipment was detained by the United States Government because it was found to be "Adulterated: Within 240 the meaning of Section 402(a) of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act since it bears or contains a poisonous or deleterious substance (glass particles) which may render it injurious to health."

That is stipulated?

By Mr. Kahn: It is stipulated, subject to my objection as to the competency.

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: That this is a conclusion of an official.

By the Court: Yes or no?

By Mr. Kahn: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: I object to arguing it. The Court has ruled.

By Mr. Kahn: I am stating the grounds of my objection for the record.

By Mr. Heineman: In accordance with your Honor's ruling that this evidence is to be taken only as showing the fairness of the sampling, it is further stipulated that this was the method of sampling followed with respect to this case, with respect to the shipment with respect to which Mr. Eiseman has testified.

241 By Mr. Kahn: The stipulation as to the existence of those facts is subject to objection as to competency.

By the Court: I understand.

By Mr. Kahn: And the relevancy of these two paragraphs, and on the further ground that it is prejudicial to the defendant.

By the Court: Very well. Overruled.

By Mr. Heineman: (Reading)

"On July 1, 1944, Analyst Fredric K. Killingsworth of the Baltimore station, Food and Drug Administration, examined 60 bottles from this shipment by candling, and noted foreign particles in nine bottles out of the sixty." That has reference to the shipment about which Mr. Eiseman testified.

"Six of the nine bottles were taken as a sample, and Notice of Samples Taken (Customs Form 6521) was issued on July 1, 1944, to the importer of record thru Samuel Shapiro & Co., Inc., Baltimore Md.

"Of the six bottles taken as a sample, Mr. Killingsworth placed two unopened in our sample room where they have since remained under lock and key. The 242 other four bottles of the sample we examined in our laboratory by filtering. He reported finding sharp splinters of glass in each bottle, varying in size and ranging in number from a minimum of one to a maximum of seventeen pieces per bottle. His report was made on July 1, 1944."

No further questions.

Cross Examination by Mr. Kahn.

Q. Mr. Eiseman, your firm bought 750 cases of tequila from Mr. Todes, the salesman? A. Will you repeat the question, please?

Q. I say, your firm bought 750 cases of tequila from Mr. Todes, the salesman, during March of 1944? A. Yes.

Q. You have known Gabriel Todes all your life, haven't you?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to as irrelevant?

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: On the Globe proof.

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

243 Q. Did you give Mr. Todes a written order?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to; for the purpose as to which this evidence has been introduced it is irrelevant.

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Wasn't your deal with Mr. Todes that the order you gave him was subject to acceptance?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Wait a minute: Confirmation by the shipper.

By the Court: Sustained. The evidence was admitted for only one purpose, the question of the fairness of the sample.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Mr. Eiseman, do you recall getting a detention notice from the Food and Drug Administration covering this shipment, and saying it was being detained?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to, on the same ground.

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Do you recall getting a blank form of application for the conditional release of the merchandise for reconditioning.

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to on the same ground.

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Do you recall getting a telegram from Gonzalo A. Larrea offering to recondition and refilter the merchandise at his expense?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to on the same ground.

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: That is all.

By Mr. Heineman: You may step down.

(Witness excused.)

By Mr. Heineman: Plaintiff rests, your Honor.

And Thereupon the Plaintiff Rested Its Case.

By Mr. Kahn: I should like to make an oral motion, your Honor.

By the Court: Do you wish to argue it?

By Mr. Kahn: For a few minutes.

By the Court: You may step into the jury room, 245 Ladies and Gentlemen.

(And thereupon the jury retired from the court room, and the following proceedings were had out of the presence and hearing of the jury:—)

By Mr. Kahn: Defendants desire to make an oral motion that the Court instruct the jury to find the issues for the defendants, for the following reasons:

There is no proof here that the moneys that the Globe Liquor Company paid, or any part thereof, were paid the defendant International Industries.

The original order, Plaintiff's Exhibit 1, is a mere request; it was not a contract, it was signed only by the buyer, and is a request or proposal—it was an offer to purchase.

Mr. Lazarus, who is a trained business man in this line of business—been in it all his life, he has handled letters of credit; obviously there is no great mystery, and he admitted on the stand that he regarded International Industries here merely as a broker.

He admits—and it is admitted here, it is undisputed, that the shipment came directly from Mexico. It was never handled in Chicago. International Industries are not in the liquor business, and never represented 246 themselves to be.

By Mr. Heineman: There is no evidence of that, if it were material.

By Mr. Kahn: Just make notes of what I say and do not interrupt me, please, and I will give you the same courtesy.

Accompanying this original offer or proposal was a form of letter of credit. There is nothing mysterious about that. Letters of credit, we know as lawyers are strictly construed.

If whoever is responsible for their payment is presented with documents in due form it is the duty of a party liable to pay them.

In this particular instance the letter of credit was made originally to International Industries, and the assignment was permitted, which immediately informed Globe that International Industries could assign this particular letter of credit.

Note the specific conditions of this letter of credit, your Honor, even if we assume for purposes of the argument—

By the Court: I read it.

By Mr. Kahn: It is expressly made. And of course this letter of credit is part of what I consider to be the oral contract in this case, in order for the Globe 247 Liquor Company to make sure that they were going to get this merchandise—and they were anxious to get it because of the tight market—and it was stipulated that Mexican shipper's invoices were to be procured.

In other words, here is privity directed between the Gentlemen We sent you two packages by air mail in connection with the 750 cases of tequila purchased through International Industries:"

There you have an admission that they knew that they were dealing with a broker, they were not dealing with International as principal.

Mr. Todes' letter of the 24th, he is nothing more than a salesman, he hasn't got any authority to bind anybody—taking orders.

By the Court: Let me have your best case.

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: What is it?

By Mr. Heineman: In connection with the parol evidence rule?

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: Loeb against Flannery.

By Mr. Kahn: The citation?

By Mr. Heineman: If your Honor will take the statement from an inter-office memorandum—148 Ill. App. 471 and other cases both before and after that. And there is also Wigmore cited there (handing documents to the Court).

By the Court: Take a short recess. And pick out 267 the two or three that you regard as the best statement of the rule in Illinois.

By Mr. Heineman: Yes, your Honor. Do you wish it on both the partially disclosed principal and the varying?

By Mr. Kahn: There is no question about the principal disclosed.

By Mr. Heineman: Pardon me.

By the Court: I am just thinking now in respect of parol evidence.

By Mr. Heineman: In effect they go hand in hand. I will get the cases.

By the Court: About the three best cases on each point.

By Mr. Heineman: Yes, your Honor.

(After a short recess, the following:—)

(Mr. Kahn handed a book to the Court.)

By Mr. Kahn: In the case that your Honor has before you, there was a complete, plain unambiguous contract, that Flannery got a thousand dollars to be returned on ten days notice. It is plain on its face. Naturally it was not susceptible to contradiction. And that is obvious, 268 that the thousand dollars was paid on the strength of that receipt and contract, which was completed by itself. In that case Flannery tried to substitute another party saying that he was not responsible for the money. The contract was complete right on its face, and he got the money and gave the receipt at the time that he got the money.

By the Court: I have seen the Loeb case. Now what is the next case?

By Mr. Heineman: Are you speaking to me?

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: On that first point of varying the written contract, I should like to show your Honor Plaintiff's Exhibit 5.

Counsel has raised the point here about whether the salesman had the power to accept orders. But Plaintiff's Exhibit 5 is a letter from the defendant here—not from the salesman, making formal changes in the letter of credit, and saying again that the contract is acceptable, and receipt of the letter of credit is acknowledged, and suggests two formal changes.

It says the credit is acceptable, and by the "credit" referring to the two prior documents—and that with the subsequent telegram which your Honor has before 269 you. And then we have the amendment that he suggests there.

It is too clear for any words that we had a contract in those prior documents; and that letter clearly so states.

By Mr. Kahn: There is no acceptance of any order. It is merely a suggestion to the buyer that if they want to get the merchandise here the letter of credit must be amended in certain particulars. There is no undertaking on the part of International to accept any orders.

By Mr. Heineman: Shipping had nothing to do with it. For example, if they had failed utterly to get shipment for any reason at all we could have recovered from International Industries on a suit for damages for failure to deliver.

By Mr. Kahn: I don't think so; I don't know of any acceptance.

By Mr. Heineman: Why, of course.

By Mr. Kahn: The letter of credit—they were dealing with the seller in Mexico.

By Mr. Heineman: Not the seller; you have been saying "shipper".

By Mr. Kahn: All right, the shipper.

By Mr. Heineman: There is a great difference.
270 We had no way of knowing who the owner of the merchandise was. They bought it in Mexico.

By Mr. Kahn: They didn't buy it. They simply took an order and sent it down to Mexico. Mexico accepted the order for shipment. All they got out of it was brokerage—a small amount.

By Mr. Heineman: We have no way of knowing what they were going to do with the money.

By Mr. Kahn: They never got the money.

By Mr. Heineman: We assume that it wasn't all profit, that the merchandise cost something.

By Mr. Kahn: If your Honor please, that clears the thing—

By Mr. Heineman: Pardon me. I would like to finish my argument. You have been talking for an hour or an hour and a half; and if you don't mind, may I stand here, please?

By Mr. Kahn: Counsel handed up a case that is the same as the Flannery case.

By Mr. Heineman: May I please address the Court?

By Mr. Kahn: I am sorry to differ. But that is where a party who gets the merchandise and agrees to return it—that is different. No question about the liability.

What is the citation?

271 By Mr. Heineman: The citation of the case which I am now handing to the Court is Vail v. Northwestern Life Insurance Company, 192 Ill. 567 (handing a book to the Court). And I marked Subsection 3 specifically, your Honor, the fact that the agency did not appear.

By the Court: Well, I will hear from you further in the morning.

The burden is on you, Mr. Kahn, at the moment.

By Mr. Kahn: Thank you for your consideration.

By Mr. Heineman: May I also in the morning before Mr. Kahn is heard address myself to the question of partial disclosure in Illinois?

By Mr. Kahn: I will state that under the Illinois law there is no such thing as partial disclosure.

By Mr. Heineman: In other words, you concede that under the Illinois law if the unknown principal is not known at the time the contract is made—

By Mr. Kahn: I don't say that.

By Mr. Heineman: Then I want to argue that and show it to the Court.

Thank you, your Honor, for your consideration.

By the Court: All right.

By Mr. Kahn: If the Court please, I have an unusual request: I was called into an injunction matter before Judge McGoorty, upon which depends the continuance of the publication of "The Chicago Independent," which is that Negro newspaper, the leading Negro newspaper in this community, and that motion is coming up tomorrow morning and I simply should be there to protect the rights of my client. Can I be excused until ten-thirty?

By The Court: You may be excused until ten-thirty but at that time we will go ahead.

By Mr. Kahn: I will simply have to be here at ten-thirty, that is all.

(Whereupon an adjournment herein was taken until the following day, March 14, 1946, at the hour of 10:30 o'clock a. m.)

273

• • (Civil Action No. 45 C 120) • •

Met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Mr. Heineman.

Mr. Kahn.

And thereupon the following further proceedings were had herein:—

By the Court: Proceed.

(And thereupon the following further proceedings were had herein out of the presence and hearing of the jury:—)

By Mr. Kahn: Your Honor said last night that the burden was on me on this point.

By the Court: I just wanted to know your statements on the argument.

By Mr. Heineman: Passing the question of the written contract, and varying that by parol evidence, I would buyer in the United States and the shipper in Mexico, not only is his own commercial invoices, but the consular invoice, the insurance certificate and the original bill of lading issued to the shipper and endorsed by him in blank.

In other words, here is evidence of a contract whereby there was direct privity between the contract shipper in Mexico and the buyer here in the United States, the plaintiff.

So on the documents the plaintiff itself has notice. There was a direct privity of contract between the shipper, the principal, and the buyer here, the plaintiff.

When drafts were drawn for the payment of this merchandise the money was paid in effect to The First National Bank of Chicago, not to International Industries.

The letter of credit itself specifically provides that the drafts were payable at sight for full invoice value 248 at The First National Bank of Chicago.

The money was not handled by International Industries. The money was handled by The First National Bank of Chicago, who acted in a sense as the clearing house here.

Now, it is obvious, that is, it is a fair inference from the facts thus far, that the foreign shipper in Mexico would never have shipped the merchandise until the following things occurred:

First, that a letter of credit was furnished, that when the title papers, the shipping documents would reach Chicago, the First National Bank, the Chase letter of credit would be honored.

And second, which is more important, is the unescapable inference that the shipper in Mexico would not have shipped the goods, or deprived himself of title to the goods by means of this invoice and bill of lading unless the First National in turn had in advance agreed to remit the proceeds of that letter of credit to the Mexican shipper.

It is admitted here by the witness that Larrea, the shipper, immediately upon learning of the detention by the Government, agreed to recondition and refilter the merchandise at his own expense.

249 That offer was rejected by the buyer.

The buyer here had full opportunity to inspect this merchandise.

The complaint shows that they were notified when the shipment left Mexico, on May 22, 1944. They were on the lookout for it.

They were trained in the liquor business. Mr. Lazarus has been in the liquor business all his life.

He could easily have arranged for an inspection of this merchandise even though it was in bond.

And the last point I make is that before any liability was incurred on the part of the buyer in this case in any way whatsoever, and before the Chase National incurred any liability under its letter of credit, by the letter of May 10, 1944, and the accompanying affidavit, which was before the shipment even left Mexico, Globe Liquor Company, was informed that the name of the shipper, the principal, was Gonzalo A. Larrea, of Mexico City; and the accompanying affidavit by Larrea gave Globe all information to establish its OPA ceiling prices. And if we hadn't sold this tequila on the $10.50 a case, why immediately following, when Globe received that information, if it didn't want to do business with Larrea it would have immediately repudiated the transaction, because 250 its original order was never accepted and it could have withdrawn it at any time because that original piece of paper was never accepted.

So that you have all the elements here:

You have a disclosed principal; the identity of the principal is disclosed, and any liability attaching under the original order, or the letter of credit—and that is May 10, 1944, and the merchandise did not leave Mexico until May 22, and it was not until June that the drafts were presented; and in addition to that only a small portion of the merchandise is shown to have been adulterated; so that I think that the remedy here on the part of the buyer, the plaintiff, is to seek recourse first against Larrea.

And as Mr. Heineman himself suggested, if the banks paid these drafts before the merchandise was released in bond the banks should be liable.

International here is a small outfit of good repute who acted as brokers. No pretense about its connection with this deal. Mr. Lazarus admitted they were brokers.

Obviously they only ultimately received a small portion of these funds by way of commission. And on that understanding it is manifestly unfair to saddle the defendants with any attempted liability in this case.

251 And I think on the showing I have made that we are entitled to a directed verdict.

By the Court: Let me see the order.

By Mr. Heineman: If your Honor please, it is not a question of an order, it is Exhibits 1, 2 and 3 which comprise the contract in the view of the plaintiff.

By the Court: Let me see them.

By Mr. Heineman: It is these three documents.

(Handing documents to the Court.)

By Mr. Kahn: Here is the letter of credit, too.

By Mr. Heineman: His Honor has read the letter of credit.

By the Court: Let me see the documents.

(Documents handed to the Court.)

By the Court: Motion denied.

By Mr. Heineman: May we dispose of a preliminary matter with respect to Defendants' case, your Honor, so as to avoid the necessity for sending the jury out?

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: Because we did not regard it as a part of our primary case, which we think has clearly been made out, we did not put in a mass of evidence showing the course of discussion and correspondence 252 between the parties with respect to this shipment.

And counsel is going to put in, or attempt to put in evidence correspondence before these written documents—this written contract in our view, was prepared, and such matters as conversations with Mr. Todes, about what Mr. Todes said to the plaintiff, and what he did not say; and also correspondence after the contract was entered into. The contract was entered into in March, and on May 10 for the first time the name of Gonzalo A. Larrea was mentioned.

And I am going to object to that on the ground—to all of this involved and rather voluminous matter, on the ground that this is a very simple case of the defendants contracting with the plaintiff, and without disclosing the principal.

First of all counsel has constantly confused "shipper" and "seller".

It is true that these documents refer to someone as the shipper. But there is no indication who he was, or what his relationship was to anyone other than that he was the man who put the merchandise on the cars in Mexico.

And I have gone to the trouble of having counsel's opening statement written up in which he made a binding admission of his parties: (reading)

253 "Although at the time Mr. Todes did not state the name of the shipper, the reason is obvious. Because the demand for liquor was so strong in behalf of purchasers that had they known the name of the shipper, and his name and location they could have dealt directly with the shipper, and in that way would obviate and deprive my clients from the small commission they were to earn."

"Because the demand for liquor was so strong in behalf of purchasers"—meaning Globe.

"that had they known the name of the shipper"—not the seller, the shipper.

What does that mean? It means that their salesman, Mr. San Roman, instructed his salesman that the name of the alleged seller was not to be disclosed to the buyer when the contract was entered into—and there is no question in my mind that this is a binding contract for which damages could be sought if the buyer had not purchased this irrevocable letter of credit.

But Mr. San Roman instructed his salesman, "You may not tell them the name". And the name was not given.

254 So even assuming that the plaintiff knew that the defendants were acting as agent for someone the law is very clear—and I have ample cases to support my position—if the name is not disclosed at the time of the making of the contract no subsequent disclosure can affect the contract.

It is the case of an agent acting for an undisclosed principal. If partially disclosed before you may bind both the agent and the principal, if you can catch the principal.

I don't know whether your Honor would like to see authorities—it is Hornbrook law, that where there is a partially disclosed principal one may bind the agent—and by counsel's own admission, which under the rule both in the Federal Courts and in the State Courts in Illinois is binding, the name of the principal was not disclosed at the time of the making the contract, for reasons.

By the Court: I understand.

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

So I think we may as well thresh that out now, because there will be objection.

And frankly, I have seen the evidence which counsel proposes to put in. And in my view it is all incompetent as tending to vary the effect of a written contract, and on the ground that any attempt to show that knowledge 255 of the principal was disclosed after the contract was made is invalid.

By Mr. Kahn: In response to that, if you will glance at the—

By Mr. Heineman: I asked his Honor whether he wished my authorities.

By the Court: I will hear from you.

By Mr. Kahn: Would your Honor be good enough to look at my brief as I go along here as it will save some time of the Court.

When you analyze Plaintiff's Exhibit 1, it is signed only by Lazarus. It is all in Lazarus' handwriting, and nothing more than a mere memorandum or request or an offer to purchase or a proposal to purchase.

All of the terms of the proposed sale beyond the provisions of the letter of credit are omitted. There are no details. There are no terms. No details of the time of shipment. No details. A sixty-day letter of credit, which might give some inkling.

The word "assigned" is omitted, that the letter of credit had been assigned.

And the cases are legion under my Point 1, that a mere piece of paper of the sort is nothing more than an offer to buy. And until that piece of paper is accepted by 256 the seller it has the dignity of nothing else but a piece of paper to be withdrawn at any time.

And I have a list there on the first page, of my points and authorities.

By the Court: Suppose the order was just a mere order, that the middleman Mr. Todes wrote a letter.

Let's see those papers.

(Documents handed to the Court.)

By Mr. Kahn: Now, here is this letter in which he says:

"This will confirm our telephone conversation of this morning relative to your order."

There is no contract there.

By the Court: No, on 3-16-44—

By Mr. Kahn: Is what we call the order.

By the Court: You call that an order or memorandum?

By Mr. Kahn: Yes, or an offer to sell.

By the Court:

"This will confirm our telephone conversation of this morning relative to your order of Mariachi Tequila Gold, wherein the price for the Gold is $10.75, which is 25 cents more than the White, and which was agreeable to 257. you."

By Mr. Kahn: And in the second paragraph he is merely asking for confirmation.

By the Court:

"Will you please forward to me your confirmation on this price, as I have already advised International Industries to cable your order to Mexico."

By Mr. Heineman: That is an acceptance in that paragraph.

By Mr. Kahn: No, it isn't, at all.

By Mr. Heineman:

"as I have already advised International Industries to cable your order to Mexico".

By the Court:

"as I have already advised International Industries to cable your order to Mexico"

By Mr. Kahn: But it is up to Mexico to say whether they will accept it.

By the Court: Let me read:

"Please execute your letter of credit exactly in accordance with the form which I left with you, with the exception of changing the price from $10.50 to $10.75, and substituting your own customs broker in the place of 258 Jovita Perez, if you so desire.

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank you again for your patronage.

"Kindest regards Gabriel H. Todes.

"cc: International Industries"—that is San Roman.

Now, this is what he said on March 27:

"This confirms our order placed with your last week for 750 cases of Mariachi Tequila Gold at $10.75 f. o. b. Laredo, Texas. We have put through the letter of credit in accordance with the specimen you left here, but I have changed to tequila where you had the word vodka.

"Be sure to instruct the International Industries that these cases cannot come into Delaware without the Delaware state stickers which will be sent to any address that is specified when they notify us that the shipment is ready to come forward.

"These stickers are only sent after we have paid the state tax, so that you should wire us in ample time for us to pay the tax and have these stickers forwarded—one to be put on each case."

By Mr. Heineman: And the letter of credit.

259 By Mr. Kahn: It is still unilateral. The letter of credit stipulates shipper's invoice.

By Mr. Heineman: There is no question it was coming from Mexico.

By Mr. Kahn: It means that they are buying from the shipper.

By Mr. Heineman: No.

By the Court: As far as this goes, I don't see why they should be allowed to vary the terms of this contract by oral evidence.

By Mr. Kahn: If the Court please, even the case in the 296 App. 245 where both parties signed the same piece of paper or memorandum, it was incomplete.

By the Court: I wonder if you can get me that case.

By Mr. Kahn: And will you bring the 56 N. W., please?

By the Court: The 56 N. W. isn't here.

By Mr. Kahn: It isn't here?

By The Court: No. What case is that?

By Mr. Kahn: It is one of those western States, either Iowa or Kansas where an almost similar memorandum was held the same way. And in that case you have got a paper signed by two people, the buyer and the seller with the terms incomplete.

By the Court: I think you are right when you consider the paper 3-16-44, but when you consider that 260 with the paper of March 24, 1944, and March 27, 1944, and March 29, 1944, then what?

By Mr. Kahn: Todes presumably hasn't any authority. He merely takes the order. He says, "I have got your order. Confirm the price". They are still negotiating.

By Mr. Heineman: He left the terms of the letter of credit with him and said, "Fill it out."

By Mr. Kahn: All right:

"I have already advised International Industries to cable your order to Mexico".

Your Honor, the jury isn't here: In this Mandl case Mr. Eiseman signed a paper where he wanted to be sure he was dealing with the Mexican shipper. And his order says, "Subject to confirmation and acceptance by the shipper".

By Mr. Heineman: And that was put in.

By Mr. Kahn: That is in writing. That is how anxious they were to deal with the Mexican shipper. They didn't care anything about International. International knew a source in Mexico where to buy this. These are mere unilateral offers.

By Mr. Heineman: I would like to have seen what would have happened if we had not been willing to 261 pay.

By Mr. Kahn: No liability, there was never any acceptance.

By Mr. Heineman: We would have had a lawsuit slapped on us so fast.

Why did you insist on an irrevocable letter of credit?

By Mr. Kahn: What does that mean: Mexican shipper? No liability until the Mexican shipper's invoice appears? It just confirms that it wasn't forced on you. You were dealing with the Mexican shipper.

You haven't got the Northwestern Reports?

By the Court: Well, we can get it. Get me the 56 Northwestern.

By Mr. Kahn: It is a very interesting case.

In that same volume is another case, page 221.

By Mr. Heineman: Is that a principal and agent case?

By Mr. Kahn: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: There is a lot of distinction between cases.

By Mr. Kahn: You can argue it.

By Mr. Heineman: I will.

By the Court: Get me 334 Ill. and 259 Ill. App.

By Mr. Kahn: Your Honor, would you glance 262 at what I consider the leading case, and that is the 56 Northwestern?

By the Court: Well—

By Mr. Kahn: It is followed in the 232 Northwestern. And here is a federal case.

By the Court: Where is it?

By Mr. Kahn: The McCormick case, 56 Northwestern, page 683.

By the Court: Why should I have to go over to Iowa?

By Mr. Heineman: We have a number of decisions in Illinois, not to mention leading text writers.

By Mr. Kahn: In this case there was a contract signed by two people and that was held to be incomplete; the man was nothing more than a salesman and he could not bind anybody, just took orders. He had authority to take orders and nothing else.

By Mr. Heineman: That was not the admission.

By Mr. Kahn: And in this Mandl case they made it subject to confirmation.

By the Court: "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof". We won't worry about that until we get to it. Go ahead.

By Mr. Kahn: May I also argue this point—Point 3 in my brief, that the identity of the shipper was disclosed to the buyer before there was any liability created under the buyer's letters of credit?

Letters of credit are the things here that they bought. And that first piece of paper was nothing more than an order.

The cases hold that the disclosure of the principal's identity need not be made at the inception of the transaction. It is sufficient if it is made before liabilities are incurred on either side.

Meacham on Agency Section 1414.

3 Corpus Juris 125.

And three cases cited under Point 3.

And then Meacham again, and the Restatement of the Law and 3 Corpus Juris 125 hold that if the fact of the agency is known—and Mr. Lazarus admitted it—in other words here the buyer is so anxious to get the merchandise that they say, "We don't care who the seller is, we want the merchandise, and we won't bother International Industries or hold them liable as long as we get the merchandise".

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to. There isn't anything in this case to suggest that.

By Mr. Kahn: There will be. You are forgetting the deposition of Mr. Todes, which is on file here.

That is replete with that sort of an understanding with Mr. Lazarus, that he said, "Now see here, the International are in this deal. They are brokers.

They know where this can be bought. They are not liquor dealers. They are not importers. They don't handle the merchandise. But I think we can take your order and give it to them and they will send it to Mexico. But they are not to be liable for the quality or for the time of shipment."

And the deposition is to the effect that Mr. Lazarus agreed to it under those terms.

If that was the arrangement as to that the identity of the principal does not ever have to be disclosed. And you have got three authorities for that.

By Mr. Heineman: But none of them from Illinois.

By Mr. Kahn: What is the difference? That is childish.

There is the Restatement, that is pretty good.

There is Meacham—and there is nothing better.

And then there is the Illinois Supreme Court case 336 Ill. 542—and I am quoting from the opinion at page 526

Where an agent in making a contract discloses 265 his agency and the name of his principal and where the party dealing with the agent knows that the agent is acting as agent in making the contract the agent is not liable on the contract unless he agrees to be personally liable. So we come within the purview of that disjunctive clause.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 1 is this piece of paper. It is an order subject to withdrawal at any time.

The letter of credit is the evidence of the promise to pay but it is condition.

By the Court: Let me see your best case, Mr. Heineman, on the proposition that parol evidence is not admissible.

By Mr. Heineman: I have several.

By Mr. Kahn: Give me the citation.

By Mr. Heineman: I have them all here. I just don't know which is the best.

By Mr. Kahn: Could I call Your Honor's attention to just one more point?

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: Exhibit Q to the affidavit for summary judgment, which I will introduce in due course, is a letter of Mr. Lazarus to

266 "Pine Needle de Mexico, S. de R. 1

Cerrada Rio de Janiero 9, Mexico, D F Mexico

like to discuss the question in Illinois from the stand-274 point based on this state of facts that the defendants have said that they could show that at the time of the making of the contract the plaintiff was aware that the defendants were agents, but were not aware—by admission of counsel for defendants— of the name of the principal; in other words, the case commonly referred to as the case of a partially disclosed principal.

The law in Illinois is so well settled that in the case of a partially disclosed principal the agent may be personally bound, as to require no citation of authority.

The leading case is Annes v. Carroll Graham Hoffman, in the 336 Ill. 542, which on its facts is even stronger for defendants than this case.

In that case the plaintiff went to an insurance agency in Chicago and wanted an insurance policy on a diamond ring. The insurance agency issued a binder, binding Lloyds of London to insure the ring, the policy to be issued as soon as it came from London.

Before the policy came the ring was lost.

The plaintiff sued the agency personally.

The agency defended on the ground that the agents were not bound but that Lloyds of London were 275 bound.

The proof showed that Lloyds of London was an underwriting insurance firm in London; that under their practice one did not know until the policy came to Chicago which group of underwriters at London were bound because the practice was to select the names of the accepting underwriters in London.

And the Supreme Court held under the circumstances that it was a case of a partially disclosed principal, and said that under the circumstances at the time of the making of the contract the plaintiff could not possibly have known whom the principals were. Even the defendants said that they were acting as agents and that Lloyds of London would be bound.

And they held the agent personally.

And there is an extended discussion of the law on the point of a partially disclosed principal in that case. And it has been cited down to date as representing the law in the State of Illinois on partially principals.

By Mr. Kahn: That is the law. I concede that that is the law on that particular point, as stated by counsel.

By Mr. Heineman: I mean, there are other cases.

But in view of that one, and counsel's concession, 276 there is no need, there is no point of laboring the point further.

It makes clear, however, why the plaintiff will object to offers of evidence showing that at some date after the making of the contract the name of the shipper was mentioned.

Our rebuttal will show that by an exchange of correspondence, the defendants mentioned the names of several Mexican firms or groups, and that they referred to others as "our people in Mexico", and that we had no way of telling which one of several firms they were actually referring to as the seller.

But I do not believe it will be necessary to go into that rebuttal, however, because in our view under this decision that evidence is incompetent.

By Mr. Kahn: Were you waiting for me, your Honor? I am sorry.

By the Court: Whenever you are ready.

By Mr. Kahn: I thought your Honor was reading, and I didn't want to interrupt you.

Counsel has argued two points that are separate and distinct.

First, he argued that the amendments of the original letter, Todes' letter asking for confirmation, and the 277 letter of International suggesting changes in the letter of credit, that those were a complete contract in writing which could not be varied by parol evidence under the rule.

I would rather pass that for the moment and get to the point that he just discussed.

Illinois does not recognize the rule as to partially disclosed agents and so on. That is one part of the doctrine of law that is applicable to the situation here.

Every one of the cases that he cited—and I examined them all this morning and last night, including a case that I myself took to the Appellate Court for the Irving Trust Company—and I think I am familiar with the principle of law involved, presents an entirely different situation—each one of those cases.

In the Lloyds case, the memorandum on its face was a complete unambiguous statement with respect to the parties. What the defendants sought to do in that case was to substitute a new party, and that the court said could not be done.

That is not our case.

In our case, if the deposition of Mr. Todes is permitted to be read—and I think—I know your Honor always wants to get at the truth of the situation, and the ends of justice are always best served by finding out exactly what did happen; Todes, absolutely disinterested, a friend of these men—the deposition will show he was a lifelong friend of Lee Eiseman, of the Mandl Company, and a friend of Mort Lazarus for about five years; and he returned his commission because he didn't want to lose the good will of those customers.

Todes testified in his deposition that he specifically told Mr. Lazarus, "International is a broker and is not to be liable on the shipment or on the quality".

And Mr. Lazarus admitted that he regarded International as a broker.

And at the time that order was given—and that is not a contract—he merely was the agent, and there was a disclosure of the principal's name, as I said in my opening statement.

There was a letter of credit given to insure payment.

But it is the law—and I have the authorities right here—unfortunately there is nothing in Illinois directly on the point.

But in Meacham on the Law of Agency—which is still a standard and an outstanding authority on the principles of agency, Section 1414, reading from the 1914 edition—discusses when the disclosure should be made in order to exonerate an agent:

"A disclosure, however, is sufficient within this rule although not made at the time negotiations were begun if it is full and complete before any contract is made or obligation incurred"

Now until the shipper—and I say the "shipper" notified International, notified the buyer who made that mere request in that Plaintiff's Exhibit 1, that the order was accepted, there was nothing Larrea could have done to hold Globe.

By the Court: Tell me that. Read that.

(The record as above recorded was read by the reporter.)

By the Court: To hold whom?

By Mr. Kahn: Globe.

By the Court: To hold Globe? Nothing that Larrea could have done?

By Mr. Kahn: Larrea.

By the Court: Larrea?

By Mr. Kahn: Yes.

By the Court: That is not the question.

By Mr. Kahn: That is the question, precisely.

280 By the Court: When do you say the disclosure was made?

By Mr. Kahn: When?

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: May 10, 1944, before the shipment ever left Mexico, which was the letter of Mr. San Roman to Mr. Lazarus of the Globe Liquor Company.

"We inclose herewith an affidavit of the shipper to assist you"

By the Court: Let me see all the papers that the plaintiff put in evidence.

By Mr. Kahn: That is not in evidence, that particular letter is not.

By the Court: I say, let me see all the papers that the plaintiff put in evidence.

(Mr. Heineman handed documents to the Court.)

By Mr. Kahn: I have some other authorities on that, your Honor.

And may I show your Honor these two letters?

By the Court: Just a minute.

By Mr. Kahn: That I think that I am going to offer.

By the Court: Just a minute. Don't you think that when that letter of credit was issued and accepted there was a binding undertaking?

281 By Mr. Heineman: No question about it.

By Mr. Kahn: Yes, but there was no liability under that letter of credit until it was performed.

By the Court: No liability, what?

By Mr. Kahn: Under the terms of the letter of credit, until Larrea did the following things—

By Mr. Heineman: But Larrea is not mentioned.

By Mr. Kahn: Until Larrea in fact did the following things: One—

By the Court: It was a binding contract.

By Mr. Kahn: But there is no liability incurred. That is what Meacham says, "Or liability incurred".

By The Court: But the plaintiff was in a position where he could not back out. The plaintiff was tied up and bound to take the tequila.

By Mr. Kahn: All right, but he had not incurred any liability under the letter of credit until—

By the Court: Yes, he did.

By Mr. Kahn: No, not until the merchandise was shipped.

By the Court: Oh, you will have to take that question to a reviewing court. I am against you.

By Mr. Kahn: All right.

By the Court: If that letter of credit was accepted 282 then he had to take the tequila in accordance with the papers.

By Mr. Kahn: Right. But what were the papers?

If you are against me on that point, I won't spend any more time on it.

By the Court: I am against you.

By Mr. Kahn: One supplemental thought on that and I will go to the next point: •

On May 10, 1944, before any liability was incurred under this letter of credit, which antedated the shipment of the merchandise, which did not occur until June 3d, International wrote Globe Liquor, attention of Mr. Lazarus:

"We are attaching photostatic copy of Affidavit issued by the shipper in connection with the price of Mariachi Tequila, which might be of use to you for the purpose of establishing your ceiling price."

Then he tells about the difference of 25 cents in price between the white and the gold.

And attached to that letter was this affidavit of Larrea:

"We offer Tequila Mariachi, at 1100 proof, 12/5ths. At Dis. 10.50 per case f.o.b. Laredo, Texas.

283 "We hereby certify we have not sold this brand or this product under any other brand at a lower price—prior to or since April 30, 1943."

And so on.

So, before there was any liability on the letter of credit Globe was told the name of the shipper.

By the Court: The name of the shipper, yes; I am not concerned with the shipper, all I am concerned with is who made the contract with Globe.

By Mr. Kahn: Very well. I will address myself to that.

Now, on the parol evidence rule, as to whether this is an order, Plaintiff's Exhibit 1, which your Honor has before you; and whether Plaintiff's Exhibit 2, which is a request for confirmation on the price; and the International letter suggesting changes in the letter of credit—whether those are what we call an integrated contract within the parol evidence rule, bear in mind that the ends of justice would be best served by getting at the actual facts as they happened.

By the Court: Now, you are strong-arming that. The parol evidence rule is to prevent the varying of a written contract by parol evidence. You just strong-armed the proposition that the ends of justice will be served by disregarding that rule.

By Mr. Kahn: No. I want you to bear in mind that the purpose of the rule is to prevent fraud.

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: And we all should support a rule of that kind.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 1, as I analyzed it yesterday, is a piece of paper asking International—addressed to International—to take an order for 750 cases of tequila; very significant in a lot of omissions in the transaction, and has reference to a letter of credit.

Now—

By The Court: There is nothing in that first paper about a letter of credit, is there?

By Mr. Kahn: The very first, I think.

By the Court: Yes, "Sixty-day letter of credit".

By Mr. Kahn: Now, there is nothing in the memorandum or this letter that says anything about the letter of credit being payable to International Industries or assigns.

By the Court: Well—

By Mr. Kahn: I want to confine myself to this order.

By the Court: Here in the letter of March 24 Mr. Todes says:

"Please execute your letter of credit exactly in accordance with the form which I left with you."

By Mr. Kahn: All right. That form had the word "assigns" in it, I am assuming; at least that was the intention, and that was done.

I just want to read one case on the lack of authority of a salesman in a situation such as this.

Todes' deposition will prove that when he was employed a salesman by Mr. San Roman, he was told that all he could do was to take orders, which would have to be subject to confirmation in Mexico.

Todes is telling you the truth. And I will tell you why he is telling you the truth:

It was our joint intention to try these two cases together.

Todes' oral deposition states that he and Mr. Lazarus agreed that the order would be subject to confirmation and acceptance by the shipper in Mexico.

But that is not on this order.

By the Court: That is just it; if the parol evidence rule does not bar that, it is admissible. But it is not.

By Mr. Kahn: In the companion suit, the original Mandl order had that express thing,

"This order subject to confirmation by shipper".

So Todes' deposition is not made out of the whole cloth.

By the Court: Your inference furnishes nothing to support that. He put it in one contract and didn't put it in the other, and because he didn't put it in one and did put it in the other therefore it ought to be in the second. That is not reasonable.

By Mr. Kahn: Very well.

By the Court: That is contrary to all of our rules.

By Mr. Kahn: Very well. But even in the case that was cited, where both parties signed the purported contracts, but because the contracts were not complete parol evidence was admissible to supply the missing terms—but the Globe order is not even as strong.

By the Court: This letter of credit is pretty complete.

By Mr. Kahn: All right.

287 By the Court: What?

By Mr. Kahn: All right. But there is ambiguity in the letter of credit.

By The Court: What is that?

By Mr. Kahn: "This credit may be assigned".

By the Court: You haven't any evidence that it was assigned. That don't make any difference.

By Mr. Kahn: The evidence will show that it was assigned.

We are taking this time to anticipate some of his objections.

By the Court: Assigning a letter of credit wouldn't make any difference.

By Mr. Kahn: "or assigns", is the way it read.

By the Court: Just a minute. With the memorandum and letters and the letter of credit, that is quite a complete contract. The mere fact that the word "assigns" is or isn't there doesn't mean it is ambiguous.

By Mr. Kahn: The word "assigns" there is ambiguous without explanation.

By The Court: Oh no.

By Mr. Kahn: Let me call your Honor's attention to three things needed:

"The word 'assigns' in itself requires explanation in order to get the true intent of the ties".

288 The Court cannot disregard the requirements of the letter of credit, which stipulates "Mexican shippers' commercial invoice".

You can't brush that aside.

And you cannot brush aside

"Original bill of lading issued to order of Mexican shipper blank endorsed".

By the Court: They asked a waiver of that, and I assume they got it.

By Mr. Kahn: Oh, no, that was never waived. They asked for waiver of originals, to save expense. That is the heart of our case.

By the Court: What is that?

By Mr. Kahn: "Mexican shippers' commercial invoice".

It means that the Chase National, who know their business, said, "if you expect us to be liable under this letter of credit you have got to produce as the condition of payment under the letter of credit, invoices directly from the Mexican shipper—not International; you have got to produce a bill of lading blank endorsed directly from the Mexican shipper".

By the Court: What of it?

By Mr. Kahn: It means they are dealing with the Mexican shipper.

By The Court: It doesn't mean anything of the kind.

It doesn't mean anything of the kind.

289 You can sell me all the diamonds that may be produced in South Africa for the next thirty days—I don't suppose you have a call on any of them, but you can sell them to me and I can deal with you, and if you don't deliver I can sue you and recover.

By Mr. Kahn: No question about that.

By the Court: And probably collect.

By Mr. Kahn: That depends on how many diamonds you are buying from me.

Yesterday I was in the "Scotch" business. Today I am in the diamond business. Tough luck.

You see, your Honor, in the light of Mr. Lazarus' admission on the stand that he knew he was dealing with a broker—

By the Court: When these men use the word "broker" they mean somebody that deals in whiskey that doesn't distill it. That is what they mean. He wasn't using that in the usual sense.

By Mr. Kahn: He spoke about commission.

By the Court: I heard what he said. I am telling you exactly what he meant.

By Mr. Kahn: Now, one more point which should be, I think, the decisive point on the law. There is another principle of agency which is applicable here in my 290 opinion.

If a buyer deals with a broker as a broker when he knows that the broker is acting for an unknown principal, if the parties mutually agree that the broker is not to be liable although the identity of the principal is undisclosed, and never is disclosed the agent is not liable.

By the Court: I think that ought to be the law.

By Mr. Kahn: That is the law.

By the Court: I haven't any doubt about it.

By Mr. Kahn: Todes will so testify in his deposition.

By the Court: That is the reason we have the parol evidence rule.

By Mr. Kahn: In this case—

By the Court: To protect any man in his right mind who would make that kind of a contract, that is the reason we have the parol evidence rule.

By Mr. Kahn: Now, he wants the tequila, and he wants it fast, and he doesn't care anything about the broker or his liability.

By the Court: He says, "I want some liquor, and I want it badly." And he says, "How many dollars?" "Eight thousand dollars". He doesn't know who is going to get it to him, and he says, "Who is going to get it to me?" And he says "Eight thousand dollars".

291 "You are not?"

"I don't know who is".

That is just kind of silly.

By Mr. Kahn: They do that every day in the liquor business.

By the Court: They do?

By Mr. Kahn: Mr. Lazarus will tell you they do. When they want merchandise that is a frequent occurrence. I am not an expert, but when there is a demand for something they are not going to fool around with formalities.

They knew that International was not an importer.

What did International get? $1,012.50 out of $8,000. And out of that they paid probably a large part of it in expenses, outside of the expense of this litigation.

That is the situation in this picture. Why didn't they go after Larrea?

By Mr. Heineman: I think I will answer that directly: The testimony would show that your man made two trips to Larrea and tried to get the money, and Larrea told him, "Nothing doing".

By Mr. Kahn: Sure. And then months later the Government informed him that it could be released so 292 that it could be rebottled and refiltered, and Todes gave Lazarus the names of three rectifiers.

And Shapiro his own broker suggested that it be rebottled. Everybody knew that at the time.

I think in view of this last principle that your Honor says should the law—

By the Court: Of course it should be.

By Mr. Kahn: And it is the law, and it is applicable here.

By the Court: You say that if people contract nobody shall be liable, of course nobody is liable.

By Mr. Kahn: Oh, no, the principal is liable.

By the Court: You know what you said.

By Mr. Kahn: Yes. I said that the agent should not be liable under any circumstances, when buying from an undisclosed principal.

There is another rule that when a buyer knows and ascertains the name of the principal he can sue either one and collect. So it is not as foolish a rule as it sounds.

And counsel knows that to be the law.

And Larrea recognized his obligation at the time.

The fact that he didn't want to do anything later is of no consequence. He made a fair offer at the time.

293 By Mr. Heineman: Did he send along a check?

By Mr. Kahn: I think the ends of justice here will be promoted if your Honor permits Todes to testify as to exactly what he said to Lazarus.

By the Court: I don't see any necessity—it says here,

“Should drafts under this credit be drawn by assignee, they must be accompanied by your letter of assignment”.

And still that wouldn't tell us anything. They could assign it to me.

By Mr. Kahn: That is ambiguous.

By the Court: They could assign it to their bank.

By Mr. Heineman: That was to get credit to buy the merchandise.

By Mr. Kahn: That doesn't tell you anything. It is ambiguous. It requires parol evidence.

By the Court: Oh, no, it does not; it is perfectly plain.

By Mr. Heineman: They have made a negotiable instrument. Every check and every promissory note is payable to order.

By Mr. Kahn: “Assigns” is entirely different. You take subject to the original deal.

294 By Mr. Heineman: I understand, but not so far as the principles you are asserting.

By Mr. Kahn: This is evidence of the written contract.

By Mr. Heineman: The original was negotiable.

By Mr. Kahn: There is no such thing as a bill of lading—as a letter of credit being negotiable.

By Mr. Heineman: I think it is beside the point.

By Mr. Kahn: It is transferable.

By the Court: We need not digress.

By Mr. Kahn: Todes' deposition says that he said, “You make this payable to International Industries or assigns”. And he explained why, because they were merely taking orders, and sending them to Mexico.

By the Court: As I say to you, that is just the reason you have the parol evidence rule.

By Mr. Kahn: Not only that, but when the First National paid these drafts—I think on June 3rd—they advanced the money on the strength of the Chase letter of credit, then the evidence will show that the First National sent the documents to the Chase National. The Chase National could have rejected those documents if they wanted to.

And there was ample opportunity for a partial inspection at the time. But no, the market was tight, and 295 the demand was so great they wanted it and wanted it fast.

By Mr. Heineman: On what grounds could they reject it?

By Mr. Kahn: The reason it is an injustice, I think it was a mistake to have brought this suit against this man. And if we are interested in really getting at the truth of what happened between these two business men—and that is always a desirable object—and I know that your Honor with his training and knowledge of the book of rules—

By the Court: The parol evidence rule is founded on a wealth of experience. And when men put down in writing as definitely as they did in this letter of credit what they contracted for we will have to be careful about varying it by parol evidence after that.

By Mr. Kahn: We are not varying it. We are not doing that. But why did they put in here, "Shipper's commercial invoice"? Why did they put in here, "Bill of lading"? Because the shipper—

By the Court: That hasn't anything to do with this contract with the Globe Liquor Company.

No, I am against you.

Bring in the jury.

(Thereupon the jury returned to their places in the 296 jury box, and the following further proceedings were had herein in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

By Mr. Kahn: May I have the deposition of Mr. Todes? And thereupon, the defendants to maintain the issues in their behalf, offered the following evidence:—

(Thereupon the deposition of Gabriel H. Todes, taken on behalf of defendants on December 24, 1945, in this cause, was duly opened in open court by the Clerk.)

By Mr. Kahn: Have you got a copy of the Todes deposition?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes, I have.

By Mr. Kahn: If your Honor please, I should like to read the deposition of Gabriel H. Todes.

Have you a copy?

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: And I have stipulated with counsel that any objections will stand to any of the questions and answers.

By the Court: Well, the objection I have overruled.

By Mr. Kahn: I will pass them up and make a 297 offer of proof.

By Mr. Heineman: Why should this be read? In view of your Honor's ruling, why should even the questions be asked in the presence of the jury?

By the Court: Step into the jury room, Ladies and Gentlemen.

(Thereupon the jury retired from the court room and the following further proceedings were had therein out of the presence and hearing of the jury:—

By Mr. Heineman: It might be easier if we handed your Honor one copy, and we each have one copy, and you can follow it (handing document to the Court).

By Mr. Kahn: Go ahead. You are supposed to be objecting. You have got them all marked.

By Mr. Heineman: I thought you were going to present it to his Honor.

By Mr. Kahn: No, on the parts which you object to and I will read those into the record now.

By Mr. Heineman: All right. Starting at page 6:

"Q. What were his oral instructions to you relative to the taking of orders or selling of merchandise in his behalf?"

298 By the Court: Where is that?

By Mr. Heineman: The second question from the top, your Honor.

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: That was withdrawn.

By Mr. Heineman: At the bottom of the page:

"Q. Where and when did you receive your instructions from Mr. Frank San Roman as to the taking of orders for the sale of tequila or other liquors?"

By Mr. Kahn: Your Honor, can we take a recess for a few minutes with a view of possibly terminating this litigation?

By the Court: Yes, I will be glad to.

(A recess was here taken, after which the following:—)

By Mr. Heineman: Wouldn't it be easier, your Honor, to have Mr. Kahn read these, and have make my objections?

By Mr. Kahn: I will read it in front of the jury. If the objection is sustained, I will read it later on.

By the Court: Objection sustained to that last question on page 6.

By Mr. Kahn: Page 6.

299 By Mr. Heineman: I have other objections, other than those I have made, on page 8.

By the Court:

"Q. What did he tell you?"

Page 7. Are you objecting to that?

By Mr. Heineman: I don't see that.

By the Court: At the middle of page 7.

By Mr. Heineman: Mr. Kahn then withdrew the question and said:

"Mr. Kahn: I think the point is well taken".

Over on page 8, your Honor, a question in the middle of the page:

"Q. What did he say relative to your method of taking orders in his behalf?"

That is objected to on the grounds previously stated, on the ground that any conversation between the defendant and Mr. Todes is not binding upon the plaintiff, and on the ground that since those instructions were reduced to writing, oral conversations with respect to that are not the best evidence.

By Mr. Kahn: I just want to show his general instructions.

By Mr. Heineman: You cannot bind the plaintiff by conversations between agent and principal.

By Mr. Kahn: I can show the man's authority.
300 The cases are legion on that.

By the Court: I know, but you can't prove authority as the case now stands; they entered into a contract here.

By Mr. Heineman: So the question of authority is not involved.

By the Court: Which was ratified by your client.

By Mr. Kahn: May I interrupt with one more thought?

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: That letter of credit, "Mexican shipper's invoice" meant that the money was going directly to Mexico.

By the Court: It doesn't mean anything of the kind.

By Mr. Kahn: That is exactly what happened, your Honor.

By the Court: It might have gone to Timbuctoo. It doesn't make a particle of difference.

By Mr. Kahn: The evidence will show that that is exactly what happened.

By the Court: It doesn't make a particle of difference.

By Mr. Heineman: The objection stands to the entire conversation.

By the Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: What page?

301 By Mr. Heineman: It starts at page 8, pages 8, 9 and 10.

By Mr. Kahn: Wait a minute. Would your Honor be good enough to tell me what pages you are passing on?

By the Court: I am on page 10. Pages 8, 9 and 10, objection sustained.

The reason is that the parties entered into a contract which was approved by the defendant.

By Mr. Heineman: Page 11 continues the discussion.

By the Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: I have no objection to the question about why he could not attend the trial.

By the Court: It may be received.

By Mr. Heineman: On page 11.

By Mr. Kahn: You are certainly making a terrific concession!

By Mr. Heineman: The next objection, your Honor, is at page 15.

By Mr. Kahn: Is page 12 all right?

By Mr. Heineman: My next objection—I have no objection to 12, 13 and 14. I think it is irrelevant but I have no objection.

Page 15, starting with:

"Q. What did you say to him, stating your own words, and what did he say to you?"

By the Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: That runs on on page 15, page 16.

Mr. Kahn: Wait a minute. I want that about market conditions, on page 16.

By Mr. Heineman: How are you entitled to show that?

By Mr. Kahn: I have got the authorities on that, no question about it. In view of the offer to refilter, that is a factual question for the jury.

By the Court: It is not responsive.

By Mr. Kahn: "Whiskey was very scarce"—

By Mr. Heineman:

"A. I called Mort on the phone and I said, 'Mort, I have some'—

"Mr. Kahn: Q. On what date?"

"A. On the same day.

"I was in Wilmington, Delaware, calling on one of my wholesalers. I called Mr. Lazarus on the phone, and I said, 'Mort, I have some things that I think you can use.' Whiskey was very scarce at the time and the wholesalers were trying to get everything they possibly could."

That is not a part of the contract.

By Mr. Kahn: All right. That can go out, because he covers it later.

303 What do you object to on page 16?

By Mr. Heineman: Nothing, subject to this going out.

By Mr. Kahn: What do you object to on page 17?

By Mr. Heineman: Just a minute. The conversation starting with:

"I said, 'Mort, I think you can use this tequila.

Lee Eiseman has bought 750 cases.'"

By Mr. Kahn: Is that all right?

By Mr. Heineman: No, that is out. I object to that, from that on down.

By Mr. Kahn: However, we have a right to show the identity of our people, your Honor.

By Mr. Heineman: You can put your man on the stand.

By Mr. Kahn: No, prove it by his deposition.

That last paragraph on the bottom of page 17 shows the identity and status of International Industries.

By Mr. Heineman: You can't show the identity by having the witness say they don't know anything about the liquor business.

This is not a witness testifying to the jury as to the identity of these people. He is testifying to a conversation prior to the making of the contract.

304 By the Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: What goes out?

By Mr. Heineman: From:

"I said, 'Mort, I think you can use this tequila.'"

I object to page 18 on the same ground.

By Mr. Kahn: They are talking about price.

By the Court: They have fixed the price.

By Mr. Heineman: It is all in the contract.

By Mr. Kahn: See how significant the fifth line is:

"He said, 'I think if I can get it in gold, the colored people would think it was Mexican whiskey and it would sell much more readily.'"

That has not been taken out of it. I think that is competent.

By the Court: For what?

By Mr. Heineman: The only purpose of that is prejudicial.

By the Court: That could be the only purpose.

By Mr. Kahn: It is the truth.

By the Court: The only purpose could be to prejudice the jury.

By Mr. Kahn: That is what he said.

By Mr. Heineman: There is no probative value.

By the Court: There is no probative value, and 305 the contract is made.

Objection sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: I also have an objection to page 19.

By Mr. Kahn: He wants to know again how fast he can get it; there was a great desire to get it because of the existing market conditions.

By the Court: Page 19, sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: When your Honor gets through with his ruling, I will make an offer of proof of all these pages.

By Mr. Heineman: You can just give them to the reporter.

By Mr. Kahn: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: The same objection as to page 20.

By the Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: Page 21, the same objection.

And incidentally, his answer "In Mexico," shows what a misapprehension he was under about what he was saying to the plaintiff:

"A. In Mexico. And every one of the samples of the letters of credit stated that in there; and when I gave it to him and when he read it, naturally he saw that."

Very clear!

306 By Mr. Kahn: He says

"I told every account to whom I sold."

By The Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: To all of page 21?

By The Court: Yes, objection sustained to page 21.

By Mr. Heineman: Objection to page 22.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: Objection to page 23.

By Mr. Kahn: I have the right to show the market conditions at the time.

By Mr. Heineman: You can show the market conditions by testimony perhaps, but this is a conversation.

By Mr. Kahn: This is something better than the admission of Lazarus.

By Mr. Heineman: What is the admission?

By Mr. Kahn: They both talk about the tight situation on whiskey. That is material, your Honor.

By The Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: What does it prove?

By The Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: To page 23?

By The Court: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: Same objection to page 24.

By Mr. Kahn: Page 24 tells about market conditions. This man is an expert.

307 By The Court: What has that to do with the case?

By Mr. Kahn: I have authorities here that say that it is a factual question whether rejection of merchandise, when there is a drop in the market, is in good faith, and whether the buyer has a right to reject it.

By The Court: Let's see your best case, just one.

By Mr. Kahn: The New York Supplement.

By The Court: You can find anything in the New York Supplement.

By Mr. Kahn: 55 Corpus Juris 450.

New York Supplement.

Texas Criminal Appeals.

And Federal Supplement.

In this case, your Honor, the proof will show that after that merchandise was held up and Larrea offered to recondition it. Lazarus wrote and said, "We can't take liquor now in view of the present liquor conditions"—the drop in the market, and stated in writing his reasons.

In Jones v. Wertham, 254 S. W. page 4, a case decided by the Supreme Court of Missouri—which is not a bad court—held such evidence is admissible as affecting defendant's good faith.

However, the material decline in market price—
308 By The Court: But that is not the question. The question here is that this liquor comes up here and had some glass in it and the Government destroyed it. That is all there is to it. As this case stands there is no question about anything else. What is the use of going into detail?

By Mr. Heineman: Have you a case that shows the duty on us to refilter by taking out the glass? We would have to refilter the whole shipment.

By Mr. Kahn: Larrea wanted to do that.

By Mr. Heineman: They are down in Mexico. Did they send a check? We never heard of it.

By Mr. Kahn: You rejected it.

By Mr. Heineman: I suppose you would expect us to incur another six hundred dollars of expense.

By Mr. Kahn: The wire said to go ahead.

By Mr. Heineman: Yes, go ahead with what?

By Mr. Kahn: You never accepted that offer.

By The Court: That was your client's job.

By Mr. Heineman: When your client advised us of that we immediately said, "if you want to recondition it, go ahead." It wasn't our job to incur the expense on the authority of someone in Mexico whom we never heard of.

309 By The Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: To what page??

By Mr. Heineman: Down through page 24.

Same objection to page 25.

By The Court: 25, objection sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: Page 26, same objection.

By The Court: Objection sustained, to 26.

By Mr. Heineman: Same objection to page 27.

By The Court: Objection sustained.

He says he is telling you about the communications with Mr. San Roman:

"I wrote Mr. San Roman about the Gold Tequila."

By Mr. Heineman:

"He told me that he had contacted the shipper in Mexico, and that it would be 25 cents more a case than the price for the White Tequila."

So it is perfectly evident.

By The Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: I think that that answer ought to go out.

(After a brief interruption:—)

By Mr. Heineman: 28 and 29. 28 I objected to.

By Mr. Kahn: What page are you on?

By Mr. Heineman: 28.

310 By Mr. Kahn: Is there a ruling on it?

By Mr. Heineman: Not yet.

By The Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: That was to 28 and 29, was it?

By The Court: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: Same objection to page 30.

By Mr. Kahn: Now on page 30 we have an admission her of Lazarus, which shows his construction on what your Honor has ruled to be a contract, shows his understanding.

By Mr. Heineman: Where is that?

By Mr. Kahn: That is factual.

By Mr. Heineman: Where is that?

By Mr. Kahn:

"He said, 'I agree'—"

By Mr. Heineman: Page 30?

By Mr. Kahn: Page 30.

This is the discussion between a disinterested witness and Mr. Lazarus. I say it is competent, as it shows the attitude of Lazarus towards this deal.

And the courts have uniformly held that the parties are always bound by the construction that they place.

By Mr. Heineman: It clearly shows that he knows that Mr. San Roman did not put the glass in the tequila.

311 By Mr. Kahn:

"I agree that the shipper is responsible for it."

By Mr. Heineman: Putting the glass in.

By Mr. Kahn:

"He said, 'We want our money back.' He said, 'I am not saying that it is your fault but it is the shipper's fault.'"

By Mr. Heineman: That there was glass in the liquor; that is what he is saying.

By Mr. Kahn: Well, it is competent. It shows an intention on his part to look to the shipper.

The Supreme Court of Illinois and the Supreme Courts of other States have held repeatedly that the parties are bound.

By The Court: Where is the first conversation with Lazarus about recovery? I don't remember it.

By Mr. Heineman: I will show you. That starts on page 28—is all there is, at the bottom of page 28.

By The Court: I think I will let him answer that last question on page 28.

By Mr. Heineman: On page 28?

By The Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn:

312 "Q. What did you tell him after he told you that the tequila was being held up by the Federal Food and Drug Administration?"

By The Court: Yes.

By Mr. Heineman: Certainly his statement that neither Mr. San Roman—

"—neither I nor Mr. San Roman or the International Industries were responsible for the condition of the merchandise or the quality of the merchandise; that that was the sole obligation of the shipper."—is a legal conclusion.

By Mr. Kahn: It is part of the conversation, coupled with page 30 where Lazarus says,

"I agree that the shipper is responsible for it."

By The Court: Wait a minute:

"Q. What did you tell him after he told you that the tequila was being held up by the Federal Food and Drug Administration?"

"A. Well, I told him that I felt very badly about it, but, after all, neither I nor Mr. San Roman or the International Industries were responsible for the condition of the merchandise or the shipment of the merchandise or the quality of the merchandise; that that was the sole obligation of the shipper."

313 Those are self-serving statements.

By Mr. Heineman: He was concerned about his own liability.

By The Court:

"And I suggested that he contact the shipper in Mexico. And then it was that he said to me, 'We want our money back.'"

By Mr. Heineman:

"We want our money back."

By The Court: You can have that much of it if you want to take it,

"—he said to me, 'We want our money back.'"

If you want that you can have it.

By Mr. Kahn: I think we are entitled to the entire conversation.

By The Court: I think that the rest of it is self-serving.

By Mr. Kahn: How can you couple it with Lazarus' statement on page 30? It is all part of the general conversation.

By The Court: If you want that statement,

"We want our money back"—by Lazarus, you can have it.

By Mr. Kahn: It was said, your Honor.

By The Court: You can have it now, but you can't 314 have anything else on pages 28 or 29.

By Mr. Heineman: Maybe I don't understand.

By The Court: You can put in that Mr. Lazarus said to Mr. Todes,

"We want our money back."

By Mr. Heineman: And that is all?

By The Court: That is all.

By Mr. Kahn: Just that one sentence?

By The Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: The rest of it is out?

By The Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: Well, it might as well all go.

By The Court: All right.

I can't remember—there was no conversation about refiltering before that?

By Mr. Kahn: There probably was not.

By Mr. Heineman: No.

By Mr. Kahn: You are on page 30 now?

By The Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: I think the first answer he gave is competent; quoting Lazarus:

"A. He said, 'I agree that the shipper is responsible for it.'"

The probative force is a factual question for the jury, what he actually meant, whether he meant as Mr. 315 Heineman says, or meant anything different, that is a matter of argument. But that is factual. And we have a right to show his conception of this transaction.

By The Court: You can still argue even though he acknowledged it was the shipper and not International Industries.

By Mr. Kahn: I can argue what he meant was that he wasn't going to hold him liable.

Does your Honor rule with me on that page 30?

By The Court: Just a minute. You may have that answer at the top of page 30:

"A. He said, 'I agree that the shipper is responsible for it.' He said, 'We want our money back.' He said, 'I am not saying that it is your fault but it is the shipper's fault.'"

Now, as to this rebottling, there was a proposal from your client. That was an effort to get him to do something which he was not obligated to do.

By Mr. Kahn: The shipper had agreed to do it.

By The Court: I cannot see why he should be burdened with that.

By Mr. Kahn: If your Honor please, he is not entitled to his commission.

316 By Mr. Heineman: He means the plaintiff.

By Mr. Kahn: I see.

By The Court: The plaintiff had no obligation.

By Mr. Kahn: In view of the drop in the market?

By The Court: I am not concerned with the drop in the market. He had no obligation to refilter and rebottle. That was the proposal.

Objection sustained to the rest of page 30 and to all of page 31.

You may have the first question and the answer on page 32, if you like it; you may have all of page 32, down to the middle of the page:

"—and I said, 'You will be making a mistake, Mort, because you can't collect from them. Neither they nor I are responsible for the shipment of this merchandise.'"

You may have all of that page down to that line if you want it.

By Mr. Kahn: Up to that line?

By The Court: Down to that line, from the top down to that line.

By Mr. Heineman: All of page 33 is objected to, your Honor.

By The Court: Objection sustained to 33.

By Mr. Heineman: All of page 34 is objected to.

317 By The Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: 35 and 36 are likewise objected to.

By The Court: Page 35, objection sustained.

Objection to 36 sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: 37 is objected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: Page 38 I think is competent. It is a conversation with one of the attorneys of the Globe Liquor Company.

By the Court: Objection sustained down to:

"Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Albert Young, one of the attorneys for Globe Liquor Company?"

Objection sustained.

The rest of the page, beginning with that question, is admitted.

By Mr. Heineman: I have no objection to page 39, down to the cross examination—39 and 40.

By The Court: All right. They may be admitted.

Is there any of the cross examination of the witness that you want in?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes, there was, in view of your Honor's ruling—

By The Court: I say, in view of my ruling is 318 there any that you want in?

By Mr. Heineman: At the bottom of page 41 there is a question and answer as to which I think, however, after Mr. Kahn's admission in his opening statement is sufficient, so that I don't need it, although I think I would like it in, and the next question and answer at the top of the page.

By the Court: I think to be consistent I will have to sustain the objection.

By Mr. Heineman: I agree. I withdraw that.

By Mr. Kahn: What goes out?

By Mr. Heineman: So far everything is out. I haven't put in any of the cross at all.

By Mr. Kahn: You don't want any of the cross?

By Mr. Heineman: Just a second. I am checking it.

By Mr. Kahn: I don't believe you can simply withdraw the cross examination because you don't like it.

By Mr. Heineman: The rulings of his Honor—

By Mr. Kahn: What do you want out of it?

By Mr. Heineman: At the moment I don't want anything in.

By Mr. Kahn: There is nothing in it about the contract; it is all the situation of the parties.

By Mr. Heineman: In view of your direct, which his Honor has largely eliminated, I think the cross with 319 respect to the conversation obviously is out.

By Mr. Kahn: I don't see anything said about conversation. You are asking pointed question.

By Mr. Heineman: You mean you have no objection to my cross examination going in?

By Mr. Kahn: No.

By Mr. Heineman: Under the circumstances I will let my cross stand, your Honor, if there is no objection.

By Mr. Kahn: There are a couple of objections, just turning these pages over, that I wanted to bring out.

By Mr. Heineman: It is perfectly silly to have the cross go in when there is no direct in the record for the jury.

By Mr. Kahn: I will even withdraw every objection I have got here, to save time.

By Mr. Heineman: No. Because on cross, for example page 46, just to give you one example:

"Q. You testified that in the course of that conversation you advised Mr. Lazarus that the International Industries were not responsible for the quality of the merchandise?"

That was a rephrasing of his direct.

By Mr. Kahn: We will have to go through it, I am afraid, then, page by page like we did on the direct.

320 By Mr. Heineman: Very well.

Page 40. As far as I am concerned page 40 is all right.

By Mr. Kahn: You make up your mind what you want out.

By Mr. Heineman: I would like 41 to stand.

By Mr. Kahn: All right.

By Mr. Heineman: And 42 to stand.

By Mr. Kahn: All right.

By Mr. Heineman: Those are without objection by you?

By Mr. Kahn: Yes, I say.

By Mr. Heineman: And 43 to stand. Wait just a minute, I don't see any point to where I start explaining the order, there is no point in repeating that.

By Mr. Kahn: Do you want it out?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: All right, it is out.

By The Court: Where is that?

By Mr. Heineman: Page 43, where it says:

"Mr. Heineman: May it be stipulated that a true copy of the order"—

That simply refers to Exhibit 1.

By Mr. Kahn: 44 can go out because Lazarus covered it.

By Mr. Heineman: Which reminds me, you never produced that letter.

By Mr. Kahn: I never could find it.

By Mr. Heineman: Page 43, starting with "Mr. Heineman" and the balance of page 43, down to the question at the bottom of page 44,

"Q. Now, how many copies of that order were made?"

I would like that and what follows to stay in.

By Mr. Kahn: All right.

By Mr. Heineman: I would like 45 to stay in.

By Mr. Kahn: All right.

By Mr. Heineman: And the identification at the bottom of page 45:

"Mr. Heineman: Q. Now I show you a letter dated March 24, 1944, that is attached to the complaint"—

There is no point for that. Let that go out.

By Mr. Kahn: All right.

By Mr. Heineman: The same thing, all of 46 can go out.

By Mr. Kahn: All of 46 out?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes, all of 46 out.

All of 47 can go out except the question—wait just 322 a minute now, I am sorry—on 47, down to the question:

“Q. In the course of your conversation with Mr. Lazarus:—”

I would like the top part of 47 down to that point to go out.

I would like all of 48 to stay in. And 49.

Of course, it doesn't make any sense; it is perfectly good stuff for cross, but it doesn't make a bit of sense to put it in in view of the rulings on the direct—it doesn't make any sense to the jury.

By Mr. Kahn: Do you want it in, or not—page 49?

By Mr. Heineman: Starting at page 48, the middle, where it says “Liquor is often imported,” I would like that out, and everything after that out, on 48, 49 out.

By Mr. Kahn: You want 50 out?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: 51 out?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: 52?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: 53?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

323 By Mr. Kahn: 54?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes. 55 out.

By Mr. Kahn: I want 55 in.

By Mr. Heineman: All right.

By Mr. Kahn: Will your Honor turn to page 55?

By The Court: I have it.

By Mr. Kahn: Mr. Heineman's question:

“Q. Why did you return the commission of $750 that you had been paid by the Globe Liquor Company?”

“A. Mr. Lazarus is a friend of mine and he wrote me and told me that he would like to have the check back, and to keep his friendship I returned the check. Seven hundred and fifty didn't mean that much to me. Not that I couldn't use it; don't misunderstand me.”

By Mr. Heineman: All right, let it stay in from that point on.

“Q. Why did you return the commission—”
~~From there on down to the bottom.~~

By Mr. Kahn: We will return our commission, too, if you will take it.

By Mr. Heineman: I will take 55; from that point on.

324 And 56.

By Mr. Kahn: You mean you want it in?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes. I think that he put it right on the line—that question and answer.

“Q. Now, you also testified that in the course of your conversation with Mr. Lazarus on March 16, 1944, you advised him that it would be safer for him to have the letter of credit made payable to the International Industries;”

and so on.

It is my understanding you are not making objection to that, is that correct?

By Mr. Kahn: You heard me.

By Mr. Heineman: I say, is that correct, so the reporter gets it.

By Mr. Kahn: Yes, I am not making any objection.

By Mr. Heineman: 55 from that point.

And 56.

And the same thing is true of 57.

By Mr. Kahn: Do you want 57 in?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

And 58 down to the redirect.

This is the dilemma you get into in this kind of procedure, because I object to those questions but counsel doesn't object to the cross though I object to the redirect and the record becomes very one-sided:

325 By Mr. Kahn: Do you object to anything on 58?

By Mr. Heineman: You mean you will let it go out by agreement?

By The Court: I can't hear you.

By Mr. Kahn: If you want it out, let it go out. The redirect, do you want it out? There is nothing of any particular probative force on 58 or 59 or 60.

By Mr. Heineman: Just a minute.

By The Court: The fact is I don't know what you are cross examining on.

By Mr. Heineman: No. There is no direct left. And it seems to me the record becomes confused. I do not want by this kind of procedure to introduce error into this record. And it seems to me we are very apt to do that. I think in view of your Honor's ruling on the direct it simply confuses the jury. And I withdraw all cross examination in view of the fact that there is nothing now before the jury on the direct.

By Mr. Kahn: Oh, no, that cross examination your Honor has let in.

By The Court: I have stated to you that in view of my rulings on the direct I do not see anything material to cross examine on.

326 By Mr. Heineman: No, I agree.

By Mr. Kahn: You did admit two or three of those.

By The Court: You can get the cross examination of what I let in that is relevant and material.

By Mr. Heineman: I say the cross becomes irrelevant.

By The Court: All the rest of it is irrelevant, just wasting time.

By Mr. Kahn: I am objecting to this record and making my offer. And to save time I will state now that re-direct 58, 59, 60 and 61 can go out. And I agree with you. All right?

By Mr. Heineman: All right.

By Mr. Kahn: I would like 62 to stay. That refers to the drop in the market value of tequila. This man is an expert.

By The Court: There is no relevancy to the issue.

By Mr. Heineman: None at all.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: 62, that goes out. All right. The same ruling he is making on the balance of that, and 63, about the bottom dropping out of the tequila market.

By The Court: It has no particular relevancy. It has no materiality, rather.

By Mr. Kahn: Then the rest of it I assume you 327 want out?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: All right.

—May we be excused until two o'clock, your Honor?

By The Court (Addressing the Marshal): Let the jury go until two o'clock.

We will recess until two o'clock.

(Whereupon a recess herein was taken until 2:00 o'clock P. M. of the same day, March 14, 1946.)

328

• • (Caption—No. 45 C 120) • •

Chicago, Illinois, March 14, 1946, 2:00 o'clock p. m.

Met pursuant to recess.

Present: Mr. Heineman, Mr. Kahn.

And thereupon the following further proceedings were had herein:—

By The Clerk: 45 C 120. Globe Liquor Co., Inc., against Frank San Roman, on trial.

By The Court: Proceed.

By Mr. Kahn: I think we can go ahead with some oral testimony in behalf of the defendant.

(Thereupon the jury took their places in the jury box, and the following further proceedings were had herein in the presence and hearing of the jury—)

By Mr. Kahn: I will call Mr. Frank San Roman, the defendant, to the stand.

329 FRANK SAN ROMAN, one of the defendants herein, having been called as a witness on behalf of the defendants, and having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination by Mr. Kahn.

Q. Now speak up plainly and loudly, Mr. San Roman, so that I can hear you back here, and keep your voice up.

Will you state your name in full?

A. Frank San Roman.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 5915 North Keating Avenue.

Q. Chicago, Illinois?

A. Chicago, Illinois.

Q. What is your business?

A. Yes.

Q. To whom?

A. Mrs. Dorothea San Roman.

Q. How many children have you?

A. Three.

Q. Are you in business with your wife?

330 A. Yes.

Q. Is it a partnership? A. Yes.

Q. What is the name of the firm? A. International Industries.

Q. How many locations do you have in your business?

By Mr. Heineman: Objection.

By Mr. Kahn: I want to show who they are and the extent of their business.

By The Court: Well, you can show what their address is.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. What is your business address? A. 600 South Michigan Avenue.

Q. Do you occupy a suite there? A. That is correct.

Q. How many offices do you have there?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Do you have any other location? A. No.

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By Mr. Kahn:

331 Q. Do you have any warehouses? A. No.

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Do you conduct a brokerage business as well as an export business?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By Mr. Kahn: I have a right to show that they do, your Honor.

By The Court: He may answer.

By The Witness:

A. Yes.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Are you a citizen of the United States? A. Yes.

Q. When were you naturalized? A. 1942.

Q. Is your wife a citizen? A. Yes.

Q. Are you in the liquor business?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

332 Q. Do you have a liquor importer's license?

By Mr. Heineman: Obejected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Did you ever have a liquor importer's license?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By The Court: Sustained. Strike out the answer. Don't answer until objection is ruled on.

By Mr. Heineman: I ask that the answer be stricken.

By The Court: Strike it out.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Relative to this transaction of 750 cases of tequila, are you familiar with it? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know Gabriel Todes? A. Yes.

Q. Was he employed by you as a salesman? A. Yes.

Q. When? A. I believe it was in the latter part of 1943 or the early part of 1944, I don't remember correctly.

Q. Did you have a conversation with him when 333 you employed him? A. Several conversations.

Q. When and where? A. In my office, most of them.

Q. All right. Did you tell him what his authority was?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you tell him? A. I told him that—

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Did Mr. Todes have any authority other than that to submit orders to you for this tequila?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to as leading and irrelevant.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. This merchandise was shipped to Globe Liquor Company, wasn't it? A. Correct.

Q. Directly from Mexico? A. That is correct.

Q. You have had some experience with letters of 334 credit on transactions where tequila and other liquor was shipped from Mexico during 1943 and 1944?

By Mr. Heineman: The form of the question is certainly objectionable; this is not cross examination.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Heineman: This is direct.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Have you had any experience in connection with letters of credit covering shipments of tequila and other liquors, being made directly from Mexico to the United States during the latter part of 1943 and 1944? A. Yes.

Q. How many of those transactions did you handle?

By Mr. Heineman: That is objected to as irrelevant. It has no bearing on the issues.

By Mr. Kahn: It shows familiarity with the procedure and in customs.

By The Court: You may answer.

By The Witness:

A. About three or four transactions.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Are the regulations and practices of the people in Mexico different from those in this country?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Now when the 750 cases of tequila was paid for by the Globe Liquor Company, was that money paid to you?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: I think I have a right to show that, your Honor.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. What part of the purchase price for the 750 cases of tequila paid for by Globe Liquor Company did your firm receive?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn:

Q. Did you ever assign the letter of credit that the Chase National Bank gave you in this case?

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to.

By Mr. Kahn: It is susceptible of assignment.

By Mr. Heineman: The question of whether or not 336 it has been assigned has no relationship to the liability of the parties here.

By Mr. Kahn: It is subject to assignment.

By The Court: Sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: I want to make an offer of proof, if the Court please of a number of things.

By The Court: Step into the jury room Ladies and Gentlemen.

(And thereupon the jury retired from the court room and the following further proceedings herein were had out of the presence and hearing of the jury—)

By Mr. Kahn: On behalf of the defendants I should like to make the following offer of proof:

That if the witness Frank San Roman would be permitted to testify in answer to the questions I would ask him, he would testify to the following facts:

That the letter of credit of the Chase National Bank was assigned by him in its entirety to The First National Bank of Chicago, who in turn assigned the letter of credit or issued a supplementary or other letter of credit in favor of the Mexican shipper for the full purchase price of the 750 cases at $10.75 a case.

337 That when the Globe Liquor Company ultimately paid or the Chase National Bank paid the amount of this full purchase price, that no part of the purchase price or the funds were handled by International Industries.

That the moneys or drafts drawn by International Industries against this transaction were advanced by the First National Bank of Chicago who sent the money to Mexico in its entirety.

That the First National in turn sent the title papers and all the documents evidencing the shipment to the Chase National Bank who reimbursed the First National Bank for the amount of that draft.

That after the Mexican shipper receives the entire purchase price at invoice it caused the sum of $1,012.50, the agreed brokerage at $1.35 a case on the 750 cases to be paid to Mr. San Roman, that is to say, his firm.

That the sum of $1,012.50 is the total sum that International Industries has received as a commission or brokerage as a result of this transaction.

I also offer to prove by this witness that under the manner of doing business in Mexico at the time the Mexican shipper would not send on the invoice and the bill of lading and the consular certificate and the other documents called for in the letter of credit until the Mexican shipper was paid the full invoice price in its entirety.

I also offer to prove by this witness that out of the $1,012.50, which was his total gross brokerage compensation as the result of this transaction, he incurred the following charges:

|--|----------|
| First National Bank sundry charges..... | $ 43.81 |
| Commission to G. H. Todes..... | 150.00 |
| Commission to R. Turlan y Cia., | |
| S de R. L..... | 241.88 |
| Refund to Pine Needle de Mexico, | |
| S. Derl for insurance and Mexican taxes..... | 63.58 |
| Long Distance calls and cable charges | |
| (Prorated) | 59.95 |
| Travelling expenses in connection | |
| with two trips by Mr. F. San Roman prior to | |
| June 1, 1944 (prorated) | 111.11 |

|-------|----------|
| Total | $670.34 |
|-------|----------|

That Mr. San Roman made further trips in the fall of 1944 in an effort to induce the shipper to adjust the controversy here, and incurred an additional expense.

339 That is the offer of proof.

By The Court: Any objection?

By Mr. Heineman: I have no objection to his making an offer of proof.

By The Court: Any objection to the receipt?

By Mr. Heineman: No.

By The Court: You do object to the evidence?

By Mr. Heineman: I do object to the evidence.

By The Court: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Kahn: All right. You may cross examine.

By Mr. Heineman: No questions.

By The Court: Bring in the jury.

You may step down.

(Witness excused.)

(Thereupon the jury took their places in the jury box, and the following further proceedings were had herein in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence Defendants' Exhibit 1, an original letter of the Globe Liquor Company dated April 21, 1944, signed by M. L. Lazarus, President.

340 By Mr. Heineman: Objected to as immaterial.

By Mr. Kahn: The purpose is in the third paragraph, the appointment of Jovita Perez, as their broker; that is the purpose for which that document is offered.

By The Court: I do not see the materiality of it.

By Mr. Kahn: I want to show the appointment, in the fourth paragraph, of Jovita Perez as their broker.

By The Court: That doesn't make any difference.

By Mr. Kahn: Do you concede as a fact that she was your broker?

By Mr. Heineman: I regard the entire matter as immaterial.

By The Court: Immaterial, sustained.

(Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 1 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as aforesaid. Defendants' Exhibit 1 for identification is as follows:—)

341 By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit 2 letter of Globe Liquor Company dated April 27, 1944, addressed to Pine Needle de Mexico, S. do R. L. Mexico, signed by Mr. Lazarus.

By Mr. Heineman: Objection, as immaterial.

By Mr. Kahn: Now that shows—there is an admission that the International acted as brokers, in the second line, your Honor, there of that letter.

By Mr. Heineman: If the Court please, in addition to the objection on the ground of immateriality, I do not understand—

By Mr. Kahn: There is only one line, one word in that letter that is competent, the second sentence.

By the Court: I don't think it throws any light on the situation.

By Mr. Kahn: It says "Purchased through International Industries".

By the Court: Objection sustained.

(Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 2 for identification. The Court re-
342 fused to admit said document so offered as afore-said. Defendants' Exhibit 2 for identification is as follows:—)

343 By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit 3 original telegram of Globe Liquor Company dated May 17, 1944.

By Mr. Heineman: I have no objection.

By the Court: Let it be received.

(Said document was received in evidence by the Court and marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 3. Said document is as follows:—)

344 Mr. Kahn: This telegram, if the jury please, Defendants' Exhibit 3, is as follows:

"Wilmington Del 1024 A May 17 44

Intl Industries 600 S Michigan Ave Chicago Ill. Our bank advised they have authorized Chase to extend credit to June 15- Globe Liquor Co 945 A"

By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit 4 letter of International Industries dated May 10, 1944, addressed to Globe Liquor Company—and counsel makes a good suggestion—I also offer as a companion to Defendants' Exhibit 4, Defendants' Exhibit 5, which is the affidavit of Gonzalo A. Larrea, dated April 28, 1944.

By Mr. Heineman: Both Defendants' Exhibits 4 and 5 are objected to on the ground, first, that they are immaterial; second, on the ground that assuming that this disclosed the name of a seller it does not show who the seller was—and more important, in any event it is the disclosure of the name of principal, on the defendants' theory, long after the contract was entered into and the parties bound.

345 By Mr. Kahn: There wasn't any binding liability until the merchandise was shipped. It wasn't shipped until May 22. These are dated May 10. They contain the name of the shipper.

By Mr. Heineman: Under the authorities shown your Honor this morning from Illinois it is clear that the doctrine of partial disclosure applies.

By the Court: Objection sustained.

(Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 4 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as aforesaid. Defendants' Exhibit 4 for identification is as follows:—)

346 (Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 5 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as aforesaid. Defendants' Exhibit 5 for identification is as follows:—)

347 By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit 6 original letter of Jovita Perez dated May 27, 1944, containing the name of the shipper, addressed to International Industries, with a carbon copy to Globe Liquor Company.

By Mr. Heineman: It is conceded in accordance with the stipulation that Globe Liquor Company received a carbon copy. But the letter is objected to as immaterial.

By Mr. Kahn: It also discloses the name of the shipper before the merchandise came up here.

By the Court: Objection sustained.

(Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 6 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as aforesaid. Exhibit 6 for identification is as follows:)

348 By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit 7 letter of International Industries to Globe Liquor Company dated May 27, 1944, telling them that the merchandise left Mexico on May 22.

Any objection?

By Mr. Heineman: No.

By the Court: It may be received.

(Said document was received in evidence by the Court and marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 7. Said exhibit is as follows:—)

349 By Mr. Kahn: I will read this, if your Honor please.

By the Court: Very well.

"May 27, 1944

"Globe Liquor Co., Inc.,
18th and Market Streets,
Wilmington, Delaware.

Att: Mr. M. L. Lazarus

Gentlemen:

We are pleased to advise that your lot of Mariachi Tequila was shipped from Mexico on May 22nd in Car RI-159322. We would suggest therefore, that you communicate with your broker in Laredo.

Yours very truly,
International Industries

Managing-Director"

By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence as Defendants' Exhibits 8, 9 and 10—

Defendants' Exhibit 8 being a declaration of shipper of food drug and cosmetic products signed Gonzalo A. Larrea, dated May 23, 1944, in Mexico, containing a certificate as to the character of the merchandise;

350 Defendants' Exhibit 9 being the notice of Gonzalo A. Larrea to Globe Liquor Company covering that shipment dated May 23, 1944.

And Defendants' Exhibit 10 the special consular certificate in Mexico dated May 23, 1944, of Larrea, and having the United States' consular invoice attached.

I might say further that these last three documents came from the possession of the Globe Liquor Company. They were given to me by their counsel.

By Mr. Heineman: The offer is objected to, your Honor, on the ground of immateriality.

By Mr. Kahn: This is part of our case and shows who sold it.

By Mr. Heineman: They show nothing whatever. And further, even on the defendants' theory for which they are offered they are contrary to the doctrine in Illinois of the partially disclosed principal.

By Mr. Kahn: That is in strict compliance with the letter of credit, shipper's invoice from Mexico.

By Mr. Heineman: It would not have mattered so far as payment was concerned under the letter of credit 351 whose name was on those documents.

By Mr. Kahn: The letter of credit says "shipper's invoices".

By Mr. Heineman: That is to say whether it would have been Gonzalo A. Larrea or anyone else.

By Mr. Kahn: That is right, "shipper's invoice".

By Mr. Heineman: It could have been anyone who delivered it to the railroad.

By Mr. Kahn: In accordance with the letter of credit. It came out of the Globe files.

By Mr. Heineman: That admission has been conceded before this case started.

I object to the reception of these documents.

By the Court: Objection sustained.

(Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 8 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as aforesaid. Defendants' Exhibit 8 for identification is as follows:—)

352 (Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 9 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as aforesaid. Defendants' Exhibit 9 for identification is as follows:—)

353 (Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 10 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as aforesaid. Defendants' Exhibit 10 for identification is as follows:—)

354 By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit 11 a telegram dated July 22, 1944, addressed to Globe Liquor Company by Gonzalo A. Larrea, offering to refilter and rebottle the shipments.

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to as immaterial; no duty on the plaintiff to act in accordance with an unknown person's instructions. Objected to on the grounds stated in our discussion this morning.

By the Court: Objection sustained.

(Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 11 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as afore-said. Defendants' Exhibit 11 for identification is as follows:—)

355 By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit 12 letter of G. H. Todes to Globe Liquor Company dated July 12, 1944, suggesting the names of three rectifiers to rebottle and refilter the shipment.

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to on several grounds: It is immaterial; it is self-serving; and there is no duty upon the plaintiff to do any of the things suggested by Mr. Todes.

By the Court: Objection sustained.

(Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 12 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as afore-said. Defendants' Exhibit 12 for identification is as follows:—)

356 By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit 13 letter of Globe Liquor Company to International Industries, dated July 24, 1944, which acknowledges receipt of a telegram from "your principals in Mexico."

By Mr. Heineman: Objected to on the ground as being after the event and after the defendants had advised plaintiff that they were acting as agent; and that it is immaterial on the question of liability with due relationship of it in point of time to the transaction.

By the Court: Objection sustained.

(Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 13 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as aforesaid. Defendants' Exhibit 13 for identification is as follows:)

357 By Mr. Kahn: I offer in evidence as Defendants' Exhibit 14 the Globe letter dated July 27, 1944, refusing to use the tequila in view of present liquor market conditions. That is Defendants' Exhibit 14.

By Mr. Heineman: Objection for the same reason heretofore stated.

By the Court: Objection sustained.

(Which said document so offered in evidence by the defendants, was marked DEFENDANTS' EXHIBIT 14 for identification. The Court refused to admit said document so offered as aforesaid. Defendants' Exhibit for for identification is as follows:—)

358 By Mr. Kahn: That completes the documentary proof offered by defendants.

Now, if your Honor will just permit me to check my notes for just a minute or two.

By the Court: Yes.

By Mr. Kahn: Defendants rest.

And thereupon the Defendants rested their case.

By Mr. Heineman: Plaintiff rests, and moves that the Court instruct the jury to return a verdict in favor of the plaintiff in the amount stated in the evidence.

By Mr. Kahn: I should like to be heard.

By the Court: Step into the jury room, Ladies and Gentlemen.

(And thereupon the jury retired from the court room, and the following further proceedings herein were had out of the presence and hearing of the jury:—).

By Mr. Heineman: I can be very brief, if your Honor wishes to hear from me.

By the Court: I do not see any defense.

By Mr. Heineman: No.

359 By Mr. Kahn: Of course, the scope of my argument is necessarily greatly limited by reason of your Honor's rulings. I won't take up your time now trying to get you to reverse any of those rulings, but simply confine myself to the record as it is.

There are the following factual questions left in the case as the record stands now:

The jury are the sole judges of the inferences and probative value of Mr. Lazarus' admissions in open court, that he knew that International were acting as brokers, and that they were getting a commission—I am quoting his words of "a broker". I know he definitely used the word, "commission".

Couple that with the express stipulations in the letter of credit issued by Chase National—which is no stranger to these transactions, particularly foreign transactions, containing express stipulations.

I am also confined by your Honor's prior ruling that the letter of credit is part of the written contract here.

The written contract evidenced by this letter of credit stipulates conditions. Under your Honor's ruling this is the only thing that constitutes the contract. I know.
360 Mr. Heineman will concede that.

Construe them all together and be guided by them. The order refers to a sixty-day letter of credit. And what are the terms of the letter of credit? If you construe them together as one contract it could only be made by the letter of credit and pursuant to its terms.

And what was the deal as evidenced by the letter of credit?

So far as this letter of credit shows it shows that the buyers insisted that they would have to have, not the bill of sale or the invoices of International, they didn't care anything about International, they insisted on getting invoices directly from the shipper, whoever he might be.

They were told the name of the shipper in the proof that was offered here.

The merchandise did not leave Mexico until May 22.

The draft was paid at the First National.

The shipping documents were sent by the First National east after the First National paid the drafts.

The Chase National examined these documents. They are in order.

They could have refused to admit any liability under this letter of credit if the invoices were those of International.

And in all fairness plaintiff's position is that they seek to hold International on a letter of credit where International has no part of the performance here, had no control over the shipment, had no control over the documents.

You couple that with the deposition of Todes, which has been permitted to remain—that portion that you did, and I think the Court should let the case go to the jury on this one quotation as to its probative force:

Todes testified that he went to Lazarus and said, "I agree that the shipper is responsible for it."

He said, "We want our money back."

He said, "I am not saying it is your fault but it is the shipper's fault."

That is the truth, because it was not denied. And Mr. Lazarus had full opportunity to deny that statement of a totally disinterested, credible witness who was his own friend.

On that alone it should go to the jury as to his understanding of the deal under the terms of the letter of credit and his understanding after the shipment came in and was detained.

362 There is another factual question for the jury to pass on in this case:

Was the sampling by the Government a fair one?

The only evidence thus far is—and taking it in its most favorable inferences, that ten percent of the shipment contained deleterious or harmful matter.

And I can't do any better than repeat the analogy that I gave you yesterday; that it all depends on what the market conditions are as to whether rejection of nine-tenths presumably good merchandise is justified.

And the jury have a right to use their own knowledge and their own inferences as to the real reason for rejecting the merchandise.

And it is obvious that that was done because of the drop in the market.

The jury have a right to determine from the various inferences that may arise out of a thing, out of the reasonable pleadings we have here, what was the meaning of the word "assigns" in this letter of credit; particularly when it is coupled to the stipulations in the letter of credit that the Letter of Credit demanded the production of shipper's invoices.

363 I think there is enough here to go to the jury, to let the jury pass on, I think, as a matter of law, that there are contested issues of fact here that the jury should and must pass upon.

By The Court: I do not think there is any issue of fact. I do not think there is any defense. What was the amount? (Addressing plaintiff's counsel).

By Mr. Heineman: It was read into the record, and I am sorry the notations were apparently destroyed.

By The Court: Take a short recess.

(After a short recess, the following:—)

By Mr. Heineman: The amount, your Honor, is $9,704.25.

By Mr. Kahn: If your Honor pleases, I want to file a written motion for an instructed verdict at the conclusion of all the evidence.

By The Court: Very well. Let it be filed. It may be denied.

And thereupon at the close of all the evidence the defendants moved the Court in writing to instruct the jury to find the defendants not guilty; but the Court denied said motion and refused to give said
364 instruction to the jury, and marked said motion "Denied" and said instruction refused; which said motion and which said instruction are as follows:

365 By The Court: How much did you say the amount was?

By Mr. Heineman: $9,704.25.

By The Court: $9,704.25?

By Mr. Heineman: Yes, your Honor.

By The Court: Bring in the jury.

(Thereupon the jury returned to their places in the jury box, and the following further proceedings herein were had in the presence and hearing of the jury:—)

By The Court: Ladies and Gentlemen of the Jury, the evidence has been completed in this case; and having been completed it appears that the defendants have no defense, and have presented no defense to this jury.

Accordingly it becomes the duty of the Court to direct the jury to find a verdict for the plaintiff in the amount which was shown by the evidence to have been expended by the plaintiff for this tequila which we have heard about; that sum is Nine Thousand Seven Hundred and Four Dollars Twenty-five Cents ($9,704.25).

Accordingly I now direct you to render a verdict for that amount. And I appoint this gentleman here in the first chair in the first row (indicating) Foreman of this jury; and you may sign first, sir, and then you may all sign.

366 Will you furnish these folks with a pen, Mr. Clerk?
You can sign right there.

(Jurors signing said verdict.)

By A Juror: Your Honor, before I sign, may I ask the Court one question?

By The Court: Yes.

By The Juror: What has become of this shipment?

By the Court: The United States destroyed it.

(Jurors continued the signing of said verdict.)

(Verdict handed to the Clerk.)

By the Court: You may enter the verdict, Mr. Clerk. Thank you for your attention, Ladies and Gentlemen. Let there be judgment on the verdict.

By Mr. Kahn: I just called Mr. Heineman's attention that I assume from our comment as we went along on the Todes deposition that what went out will stay out, it will simply be offered as an offer of proof, and the few fragments that were left in will be considered as introduced in the record. I did not take the time or the trouble to read those in.

By The Court: They were not introduced.

By Mr. Kahn: I know they were not and that is why Mr. Heineman is now consenting to let me put them 367 in.

By Mr. Heineman: He inadvertently omitted it and I am reluctant frankly to take advantage of an omission by counsel which I know is inadvertent.

By The Court: You are agreeing that those fragments to which objections were not sustained may go in?

By Mr. Heineman: I am agreeing that they may go in.

By The Court: That only had to do with the direct testimony.

By Mr. Heineman: That is correct.

By The Court: Very well.

Dear Mr. Lazarus:

This will confirm our telephone conversation of this morning relative to your order of Mariachi Tequila Gold, wherein the price for the Gold is $10.75, which is 25c more than the White, and which was agreeable to you.

Will you please forward to me your confirmation on this price, as I have already advised International Industries to cable your order to Mexico.

Please execute your letter of credit exactly in accordance with the form which I left with you, with the exception of changing the price from $10.50 to $10.75, and substituting your own customs broker in the place of Jovita Perez, if you so desire.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank you again for your patronage.

Kindest regards;

Dear Gabe:

This confirms our order placed with you last week for 750 cases of Mariachi Tequila Gold @ $10.75 f.o.b. Lareda, Texas. We have put through the letter of credit in accordance with the specimen you left here, but I changed to Tequila where you had the word Vodka.

Be sure to instruct the International Industries that these cases cannot come into Delaware without the Delaware State stickers which will be sent to any address that is specified when they notify us that the shipment is ready to come forward.

These stickers are only sent after we have paid the state tax, so that you should wire us in ample time for us to pay the tax and have these stickers forwarded—one to be put on each case.

Trusting that this is clear to you and with kind personal regards,

Very truly yours,

Globe Liquor Company Inc.
Wilmington, Delaware

Gentlemen:

We are sending herewith copy of letter addressed to the Wilmington Trust Company of Wilmington, Delaware in which we acknowledge receipt of L/C No. 25668 in the amount of $8,062.50. We are also sending copy of L/C as established by The Chase National Bank of the City of New York by order of Wilmington Trust Co.

Likewise, we are sending a revised form of the credit as it should be. You will note that we have made two or three changes as follows:

1. Mexican shipper's commercial invoice in triplicate showing 750 cases Mexican Tequila (Gold Color) at $10.75 per case, Inbond CIF Laredo, Texas. We are thus interpolating the words inbond which do not appear on the original letter of credit.
2. Since yours represents only one-half of the entire car of 1,500 cases, the original bill of lading will have to be modified to indicate that the bill of lading will cover the entire lot of 1,500 cases and we have changed the wording of the original credit to read as follows: Original bill of lading, issued to order Mexican shipper, blank endorsed, evidencing shipment of 1,500 cases of Tequila to Laredo, Texas, it being understood that the balance of 750 cases represents a separate shipment included in the same car and destined for another consignee.

With the above changes referred to, the credit in our opinion would be in order.

Monday we expect to have additional labels from Mexico and we will send them to you for registration.

Globe Liquor Co., Inc.
P-5300

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
County of Philadelphia—ss.

Before me, Regina M. Sullivan, an employee of the Federal Security Agency, Food and Drug Administration, designated by the Federal Security Administrator, under authority of the Act of January 31, 1925, c. 124, sec. 1, 43 Stat. 803, and Reorganization Plan No. IV, Secs. 12-15, effective June 30, 1940, to administer or take oaths, affirmations and affidavits, personally appeared Robert C. Stanfill, in the Commonwealth and County aforesaid, who being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

I am an employee of the United States Government and I am Chief of the Philadelphia Station of the Food and Drug Administration of the Federal Security Agency, which Agency is charged with the enforcement of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act; that records on file in the said Food and Drug Administration, and which I have examined, show that a duly authorized wharf examiner of the Food and Drug Administration examined in possession of a United States bonded warehouse in Wilmington, Del., and collected from the bonded warehouse samples labeled, in part, as follows:

Sample—Laboratory No. P-5300

Product—Tequila

Label—"Mariachi Tequila Imported Prod. of Mexico
100 proof 4/5 quart."

That the shipment examined and sampled under No. P-5300 was from a lot of 750 cases of 12 bottles each covered by Entry WH-LA (Wilmington) Tequila 750 cs. (9000 bottles) S M 1/750 from Gonzalo A. Larrea, S de R. L. Mexico;

That on July 11, 1944, a representative of the Philadelphia Station of the Food and Drug Administration examined four cases or 48 bottles, the four cases having been taken at random without any selection;

That in the 48 bottles examined, he found present in 5 bottles what appeared to be particles of glass;

That he took as samples three of the 5 bottles in which glass particles appeared to be present and proceeded with them to the laboratory of Philadelphia Station of the Food and Drug Administration where examination of the particles in each of the three bottles showed the particles to be glass;

That notice was given the importer on July 11, 1944 and that a written notice was issued on Form FD-777, "Importer-Date of Hearing" on July 12, 1944, the notice of detention being sent to John A. Steer, Drexel Building, Philadelphia 6, Penna. with copies going to the Collector of Customs, Philadelphia, Penna., and Deputy Collector of Customs, Wilmington, Del. The notice bore notice that testimony could be given or a written statement could be filed in writing within three days after the notice; also "description of shipment", and "results of analysis:

'It is adulterated under Section 402 (a) (1) of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act of 1938 since it contains a foreign substance dangerous to health—glass particles.'";

That no response having been received, an identical notice was sent to John A. Steer, et al., on January 2, 1945, on which was conspicuously stamped "Second and Last Notice. Shipment will be Refused Entry if you Fail to Reply";

That no response or testimony was offered; therefore, the case was closed by this office on January 16, 1945 by an order for destruction or exportation of the goods, this order having issued on Form FD-776a;

That the procedures followed by the Food and Drug Administration were those customarily followed by Philadelphia Station under similar circumstances; and that the procedures followed were adequate to demonstrate that the shipment of Tequila is adulterated under Section 402 (a) (1) of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act of 1938 in that it contains a foreign substance which is dangerous to health; namely, glass particles.

Gentlemen:

We have your air mail letters of the 17th and 19th respectively.

We were under the impression that you thought a Delaware stamp had to be affixed to each bottle as is the case in some states, and for this reason we were trying to be explicit in telling you that there was no state stamp to go on the bottle, but one label is to go on the case. These went air mail the 17th.

We thought that you were going to furnish the Federal strip stamps and this is where the confusion arose. These 9,000 strip stamps were sent by air mail on Wednesday, April 19, 1944. These, however were not imprinted, so make sure that they are properly imprinted at the distillery, otherwise we are going to be in a bad position if the shipment comes to Delaware with the stamps not properly printed.

I took the matter up with Mr. Todes over the telephone and he assured me that all would be taken care of at the distillery. We have no broker here, and will thank you to get in touch for us with Jovita Perez and have her see that this shipment is properly forwarded to us upon its arrival at Lareda and bill us with any charges involved.

We have received the label approval through Mr. Denslow of course these labels also will have to be properly imprinted at the distillery.

We trust that all of this is now clear, and that this shipment will be coming out at an early date.

Very truly yours,

Regarding shipment covered by Invoice No. 5872, certified at Embassy of the United States of America, Mexico, D. F., Mexico, on May 23, 1944.

I, the undersigned, am the owner of the merchandise mentioned and described in the accompanying consular invoice. It consists of food, drug or cosmetic products (or devices as defined by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act) which contain no added substance injurious to health. These products were grown in Mexico and manufactured in Mexico by Gonzalo A. Larrea, S. De R. L., during the year 1944, and are exported from Mexico and consigned to Wilmington, Delaware, U. S. A. They Bear no false labels or marks, contain no added coloring matter except Ninguna no preservative (salt, sugar, vinegar, or wood smoke excepted) except Ninguna.

I further declare that such article or articles are not of such a character as to prohibit their entry into the United States in accordance with the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act in that they have not been manufactured, processed or packed under insanitary conditions, nor are they of a character to cause prohibition or restriction in sale in the country where made or from which exported, nor are they adulterated or misbranded, nor are they in violation of section 505 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

I further declare that the drug products herein mentioned and described contain no opium, coca leaves, cocaine, or any salt, derivative or preparation of opium, coca leaves, or cocaine, the importation of which into the United States is prohibited by the Narcotic Drugs Import and Export Act, as amended.

I do solemnly and truly declare the foregoing statements to be true, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Dated at Mexico, D. F. this 23rd day of Mayo De 1944.

Mr. Wolf,
Globe Liquor Company,
18th & Market Streets,
Wilmington, Delaware.

Dear Mr. Wolf:

In accordance with our conversation on the phone last evening, I have written to International Industries explaining the situation to them, and notified them that you, too, were writing them.

I would suggest that you obtain two copies of an application form which is necessary in order to go through the process of filtering the merchandise and rebottling it, which will be done under the supervision of the Food and Drug Administration whose offices, I think, are in Room 300 U. S. Appraisers Building, Gay and Water Streets, Baltimore 2, Maryland. I believe they will advise you where this can be done. In the event they don't know, or are not able to do so, I would suggest that you contact one of the rectifiers here in Baltimore, either United Distillers, Union Distillers, or Dundalk Liquor Company.

I regret extremely the occurrence of this situation, as it is the first time a shipment has been made, of all the thousands of cases from Mexico, in which there has been any trouble with the merchandise.

Of course, you understand that I have only acted in the capacity of a broker in bringing together a buyer and a seller, but I can assure you I will do everything I possibly can to help put you in a position to sell this merchandise.

Kindest regards,
Guy Todes
G. H. Todes.

Gentlemen:

We are in receipt of a telegram from your principals in Mexico in which they authorize us to have the 750 cases of Tequila filtered and rebottled. This is an impossibility, as in the first place there are no rectifiers or bottling plants in Delaware and we have our doubts whether any firm would be willing to tackle this job, as all of this rebottling and refiltering would have to be done in bond as we certainly would not tax pay this whiskey. Anyone large enough to have a bonded warehouse would not want to be annoyed with handling this class of work.

The amount of time consumed in getting all of this rebottled and relabeled would be so great that this merchandise would be unsaleable under present conditions here. In view of all of the above we must insist upon your refunding us the amount of money outlayed by us as was mentioned in our letter to you of the 20th.

Had this shipment come through in good order, we could have doubtless disposed of it without much difficulty. The order was placed in good faith, but you can well see that a further delay in getting this merchandise in shape would make it impossible for us to move any of it at this late date.

Very truly yours,
Globe Liquor Co., Inc.,

Gentlemen:

Replying to yours of the 26th inst., we wish to advise that we will be unable to use the Tequila, as the length of time required to recondition this merchandise would make it impossible to dispose of this, in view of the present liquor market conditions.

We only know you through this transaction, therefore you are the one that we look to for reimbursement, and you in turn are to look to your principals. We do not wish to be unreasonable, but we cannot permit this matter to drag any longer.

This order was placed in good faith, and had the merchandise arrived in good condition there would have been no trouble whatsoever.

We trust that you will avoid all unpleasantness by mailing us your check by return mail.

Very truly yours,

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR INSTRUCTED VERDICT.

Defendants, Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman, at the conclusion of all the evidence offered by the parties in the case, move the Court to direct a verdict for the defendants upon the cause of action asserted in plaintiff's complaint, and to instruct the jury to return a verdict for the defendants.

The motion of the defendants is based on the following grounds:

(1) The undisputed evidence proves that before the plaintiff incurred any liability on its original order or under the terms of the letter of credit that it caused to be issued, the plaintiff was informed that the shipper of the merchandise in question was Gonzalo A. Larrea, of Mexico City, Mexico, and that the defendants acted as the agents or brokers of said disclosed principal.

(2) At and prior to the time the plaintiff received this information, the plaintiff's original order was a mere request or offer to purchase the merchandise in question, which could be withdrawn at any time before being accepted by the shipper. The shipper had not notified the plaintiff that he had accepted said order 395 prior to the time the plaintiff was informed that the name of the shipper was Gonzalo A. Larrea, of Mexico City, Mexico.

750 23 750

(3) The burden of proof was on the plaintiff to prove that the merchandise was inferior, and the evidence that only a few bottles out of the entire shipment of 9,000 bottles were inferior did not justify the plaintiff in rejecting the entire shipment.

• • (Caption—No. 45 C 120) • •

This cause this day coming on for further trial re Globe Liquor Co., Inc. v. Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman doing business under the firm name and style of International Industries again come the parties to this suit by their attorneys, respectively, and the Jury heretofore empaneled and sworn herein also come and the trial of this cause proceeds. Both sides rest; the motion of the defendants for an instructed verdict in their favor is denied and the motion of the plaintiff for a directed verdict is entered, the arguments of counsel are heard and the Court being fully advised in the premises directs the Jury to render a verdict for the plaintiff and the Jury return their verdict in open Court and on their oath do say:

“We, the Jury, find the issues for the plaintiff and assess the plaintiff's damages at the sum of Nine thousand seven hundred four Dollars and twenty-five cents ($9704.25/100)”

Therefore

It Is Considered And Ordered by the Court that the plaintiff, Globe Liquor Co., Inc., a Delaware Corporation, do have and recover of and from the defendants, Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman doing business under the firm name and style of International Industries, its damages herein in the sum of Nine Thousand Seven Hundred Four Dollars and Twenty-five Cents ($9,704.25) in form as by the Jury assessed, together with its costs and charges in this behalf expended and have execution therefor.

399 And afterwards on, to wit, the 22nd day of March, 1946 came the Defendants by their attorneys and filed in the Clerk's office of said Court their certain Motion For A New Trial in words and figures following, to wit:

400 IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

• • (Caption—No. 45 C 120) • •

DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR A NEW TRIAL

Now comes the defendants, Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman, by Nat M. Kahn, their attorney, and move this Court for an order setting aside the verdict and judgment herein and granting the defendants a new trial of the above entitled cause, for the following reasons:

(1) The Court at the time it directed the jury to return a verdict in favor of the plaintiff was under the misapprehension that the tequila in question had been destroyed by the United States Government. It appears from the accompanying affidavit of the defendant, Frank San Roman, that the tequila in question was not destroyed and is still in the custody of the United States Government; and that the plaintiff accepted said merchandise by the payment of storage thereon from July 7, 1944, to February 28, 1946, and that the plaintiff furnished to the United States Government a warehouse entry bond guaranteeing the payment of all duties, taxes and other charges until July 7, 1947.

(2) At the time the plaintiff delivered the defendants the letter of credit issued by the Chase National Bank and the amendments and extensions thereunder, the shipper of the merchandise had not notified the plaintiff that its initial order of March 16, 1944, had been accepted. The delivery of this letter of credit to the defendants was part of the continuing unaccepted offer of the plaintiff to purchase the merchandise in question. Competent evidence was offered by the defendants that the name of the shipper of the merchandise was disclosed to the plaintiff by the defendants before the shipper ever accepted the plaintiff's initial order, and the plaintiff could have withdrawn or revoked its initial order and thereby cancelled any liability of any person under the letter of credit as soon as the plaintiff learned the identity of the shipper.

(3) The trial court disregarded the admission of Morton Lazarus, Vice President of the plaintiff corporation, who testified that he considered the defendants as brokers in the transaction. Mr. Lazarus testified that he had been in the liquor business all his life and was, therefore, completely familiar with the difference between a broker and a principal in a transaction.

(4) The Court erred in admitting incompetent evidence offered by the plaintiff.

(5) The Court erred in excluding competent evidence offered by the defendants.

(6) The Court erred in instructing the jury to return a verdict for the plaintiff and against the defendants, as the following contested questions of fact were presented by the evidence of both the plaintiff and the defendants:

402 A. Whether the plaintiff desired to purchase tequila directly from the shipper at Mexico and orally agreed to look only to the shipper for recourse for damages of any nature and agreed further not to look to the defendants for any recourse for any damages even if the name of the shipper had never been disclosed to the plaintiff.

B. Whether the plaintiff was justified in attempting to reject the acceptance of the entire shipment of Nine Thousand (9,000) bottles of liquor when only approximately Ten Per Cent (10%) out of this entire shipment was found to contain tequila unfit for human consumption.

C. Whether or not the plaintiff accepted the shipment regardless of its condition by the plaintiff paying the storage thereon from July 7, 1944, to February 28, 1946, and by furnishing a bond to the Government to pay all duties, taxes and other charges on said merchandise up to July 7, 1947.

D. Whether or not the act of the plaintiff in attempting to reject the acceptance of the entire shipment in view of the competent proof offered by the defendants as to the drop in the market price of the tequila at the time the plaintiff attempted to reject said entire shipment was justified.

E. Whether or not the shipper, Gonzalo A. Larrea, of Mexico City, Mexico, was relieved of any further duty to pay for the refiltering and rebottling of the merchandise in view of the refusal of the plaintiff to accept the telegraphic offer of the shipper to pay the cost of re-filtering and rebottling the merchandise.

403 Defendants request that during the time the Court may consider this motion for a new trial, that the Court enter an order staying the execution on the judgment entered in this cause.

DEFENDANTS-APPELLANTS' STATEMENT OF POINTS RELIED ON FOR REVERSAL OF JUDG-MENT ENTERED BY THIS COURT ON MARCH 15,
1946, IN FAVOR OF PLAINTIFF-APPELLEE AND AGAINST DEFENDANTS-APPELLANTS.

The points upon which defendants-appellants intend to rely on their appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit are as follows:

(a) The Court erred in entering judgment for the plaintiff-appellee and against the defendants-appellants in any sum.

(b) The Court erred in instructing the jury to return a verdict in favor of the plaintiff-appellee and against the defendants-appellants.

(c) The Court erred in denying the motion of the defendants-appellants for an instructed verdict and judgment in their favor at the conclusion of the plaintiff-appellee's case.

(d) The Court erred in denying the motion of the defendants-appellants for an instructed verdict and judgment in their favor at the conclusion of all of the evidence introduced and offered by both parties.

417 (e) The Court erred in denying the motion of the defendants-appellants for a new trial.

(f) The Court erred in admitting improper evidence in behalf of the plaintiff and against the defendants.

(g) The Court erred in excluding competent evidence offered by the defendants.

(h) The Court erred in the following rulings on the admissibility to evidence:

1. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to defendants' question on the cross-examination of plaintiff's witness, Morton Lazarus, whether he ever received a written communication of any kind from Gonzalo A. Larrea advising Mr. Lazarus' firm that he accepted its order. (Transcript 96-97; hereafter, the abbreviation "Tr." will designate page of transcript of proceedings.)

2. The Court erred in sustaining the plaintiff's objection to the question of the defendants on cross-examination of plaintiff's witness, Morton Lazarus, as to whether there was a great demand for liquor of all sorts in the United States in March of 1944. (Tr. 103.)

3. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to defendants' question on cross-examination of plaintiff's witness, Morton Lazarus, as to the length and extent of his acquaintance with Gabriel Todes. (Tr. 104.)

4. The Court erred in permitting Lee Eiseman, plaintiff's witness, to testify on direct examination as to the condition of the tequila purchased by Alex J. Mandl, Inc., and the Court erred in overruling the objection of the defendants to this testimony. (Tr. 127-128, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141.)

418 5. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of Frank San Roman, defendant, when he was asked whether his firm, International Industries, was in the liquor business. (Tr. 230.)

6. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of Frank San Roman, defendant, when he was asked whether his firm, International Industries, has or ever had a liquor importer's license. (Tr. 231.)

7. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of the defendant, Frank San Roman, when he was asked to state his conversation with Gabriel Todes relative to the extent and scope of the latter's authority to represent the defendants. (Tr. 232.)

8. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff during the direct examination of the defendant, Frank San Roman, when he was asked to state whether the regulations and practices of people in Mexico in connection with letters of credit were any different from those in the United States during the latter part of 1943 and 1944 as to shipments of tequila and other liquors made directly from Mexico to the United States. (Tr. 233-234.)

9. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of the defendant, Frank San Roman, when he was asked whether the money for the shipment of tequila in question was paid by the plaintiff to the defendants or the extent of the monies that the defendants received from this payment. (Tr. 234.)

10. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the defendants to the direct examination of the defendant, Frank San Roman, when he was asked whether the 419 letter of credit of the Chase National Bank was ever assigned by the defendants. (Tr. 235.)

11. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the offer of proof made by the defendants during the direct examination of Frank San Roman. (Tr. 235, 236, 237, 238.)

12. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 1 for identification, being the original letter of Globe Liquor Company dated April 21, 1944, signed by M. L. Lazarus. (Tr. 238-239.)

13. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 2 for identification, being a letter of Globe Liquor Company dated April 27, 1944, to Pine Needle de Mexico, signed by Mr. Lazarus. (Tr. 240-241.)

14. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 4 for identification, being a letter of International Industries dated May 10, 1944, addressed to Globe Liquor Company. (Tr. 243-244.)

15. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 5 for identification, being the affidavit of Gonzalo A. Larrea dated April 28, 1944. (Tr. 243, 244, 245.)

16. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 6 for identification, being the original letter of Jovita Perez dated May 27, 1944, addressed to International Industries. (Tr. 246.)

420 17. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 8 for identification, being a declaration of shipper signed Gonzalo A. Larrea, dated May 23, 1944. (Tr. 248, 250.)

18. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 9 for identification, being a notice of Gonzalo A. Larrea to Globe Liquor Company dated May 23, 1944. (Tr. 249-251.)

19. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 10 for identification, being special consular certificate in Mexico dated May 23, 1944, of Gonzalo A. Larrea. (Tr. 249-252.)

20. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 11 for identification, being a telegram dated July 22, 1944, of Gonzalo A. Larrea addressed to Globe Liquor Company. (Tr. 253.)

21. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 12 for identification, being a letter of Gabriel H. Todes to Globe Liquor Company dated July 12, 1944. (Tr. 254.)

22. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 13 for identification, being a letter of Globe Liquor Company to International Industries dated July 24, 1944. (Tr. 255.)

421 23. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the introduction of defendants' exhibit 14 for identification, being a letter of Globe Liquor Company dated July 27, 1944, to International Industries. (Tr. 256.)

(i) Relative to the Court's rulings as to the deposition of Gabriel H. Todes, the following is specified by defendants-appellants:

1. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of Gabriel H. Todes as to the scope and extent of his authority to represent the defendants. (Deposition pages 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11; Tr. 197, 199, 200; hereafter, the abbreviation "Dep." will designate the deposition of Gabriel H. Todes.)

2. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of Todes relating to his conversation with Morton Lazarus on or about March 16, 1944, as to the order for the merchandise in question. (Dep. 15-23; Tr. 197, 199, 200, 203, 204, 205.)

3. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of Todes as to trade conditions during March of 1944 relating to whether alcoholic beverages were plentiful at the time. (Dep. 24-25; Tr. 208.)

4. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of Todes relating to his conversation with Morton Lazarus on or about March 16, 1944. (Tr. 208; Dep. 25, 26, 27.)

5. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of Todes relating to his conversation with Morton Lazarus during July of 1944. (Dep. 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33; Tr. 209, 213, 215, 216.)

422 6. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of Todes relating to a trade custom or practice as to the sale of liquors to buyers in the United States during March of 1944, whereby a broker handling a sale would continue to perform services relative to the sale up to and including the time of the delivery of the merchandise to the buyer. (Dep. 35-36; Tr. 216.)

7. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the direct examination of Todes relating to a general trade custom or practice as to when the brokerage commission would be due and payable to the broker. (Dep. 37-38; Tr. 216.)

8. The Court erred in striking the cross-examination of Todes in his deposition relating to the defendants' counsel's question that in the course of Todes conversation with Lazarus, Todes told Lazarus that International Industries was not responsible for the quality of the merchandise. (Dep. 46-47; Tr. 220.)

9. The Court erred in sustaining the objection of the plaintiff to the redirect examination of Todes as to the drop in the buying demand and in the market value of tequila during the months of April, May, June and July of 1944. (Dep. 62-63; Tr. 225.)

10. The Court erred in striking all of plaintiff's cross-examination of the deposition of Todes. (Dep. 46; Tr. 224.)

423 Know All Men By These Presents:

That we, Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman, doing business under the firm name and style of International Industries, as principals, and Hartford Accident & Indemnity Company, a corporation, as surety, are held and firmly bound unto Globe Liquor Company, Inc., a corporation, in the full and just sum of Two Hundred Fifty Dollars ($250.00) to be paid to the said Globe Liquor Company, Inc., a corporation, its attorneys, executors, administrators, or assigns; to which payment, well and truly to be made, we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, and administrators, jointly and severally, firmly by these presents. Sealed with our seals and dated this 10th day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and forty-six.

Whereas, lately at a session of the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, in a suit pending in said Court between Globe Liquor Company, Inc., a corporation, as plaintiff, against Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman, doing business under the firm name and style of International Industries, as defendants, a judgment was rendered against the defendants on March 15, 1946, for Nine Thousand, Seven Hundred Seventeen Dollars and Sixty-eight Cents ($9,717.68) and costs, and the said defendants having filed in the Clerk's Office of the said District Court Notice of Appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, to reverse the judgment of the aforesaid suit, in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, to be holden at Chicago within forty (40) days from the date hereof

Now, the condition of the above obligation is such, that if the said defendants shall pay the costs if the appeal is dismissed or the judgment is affirmed, or pay such costs as the appellate court may award if the judgment is modified then the above obligation to be void; otherwise to remain in full force and virtue.

DEFENDANTS' INDIVIDUAL SUPERSEDEAS BOND.

Know All Men by these Presents, That we, Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman, doing business under the firm name and style of International Industries, of Chicago, Cook County, Illinois, are held and firmly bound unto Globe Liquor Company, Inc., a corporation, in the penal sum of Twelve Thousand Dollars ($12,000.00), lawful money of the United States, for the payment of which, well and truly to be made, we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors and administrators, jointly and severally, and firmly by these presents.

Witness our hands and seals this 18th day of July, A. D. 1946.

The Condition of the Above Obligation Is Such, That whereas the said Globe Liquor Company, Inc., a corporation, did, in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, recover a judgment in its favor against the obligors, Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman, doing business under the firm name and style of International Industries, on March 15, 1946, for Nine Thousand, Seven Hundred

Seventeen Dollars and Sixty-eight Cents ($9,717.68) 438 and costs of suit; and said obligors, having filed in the Clerk's Office of the said United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, their notice of appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit to reverse the judgment in the aforesaid suit in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, to be holden in Chicago, Cook County, Illinois, within forty (40) days from date hereof.

Now, Therefore, the Condition of the Above Obligation Is Such, That if the said Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman, doing business under the firm name and style of International Industries, shall prosecute their appeal to effect and satisfy the said judgment in full, together with costs; interest and damages for delay, if for any reason the appeal is dismissed, or if the judgment is affirmed, and satisfy in full such modification of the judgment and such costs, interest and damages as the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit may adjudge and award, then the above obligation is void, else to remain in full force and effect.

Defendants-Appellants.

Appeal from the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois,
Eastern Division.

February 14, 1947.

Before SPARKS, MAJOR, and MINTON, Circuit Judges.

MINTON, Circuit Judge. The plaintiff-appellee, a corporation of Delaware, sued the defendants-appellants, a partnership whose members reside in and are citizens of Illinois, for breach of an express warranty. It is alleged in the complaint that the plaintiff agreed to purchase from the defendants and the defendants agreed to sell and deliver to the plaintiff 750 cases of Mexican tequila, described as "Mariachi Tequila Gold, in good merchantable condition, fit for human consumption," and that the defendants failed and refused to deliver the tequila to the plaintiff "in good merchantable condition fit for human consumption in violation of their agreement so to do."

The plaintiff exhibited with its complaint and introduced in evidence an order for the tequila made out on an improvised order blank in the handwriting of the plaintiff's vice president. Some letters and memoranda that had passed between the parties were also exhibited with the complaint and introduced in evidence. No written definitive contract was entered into between the parties covering the transaction.

The defendants in their amended answer alleged that at the time the order was taken by their salesman, the plaintiff was informed by him that the order was subject to acceptance and confirmation by the shipper in Mexico, and that the defendants were not to be responsible for the quality of the liquor but such responsibility was to be that of the shipper in Mexico.

The case was tried before a jury, and at the conclusion of all the evidence each party made a motion for a directed verdict. The court overruled the defendants' motion and sustained the plaintiff's motion, entering judgment for the plaintiff for the purchase price paid for the tequila, plus certain expenses incurred, including freight from Laredo, Texas. The defendants filed a motion for a new trial which was overruled. From the judgment of the court sustaining the plaintiff's motion for a directed verdict and awarding damages, the defendants have appealed.

As we have pointed out, the plaintiff alleged and relied upon an express warranty by the defendants. There is not one word or syllable in the written exhibits or in the oral testimony that the defendants ever agreed to deliver tequila "in good merchantable condition, fit for human consumption." In this state of total failure to prove an express warranty as alleged in the complaint, the court directed a verdict for the plaintiff. This was error.

Not only was it error to grant the motion of the plaintiff for a directed verdict. It also was error to refuse to grant the motion of the defendants for a directed verdict, because there was a total failure of proof on the question of express warranty, upon which the plaintiff had relied. The court was right in one respect. It was right in directing a verdict, but it directed the verdict for the wrong party. In this situation, we are at liberty to dispose of the case here. West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. v. Cone, 153 F. 2d 576, 581, 582; United States v. Halliday, 116 F. 2d 812, 815, 816; Berry v. United States, 111 F. 2d 615; Conway v. O'Brien, 111 F. 2d 611, 613.

The judgment of the District Court is reversed, and the cause is remanded with directions to overrule the motion of the plaintiff for a directed verdict, sustain the motion of the defendants for a directed verdict, and enter judgment for the defendants.

And on the same day, to-wit: On the fourteenth day of February, 1947, the following further proceedings were had and entered of record, to wit:

PETITION FOR REHEARING

To the Judges of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit:

Now COMES Globe Liquor Company, Inc., the plaintiff-appellee herein, by its duly authorized attorneys, and presents its petition for a rehearing in these proceedings. In support of this petition, the undersigned respectfully show:

I.

Assuming, without conceding, that the Court was correct in determining that the complaint alleged an express warranty, nevertheless the Court should have treated the complaint as amended pursuant to Rule 15(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and should have affirmed the judgment below since the record evidence discloses the existence of an implied warranty under Section 15(2) of the Illinois Uniform Sales Act (Ill. Rev. Stats. c. 121½, §15(2)) and its breach by the defendants.

II.

In determining that the complaint alleged an express warranty and thereupon directing judgment to be entered for defendants, the Court placed an unduly harsh and technical construction upon the complaint contrary to the words and spirit of Rule 8(f) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The specific allegations of the complaint are consistent with the allegation of a warranty implied by law as a part of the alleged agreement by the defendants to sell and deliver the tequila, the only omission being the allegation of the particular section of the Illinois statutes creating the warranty.

A memorandum in support of this petition is annexed hereto.

WHEREFORE, for the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully urged that this petition for a rehearing be granted and that upon such further consideration the judgment below be affirmed.

Respectfully submitted,

S/ BEN W. HEINEMAN,

Attorneys for the Plaintiff-Appellee.

CERTIFICATE

The undersigned, Ben W. Heineman, does hereby certify that he is one of the attorneys for the plaintiff-appellee herein; that he has read and is familiar with the within and foregoing petition for rehearing and that the same was filed in good faith and not for purposes of delay.

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF PETITION FOR REHEARING

I.

Rule 15(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure requires that the complaint be treated as amended to conform to the evidence.

As will appear hereafter, the record evidence discloses that, pursuant to Section 15(2) of the Illinois Uniform Sales Act, the defendant sellers impliedly warranted the tequila as being of merchantable quality and the breach of that implied warranty by the adulteration of the tequila with particles of glass. Assuming, without conceding, that the Court correctly construed the complaint as alleging an express warranty, nevertheless, in the light of the record evidence and the requirements of Rule 15(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the complaint should be treated as amended to conform to that evidence.

Rule 15(b) provides in part as follows:

“Rule 15. Amended and Supplemental Pleadings.

“(b) Amendments to Conform to the Evidence. When issues not raised by the pleadings are tried by express or implied consent of the parties, they shall be treated in all respects as if they had been raised in the pleadings. Such amendment of the pleadings as may be necessary to cause them to conform to the evidence and to raise these issues may be made upon motion of any party at any time, even after judgment; but failure so to amend does not affect the result of the trial of these issues.”

The Circuit Courts of Appeals have uniformly construed this Rule as requiring them to treat pleadings as amended to reflect claims or defenses shown by the record evidence to exist, even though such claims or defenses were not pleaded or determined below.

The recent decision of Wall v. Brim, 138 F. (2d) 478, 481 (C.C.A. 5th, 1943) is closely in point. In that case an action was brought for malpractice. The defendant physician was charged with failing to bring to the exercise of his profession the reasonable degree of care and skill required by law. There was a general denial and the issues so made were submitted to the jury. A verdict was returned in favor of the plaintiff and judgment entered thereon. Upon appeal, the Circuit Court of Appeals, speaking through Judge Hutcheson, concluded that there was no evidence to support the allegation of malpractice and that, accordingly, “if the record presented no other issues as to defendant’s breach of his obligation as a physician” the Court would have felt compelled “to order a reversal with directions to enter judgment for defendant notwithstanding the verdict.” (at 481)

This the Court refused to do, however, since it found that the record disclosed the basis for a further claim which was neither pleaded nor submitted to the jury. The Court said:

"But though not specifically presented by the pleadings and apparently not submitted to the jury, the record, in the light of Rule 15(b), authorizing the amendment of pleadings to conform to the evidence definitely presented another issue which should have been developed before, and submitted to, the jury. This was whether the defendant did not breach the obligation which as a surgeon he owed plaintiff when, after making the incision and ascertaining that the operation would be not the absolutely simple one he had secured plaintiff's consent to perform, but a serious and difficult one fraught with possible, if not probable dangers, he went ahead without making full disclosure of the difficulties attending, and the possible dangers of, the operation and securing her consent to go forward under the new found conditions."

"In the light of these principles, and of the undisputed evidence in the case, it cannot be said that a verdict for defendant is demanded or that, reversing the cause, we should direct a judgment notwithstanding the verdict. Neither can it be said that the judgment should be affirmed. For the issue, as to whether the defendant in proceeding with the operation as he did after discovering its true character, without advising plaintiff of its nature and securing her consent to it, committed a trespass upon her or a breach of his obligation to exercise the care and skill required of him, was not developed and tried out as it should have been. The judgment must, therefore, be reversed, and the cause remanded for trial anew with full right to the parties to amend their pleadings and to offer new and additional evidence as they are advised." (at 481) (footnotes omitted)

Upon retrial upon this issue, the jury again returned a verdict for the plaintiff. Upon a second appeal the defendant argued that a new cause of action was introduced by the amendment to the pleadings more than two years after it arose. The Court, again speaking through Judge Hutcheson, rejected this argument, saying:

"On his second and most argued point, that a new cause of action was introduced by the amendment more than two years after it arose, appellant stands no better. As was pointed out in the reversing opinion on the former appeal, the evidence on that trial definitely presented this ground for recovery and, under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 15(b), 28 U.S.C.A. following section 723c, it could then have been submitted to the jury if requested, though no formal amendment had been made. Under these circumstances, it would be a sticking in the bark of pure technicality to say that when the pleadings were later formally amended to conform to the evidence, the claim was then first presented." Wall v. Brim, 145 F. (2d) 492, 493 (C.C.A. 5th, 1944) (cert. den. 324 U.S. 857).

To the same effect are Venuto v. Robinson, 118 F. (2d) 679, 683 (C.C.A. 3rd, 1941); Cabel v. United States, 113 F. (2d) 998, 1000 (C.C.A. 1st, 1940); American Fork & Hoe Co. v. Stampit Corporation, 125 F. (2d) 472, 474 (C.C.A. 6th, 1942); Lientz v. Wheeler, 113 F. (2d) 767, 769 (C.C.A. 8th, 1940).

The record evidence in this case discloses undisputed facts entitling the plaintiff to recover upon the basis of an implied warranty of merchantable quality by the defendant sellers.

This implied warranty is established as a matter of law by Section 15(2) of the Illinois Uniform Sales Act which provides as follows:

"§15. Subject to the provisions of this act and of any statute in that behalf, there is no implied warranty or condition as to the quality or fitness for any particular purpose of goods supplied under a contract to sell or a sale, except as follows:

"(2) Where the goods are bought by description from a seller who deals in goods of that description (whether he be the grower or manufacturer or not), there is an implied warranty that the goods shall be of merchantable quality." (Ill. Rev. Stats. c. 121½ §15).

The record evidence discloses without contradiction both that the sale of the tequila was by description and that the defendants dealt in goods of that description.

As was pointed out in our supplemental memorandum, evidence introduced by the defendants themselves unmistakably establishes that they were in fact dealers in tequila. Upon examination by defendants' counsel, their salesman, Gabriel H. Todes, testified as follows:

"Q. Did you make an arrangement with him to act as a salesman for his firm? A. Yes, I got in touch with Mr. Roman and wrote him a letter asking him if he had any connection whatsoever where he could get merchandise from Mexico to sell in the United States.

"Q. Do you recall when that was? A. It was in the very early part of 1944. I called him on the 'phone first and then I wrote him a letter.

"Q. When did you first start selling merchandise as a salesman for International Industries? A. In January, 1944.

"Q. You made some sales, did you? A. I made quite a number of sales.

"Q. What commodity did you sell? A. I sold Tequila.

"Q. Mexican Tequila? A. Mexican Tequila.

"Q. What other commodity? A. Gin. That came from Argentine, and some of it came from Mexico. I sold thousands of cases of the Tequila." (Tr. 20-21; admitted into evidence Tr. 144, 177) (Italics supplied)

It is equally clear that the plaintiff bought the tequila by "description" within the meaning of Section 15(2) of the Illinois Uniform Sales Act. There is no claim that it was bought either by inspection or sample. Counsel for the defendants, however, contends that the tequila was bought under a trade name, apparently assuming that a purchase under a trade name precludes the purchase from being one by description within the meaning of Section 15(2). It is a fundamental rule of the law of sales that a purchase by description within the meaning of Section 15(2) includes a purchase under a trade name. A description of the commodity by its trade name complies fully with the requirements of Section 15(2).

An outstanding example is the leading case of Ryan v. Progressive Grocery Stores, 255 N.Y. 388, 175 N.E. 105 (1931) where the New York Court of Appeals, speaking through Cardozo, C. J., held the implied warranty of Section 15(2) to apply to a purchase of "Ward's Bread". The decision is noteworthy for its careful consideration of the problem presented.

There are literally scores of decisions under the Uniform Sales Acts in the various states applying the implied warranty created by Section 15(2) to purchases by trade name. Annotation, 135 A.L.R. 1393 (1941); 55 Corpus Juris (Sales) §724, p. 759. This, of course, is possible only if a purchase under a trade name constitutes a purchase by description within the meaning of that subsection.

Defendants' counsel also argues, however, that if the purchase is one under a trade name, then Section 15(4) of the Uniform Sales Act prohibits the raising of an implied warranty under Section 15(2). Counsel's argument is too broad and is contrary to the settled construction of those statutory provisions. Section 15(4) provides that in the case of a sale of a specified article under its patent or other trade name, there is "no implied warranty as to its fitness for any particular purpose." This refers specifically and solely to the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose established by Section 15(1) of the Uniform Sales Act and does not affect the implied warranty of merchantable quality established by Section 15(2). Here, again, the construction of these provisions of the Uniform Sales Act is settled and uniform.

As was said in Giant Mfg. Co. v. Yates-American Mach. Co., 111 F. (2d) 360, 365 (C.C.A. 8th, 1940):

"Paragraphs '2' and '4' of the section are the ones involved here. Plaintiff relies on paragraph '4', insisting that these sales were of 'a specified article under its * * * trade name' and, therefore, there could be no implied warranty 'as to its fitness for any particular purpose.' Defendant relies on paragraph '2', insisting that 'where the goods are bought by description from a seller who deals in goods of that description; * * * there is an implied warranty that the goods shall be of merchantable quality' and that these coils were not of merchantable quality.

"To determine this controversy, it is unnecessary to examine at length the meanings of these two paragraphs of the section. It is enough here to say that paragraph '2' authorized an implied warranty of merchantable quality and that paragraph '4' does not proscribe such a warranty. In this regard, there is no conflict nor essential difference between the paragraphs. One meaning of merchantable quality is that the article sold shall be reasonably suitable for the ordinary uses it was manufactured to meet. [Citing numerous decisions] 'Particular purpose', as used in paragraph '4' means a usage other, or different (in kind or extent), than the ordinary uses the article was made to meet."

In D'Onofrio v. First National Stores, Inc. 26 A.(2d) 758 (R. I. 1942) canned corn was purchased under its trade name of "Finast". The purchaser was injured while eating the canned corn due to the presence of metal wire. There the Court said:

"The defendant also contends that the direction of a verdict in its favor was proper because the evidence showed a situation which brought the plaintiff's case under the provisions of §15(4) and, therefore, the defendant was not held to any implied warranty that the canned corn it sold the plaintiff was fit for any particular purpose, even though the defendant impliedly knew that said corn was for human consumption. In our opinion the above contention is not sound.

"On the other hand, it has been held that in the purchase of foodstuffs for human consumption, under circumstances similar to those appearing in evidence in the present case, the provisions of §15(2) respecting the existence of an implied warranty of merchantability apply, and that the provisions of §15(4) do not preclude a finding, under said §15(2), of a warranty of merchantability and of a breach thereof. Ryan v. Progressive Grocery Stores, Inc. 255 N.Y. 388, 175 N.E. 105, 74 A.L.R. 339; Botti v. Venice Grocery Co., 309 Mass. 450, 35 N.E. 2d 491, 135 A.L.R. 1387. In the last-named case, at page 456 of 309 Mass., at page 494 of 35 N.E. 2d the court uses the following language: " * * * we think the mere fact that an article sold happens to have a trade name does not, in and of itself, bring the sale under clause

(4), but if it does, that the warranty contained in clause (2) is not excluded. * * * Fitness for consumption of food well may be equivalent to fitness for the particular purpose for which food may be bought, but it is also equivalent to fitness for the general purpose for which food is usually sold to the consumer.'

"We are of the opinion that, in view of the facts and circumstances appearing in evidence, the two cases just cited set out the principles of law which apply to and govern the instant case. In our judgment such principles appear to be particularly applicable in the ordinary case where the sale of foodstuffs for human consumption is involved." (at page 760)

See also Bolli v. Venice Grocery Co., 35 N.E. (2d) 491 (Mass. 1941); Sperry Flour Co. v. DeMoss, 18 P. (2d) 242 (Ore. 1933); Kelvinator Sales Corp. v. Quabbin Improvement Co., Inc. 254 N.Y.S. 123, 125 (App. Div. 1931); Dow Drug Co. v. Nieman, 13 N.E. (2d) 130 (Ohio App. 1936).

The defendants rely upon two Illinois cases, Beckett v. The F. W. Woolworth Co., 376 Ill. 470 (1941), and Santa Rosa-Vallejo Tanning Co. v. Kronauer & Company, 228 Ill. App. 236 (1923) as showing that in Illinois at least, a purchase under a trade name negatives the warranty of merchantable quality implied by Section 15(2). The Beckett case involved only an alleged express warranty which the Court found did not exist. The Court also concluded that it was a sale by trade name, and hence, that Section 15(4) applied, but did not indicate whether that fact precluded the application of Section 15(2). The question was apparently neither raised nor argued by the plaintiff.

The Santa Rosa-Vallejo case, decided in 1923, is occasionally cited as being an authority contrary to the settled construction of the Uniform Sales Act to the effect that a sale under a trade name is a sale by description within the meaning of Section 15(2) and that the prohibition of Section 15(4) has no application to Section 15(2). See e.g. Annotation, 135 A.L.R. 1393 (1941).

That case is clearly distinguishable, however. In the first place, the Court made clear that the only warranty involved was that of fitness for a special purpose; hence, whatever it said with respect to the effect of Section 15(4) upon the implied warranty created by Section 15(2) is dictum and in no way controlling upon this Court. The decision clearly should not be regarded as applying Section 15(4) to Section 15(2) in view of the issues presented for decision, and in view of the settled construction to the contrary by the courts of all of the states that have considered the question. See Annotation, 135 A.L.R. 1393 (1941) and decisions cited supra.

Even if the Santa Rosa-Vallejo case be regarded as passing upon this question, however, Erie Railroad Co. v. Tompkins, 304 U.S. 64 (1938), does not require that it be followed by this Court. Under the then prevailing Illinois statute, decisions of the Illinois Appellate Court had no "binding authority in any cause or proceeding, other than in that in which they may be filed." Smith-Hurd Ill. Ann. Stats. c. 37 §41 (1935).¹

¹The full provision was as follows:

§41. Opinions—Binding effect

All opinions or decisions of said court upon the final hearing of any cause, shall be reduced to writing by the court, briefly giving therein the reasons for such opinion or decision, and be filed in the case in which rendered: Provided, That such opinions shall not be of binding authority in any cause or proceeding, other than in that in which they may be filed. [1877, June 2, Laws 1877, p. 69, § 17; 1885, June 27, Laws 1885, p. 65, § 1.]

In 1935, this provision was amended by the omission of the proviso. Illinois Session Laws 1935, p. 696, § 1.

The Supreme Court of the United States has had occasion to consider under circumstances comparable to those presented here, the effect to be given under that statute to a decision of the Illinois Appellate Court. In Graham v. White-Phillips Co., Inc., 296 U.S. 27 (1935), the Supreme Court was faced with the necessity of interpreting the Illinois Negotiable Instruments Law. Although the decision was prior to that in the Erie case, the Court pointed out that local law with respect to the interpretation of the Negotiable Instruments Law was required to be followed by the federal courts (at p. 30). The petitioner in that case relied strongly upon a decision of the Illinois Appellate Court. The Supreme Court of the United States refused to follow that decision and held that this Circuit Court of Appeals was entitled to determine for itself the meaning of the contested provision of the Negotiable Instruments Law. The Supreme Court said:

"The Appellate Courts in Illinois are inferior tribunals and a statute provided that their opinions 'shall not be binding authority in any case or proceeding other than that in which they may be filed.' Illinois Constitution, 1870; Article VI, §11; Cahill's Illinois Rev. Stats. 1933, c. 37, par. 49.

"No authoritative construction of the negotiable instrument law of Illinois supports petitioner's position. And the court below rightly undertook to determine for itself the meaning and effect of the pertinent sections." (at 31)

In our view, it is therefore clear that there is no settled construction in Illinois as to whether Section 15(4) of the Illinois Uniform Sales Act precludes the application of Section 15(2) of that Act. This Court is therefore free to determine for itself the correct meaning of those provisions of the Illinois Uniform Sales Act and should apply the uniform and settled construction that a purchase under a trade name is a purchase by description within the meaning of Section 15(2) and that Section 15(4) prohibits only the operation of Section 15(1) of the Illinois Uniform Sales Act.

The record evidence disclosing without controversy that the defendants through their salesman, Todes, sold thousands of cases of this tequila, and that it was a sale by description within the meaning of Section 15(2) of the Illinois Uniform Sales Act, a warranty of merchantable quality was raised by implication. This warranty the record also shows to have been breached (Pl. Ex. 10, Tr. 187).

Defendants contend that the implied warranty in this case was effectively disclaimed by their salesman at the time that the plaintiff's order was taken. They rely upon a statement allegedly made by Todes to the plaintiff's Vice-President that the defendants, "are not responsible for any shipments or the quality of the merchandise or anything about it." (Tr. 26). This testimony was excluded. This contention of the defendants ignores the requirements of Section 71 of the Illinois Uniform Sales Act which provides as follows:

"Where any right, duty or liability would arise under a contract to sell or a sale by implication of law, it may be negated or varied by express agreement or by the course of dealing between the parties, or by custom, if the custom be such as to bind both parties to the contract or to the sale." Ill. Rev. Stats. c. 121½ §71. (italics supplied)

Testimony offered by the defendants themselves clearly shows the absence of any such express agreement between the parties negating the implied warranty. The defendants' salesman upon redirect examination by defendants' counsel testified as follows:

"Q. During this March 16th, 1944 conversation with Mr. Lazarus, when you told him the International Industries would not be responsible for the shipment of the merchandise or the quality of the merchandise, what, if anything did he say? A. Nothing.

"Q. He didn't object to that statement on your part? A. No.

"Q. He had no comment? A. I understand—

"Q. You can not give us your understanding. You can only state what you heard and what was said. A. All right.

"Q. Was there any comment about it at all? A. No comment." (Tr. 48)

This testimony clearly demonstrates that even if the statement had been admitted into evidence, the express agreement required by law would not have been established. Hence its exclusion does not constitute prejudicial error.

The facts giving rise to the implied warranty are undisputed in the record and, indeed, a substantial portion of such facts were established by the defendants themselves. Moreover, despite the fact that the plaintiff made no effort to introduce any evidence in support of an express warranty, the defendants at no time during the course of the trial complained of or mentioned the absence of such proof. Thus the conclusion is compelled that the issue of the existence of an implied warranty was tried with the implied consent of the defendants within the meaning of Rule 15(b). Wall v. Brim, 138 F. (2d) 478, 481 (C.C.A. 5th, 1943) (discussed supra pp. 4-6). Under Rule 15(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, therefore, the complaint should be treated as amended to allege plaintiff's claim of an implied warranty and its breach, and the judgment below should be affirmed.

II

The construction placed upon the complaint is unduly harsh and technical and violative of the language and spirit of Rule 8(f) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

The Court construed the complaint as alleging an express warranty. In its opinion the Court said that the "plaintiff alleged and relied upon an express warranty by the defendants."

There is not the least evidence of the reliance by the plaintiff upon an express warranty, and such was never the plaintiff's intention. The plaintiff neither offered nor made any effort to introduce evidence of an express warranty. The plaintiff concedes, and would have conceded at all times, that no express warranty existed.

The allegations of the complaint could be consistently construed as asserting the existence of an implied warranty. The allegation is that there was an agreement to sell and deliver the tequila in good merchantable condition, fit for human consumption. The warranty implied by law is a part of any such agreement of sale and delivery.

Moreover, the defendants always assumed below that a warranty (necessarily implied) was established by the proof.

1. Although the defendants moved for a directed verdict at the close of the plaintiff's evidence, that motion was predicated solely upon agency grounds (Tr. 116-120).

2. Although defendants moved for an instructed verdict at the conclusion of all of the evidence, that motion proceeded exclusively upon the grounds of agency and that the extent of the adulteration "did not justify the plaintiff in rejecting the entire shipment." (Tr. 202).

3. In defendants' motion for a new trial, they nowhere alleged the failure to establish an express warranty or an implied warranty as the basis for the new trial (Tr. 204-206).

The construction placed upon the complaint by this Court is a harsh and technical one, violating the provisions of Rule 8(f) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure requiring all pleadings to be "so construed as to do substantial justice."

CONCLUSION

For the reasons heretofore assigned, a rehearing should be granted, and upon further consideration the judgment of the Court below should be affirmed.

ON PETITION FOR REHEARING.

Before SPARKS, MAJOR, and MINTON, Circuit Judges.

MINTON, Circuit Judge. The plaintiff-appellee has filed a petition for rehearing in which it states that even if there was a failure to prove an express warranty as alleged in the complaint, the goods were sold by description and therefore an implied warranty arose, and that we should have considered the pleadings amended to conform to the proof of an implied warranty. No such view was taken in the briefs or in the argument. After the argument the plaintiff filed what it termed a supplemental memorandum in which it seemed to take this position for the first time. Of course, where on the trial evidence is admitted without objection which proves a case different from that alleged in the complaint, we may consider the pleadings amended to conform to the evidence thus introduced. Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rule 15(b).

The Uniform Sales Act of Illinois, which the parties agree shall control, provides that no implied warranty shall arise except: "Where the goods are bought by description from a seller who deals in goods of that description (whether he be the grower or manufacturer or not), there is an implied warranty that the goods shall be of merchantable quality." Ill. Rev. Stat., Chap. 121½, Sec. 15(2) (1945). The evidence shows that the goods were sold by description, but the plaintiff had the burden also to show that the goods were bought from a seller who deals in goods of that description. There was no evidence in the record of any such dealings by the defendants. Realizing the necessity for such evidence, counsel for the plaintiff cited us the testimony by deposition of the defendants' salesman who had sold the goods. This evidence was first cited in the so-called supplemental memorandum after the argument. The trouble with this evidence is that it is not in the record and was kept out on the objection of the plaintiff. No part of the deposition was ever read or considered as read in evidence. No part of the deposition was ever admitted. There was some colloquy in the judge's chambers about the deposition, but nothing was ever done in open court about it. The plaintiff makes the extraordinary suggestion to us that we consider the pleadings amended so as to declare on an implied warranty to conform to the evidence contained in a deposition excluded from the evidence on the objection of the plaintiff. The plaintiff will not be heard to claim the benefit of that evidence which it had had excluded. The plaintiff cannot be allowed to blow hot and cold after such a fashion. So there is in this record no evidence to support an implied warranty. There is a complete failure of proof either of an express or an implied warranty.

Neither can it be contended that the sale was not executed by delivery of the goods conditionally to the plaintiff. The plaintiff agreed to a conditional delivery and to accept such conditional delivery by agreeing to the shipment of the goods C. I. F. Laredo, Texas, on a bill of lading made to the order of the shipper, Gonzalo A. Larrea, and endorsed by the shipper in blank, and the goods to be shipped in bond subject to the right of the United States Customs Officers to inspect and accept or refuse admission of the goods to this country. When the plaintiff, with the letter of credit which it had authorized, took up the bill of lading under such circumstances, the sale was executed, and the title to the goods passed to the plaintiff. In any view of this case the court erred in sustaining the motion of the plaintiff for a directed verdict and also erred in overruling the motion of the defendants for a directed verdict.

The action of the court was one of law only, and for that reason we disposed of the case here. When we did so, we relied in part upon West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. v. Cone, 153 F. 2d 576, 581, 582. Thereafter, the Supreme Court reversed the Cone case. (March 3, 1947.) In the Cone case, a motion for a directed verdict was made by the defendant and overruled, and the case was submitted to the jury which returned a verdict for the plaintiff. No motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict was made by the defendant. On certiorari confined solely to whether the Circuit Court of Appeals could dispose of the case on appeal by directing the District Court to sustain the defendant's motion for a directed verdict where a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict had not been made, the Supreme Court held that the Circuit Court of Appeals could not so dispose of the case; that Rule 50(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure required such a motion. The Supreme Court did not hold that if such a motion had been made and overruled, the Circuit Court of Appeals could not have directed, if warranted in law, the District Court to sustain the motion of the defendant for a directed verdict. Nor did the Supreme Court hold that a Circuit Court of Appeals may never dispose of a case where only errors of law are involved. Rule 50(b) was adopted for the purpose of reserving automatically to the District Court the right to pass on a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, even though it had denied a motion for a directed verdict and had submitted the case to the jury. Ryan Distributing Corporation v. Caley, 147 F. 2d 138, 142. Before this rule was adopted the case of Baltimore & Carolina Line, Inc. v. Redman, 295 U. S. 654, 55 S. Ct. 890, 79 L. Ed. 1636, had required the court to expressly reserve that right. To avoid the Redman case, Rule 50(b) was adopted.

Rule 50(b), in our opinion, applies only to cases where the matter is submitted to a jury for its independent voluntary consideration and verdict. Where the court directs a verdict for the plaintiff, as in the instant case, the matter is not submitted to the jury for it to exercise its independent judgment on the facts. The court has exercised its judgment on a matter of law. Where the court, as in the instant case, has sustained the motion of the plaintiff for a directed verdict, the legal consequence is the same as if the District Court had submitted the case to the jury, the jury had returned a verdict for the plaintiff, and the District Court had overruled the motion of the defendants for judgment notwithstanding the verdict.

Order Denying Rehearing.

We do not think the Supreme Court's action in the Cone case should cause us to disturb our ruling, and for the other reasons herein set forth, the petition for rehearing is denied.

MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE SECOND PETITION FOR REHEARING.

To the Judges of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit:

Now Comes Globe Liquor Company, Inc., the plaintiff-appellee herein, by its duly authorized attorneys, and respectfully moves for leave to file the annexed second petition for rehearing in the above-entitled proceedings to show that the Court rested its decision on rehearing upon an inadvertent misreading of the record and thereby committed material error.

MOTION OF DEFENDANTS-APPELLANTS RELATIVE TO PLAINTIFF-APPELLEE'S SECOND PETITION FOR REHEARING AND MOTION OF DEFENDANTS-APPELLANTS FOR MODIFICATION OF CERTAIN LANGUAGE IN OPINION.

Frank San Roman and Dorothea San Roman, doing business under the firm name and style of International Industries, defendants-appellants, by Nat M. Kahn, their attorney, hereby move for the entry of an order by this Court granting to them leave to file instantly their suggestions for modification of certain language in the opinion on plaintiff-appellee's petition for rehearing, and defendants-appellants further move that this motion shall stand as their answer to the plaintiff-appellee's second petition for rehearing, and in support of this motion the undersigned hereby submit the following suggestions.

Nat M. Kahn,

Attorney for Defendants-Appellants.

SUGGESTIONS OF DEFENDANTS-APPELLANTS IN SUPPORT OF FOREGOING MOTION.

May it please the Court:

We believe we can be of some assistance to Your Honors by pointing out that the second petition for rehearing which the plaintiff-appellee requests to file with this Court is based on its misapprehension of the record of the proceedings in the trial court.

Upon a reading of the printed transcript of the record, commencing at page 144, it will be seen that the first portion of the deposition of Todes that was considered by the trial court started at original typewritten page 6 of the deposition, which appears at page 21 of the printed transcript and commences with Mr. Heineman's question, "What were his oral instructions to you relative to the taking of orders or selling of merchandise in his behalf?" (Tr. 144.) The previous pages of the deposition were not called to the attention of the trial court, nor read to or considered by the trial court. These previous pages, although contained in the printed transcript of the record, contain the testimony of Todes which the plaintiff-appellee characterizes at page 3 of its second petition for rehearing as "Testimony Relating to Dealership." This supposed testimony was never introduced in evidence or even passed on by the trial court.

As to the pages of the deposition that were read by the trial court and considered by it, the trial court rejected practically the entire deposition of Todes, with one single important exception, and a few unimportant details. This one exception was a significant one and refers to the ruling by the trial court permitting Todes to testify to an admission of Lazarus. At pages 153 and 154 of the printed transcript, this particular admission and the ruling of the court shows that it was considered by the court and received in evidence. Here are the rulings of the court relative to this one important fragment of the Todes deposition that was introduced and received in evidence by the trial court:

"By the Court: If you want that statement,

'We want our money back'—by Lazarus, you can have it. * * *

"By the Court: You can put in that Mr. Lazarus said to Mr. Todes,

'We want our money back! * * *'" (Tr. 153.)

"By the Court: Just a minute. You may have that answer at the top of page 30:

'A. He said, "I agree that the shipper is responsible for it." He said, "We want our money back." He said, "I am not saying that it is your fault but it is the shipper's fault." * * * (Tr. 154.)

Practically the entire remainder of the Todes deposition was excluded by the trial court. Consequently, with the exception of this one admission of Lazarus contained in the Todes deposition and several other insignificant bits from the deposition that the trial court received, Your Honors were substantially correct when you stated at page 2 of your opinion on the petition for rehearing that: "No part of the deposition was ever read or considered as read in evidence. No part of the deposition was ever admitted."

The entire deposition as originally filed was incorporated as a part of the record in the trial court. Therefore, the gratuitous concession of counsel for the plaintiff-appellee which it quotes at length at page 4 of its petition for rehearing added nothing to the proof of the deposition offered by the defendants (Tr. 177-178).

It is easy to understand why there has been so much confusion about this Todes deposition. Judge Barnes, the trial court, changed his mind several times about some of the rulings as he went along and finally ended the consideration of the deposition by rejecting practically all of it that was offered, with the exceptions just described.

At page 2 of the opinion of the court on the petition for rehearing, Your Honors stated that: "The evidence shows that the goods were sold by description * * *." (Italics ours.) May we respectfully point out to the court that we do not believe that the transaction was a sale by description. Plaintiff's Exhibit 1, being the original order, specified "Mariachi Gold." Lazarus testified that the Gold referred to the gold or yellow color that he preferred (Tr. 98). Plaintiff's Exhibits 2 and 3 referred to "Mariachi Tequila Gold" (Tr. 179). "Mariachi" referred to a trade brand of Tequila. With due deference to Your Honors' opinion and careful consideration of this case, may we suggest that the transaction in question was not a sale by description but a sale of Tequila under a trade or patent name under Section 15(4) of the Uniform Sales Act of Illinois (Ill. Rev. Stats. 1945, Chap. 121½, Par. 15(4), P. 2953).

The language used in the following cases has been construed to refer to sales by description:

"Texas red rust proof seed oats," Americus Grocery Co. v. Brackett, 119 Ga. 489, 46 S. E. 657;

"Choice sugar-cured canvassed hams," Forcheimer v. Stewart, 65 Iowa 593, 22 N. W. 886;

"Strictly choice evaporated apples," Long v. J. K. Armsby Co., 43 Mo. A. 253;

"Blue vitriol," Hawkins v. Pemberton, 51 N. Y. 198;

"Madras rice . . . shipped . . . during March and April," Bowes v. Shand, 2 App. Cas. 455;

"Common hard brick," Day v. Mapes-Reeve Constr. Co., 174 Mass. 412, 54 N. E. 878;

"Good, salable corn," Holloway v. Jacoby, 120-Pa. 583, 15 A. 487;

"Good potatoes," Northern Supply Co. v. Wangard, 123 Wis. 1, 100 N. W. 1066;

"Strictly fancy, sound, large bunches of grapes," Kronman v. Gardella, 190 Mich. 645, 157 N. W. 377;

"Pure medicinal cod liver oil," Leonard v. Carleton, etc., Co., 230 Mass. 262, 119 N. E. 674;

"Early Ohio seed potatoes," Hise v. Romeo Stores Co., 70 Colo. 249, 199 Pac. 483.

We believe that these examples that we have just cited as to sales by description established that the language used by the parties in the instant suit specifying "Mariachi Tequila Gold" constituted a sale under a trade or patent name and not a sale by description.

We have heretofore cited to the court Beckett v. F. W. Woolworth Co., 376 Ill. 470, wherein the Illinois Supreme Court held that in a sale of a specified article under its patent or other trade name, there is no implied warranty as to its fitness for any particular purpose.

We have also heretofore cited to this court Santa Rosa-Vallego Tanning Co. v. Kronauer, 228 Ill. App. 236 and Negefind v. Singer, et al., 227 Ill. App. 493, that under Section 15 (4) of the Uniform Sales Act of Illinois where a sale of goods is made under a particular trade name there is an implied warranty to deliver the identical articles sold, but there is no implied warranty of merchantability.

The undisputed proof admitted in the record by the trial court established that Globe, through Lazarus, dealt with the defendants and recognized them as being brokers. (Tr.

96-97.) The trial court commented on Lazarus' testimony that he said "several times they were acting as broker." (Tr. 106.) Lazarus admitted receiving a telegram from Larrea, the Mexican shipper, whereby the latter agreed to filter and rebottle the merchandise. (Tr. 104.) The contents of the letters of credit proved that Globe insisted on the production of invoices, title and shipping documents directly from the Mexican shipper. Consequently, it must follow conclusively that the defendants were not in the category of "a seller who deals in goods of that description," under Section 15 (2) of the Uniform Sales Act of Illinois. However, regardless of the characterization of the sale, when Lazarus told Todes: "I agree that the shipper is responsible for it. * * * I am not saying it was your fault, but it was the shipper's fault * * *" (Tr. 154), this clearly established the refusal of the defendants to warrant the quality of the goods at the time the initial order was given. Consequently, under Section 71 of the Uniform Sales Act of Illinois (Ill. Rev. Stats. 1945, Chap. 121½, Par. 71, P. 2960), the existence of any implied warranty was expressly negated.

May we, therefore, respectfully request this court to change the language in its opinion on the petition for rehearing to eliminate that "No part of the deposition was ever read or considered as read in evidence. No part of the deposition was ever admitted," and may we also request the court to change the language in its opinion so that the words "The evidence shows that the goods were sold by description" should be eliminated and a statement made that the evidence showed that the goods were sold under a trade or brand name as "Mariachi Tequila Gold."

Now comes Globe Liquor Company, Inc., plaintiff-appel-lee herein, by its duly authorized attorneys, and respectfully moves as follows:

I.

That this Honorable Court, pursuant to Rule 75(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and under the authority of Beck v. Federal Land Bank of Houston, 146 F.
(2d) 623 (C. C. A. 8th, 1945), remit the record in the above-entitled action to the trial court, the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, Honorable John P. Barnes, judge presiding, with the request that the said trial court prepare a statement indicating whether that portion of the testimony by deposition of Gabriel H. Todes relied upon by the plaintiff-appel-

lee in its Petition for Rehearing and which is fully set out in Appendix "A" hereto, was admitted or considered as admitted into evidence by the trial court;

That in connection with the remission of the record, the trial court be furnished with a copy of the Opinion of this court filed on April 14, 1947, plaintiff-appellee's Petition for Rehearing and Memorandum in Support Thereof, defendants-appellants' Answer to Appellee's Petition for Rehearing, the Opinion of this court on Petition for Rehearing filed April 14, 1947, plaintiff-appellee's Second Petition for Rehearing, and the Motion of Defendants-Appellants relative to plaintiff-appellee's Second Petition for Rehearing, so that the trial court may be fully advised as to the exact portion of the testimony involved, the contentions of counsel and the ruling of this court with respect thereto;

That the Clerk of the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, be requested to return the record with the aforesaid statement of the trial court included therein, duly certified, as soon as conveniently possible;

That jurisdiction of this action be retained by this court and that its mandate be stayed until the record is returned and the appeal is disposed of in accordance therewith.

II.

That in the event that the foregoing motion is denied by this Honorable Court, the mandate in the above-entitled matter be stayed for 30 days and for such further time as may be extended by order of the court, pending the filing of an application by the plaintiff-appellee for a writ of certiorari in the Supreme Court of the United States, the preparation of the record, petition and brief, and action thereon in the Supreme Court.

APPENDIX "A".

The following is the portion of the testimony by deposition of Gabriel H. Todes referred to in the foregoing motion and appearing at pages 20-21 of the printed transcript of record filed in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit:

"Q. Did you make an arrangement with him to act as a salesman for his firm? A. Yes, I got in touch with Mr. Roman and wrote him a letter asking him if he had any connection whatsoever where he could get merchandise from Mexico to sell in the United States."

"Q. Do you recall when that was? A. It was in the very early part of 1944. I called him on the 'phone first and then I wrote him a letter.

"Q. When did you first start selling merchandise as a salesman for International Industries? A. In January, 1944.

"Q. You made some sales, did you? A. I made quite a number of sales.

"Q. What commodity did you sell? A. I sold Tequila.

"Q. Mexican Tequila? A. Mexican Tequila.

"Q. What other commodity? A. Gin. That came from Argentine, and some of it came from Mexico. I sold thousands of cases of the Tequila."

| I. The Circuit Court of Appeals decided a question of importance under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure in a manner in conflict with the decision of this Court in Cone v. West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. | 9 |
| II. The instruction to the District Court to grant the defendants' motion for a directed verdict was based upon grounds not specified in defendants' motion. The refusal by the Circuit Court of Appeals to consider testimony admitted in evidence and a part of the record on appeal constitutes such a clear departure from the accepted and usual course of judicial proceedings as to require the exercise of this Court's power of supervision to prevent a gross miscarriage of justice | 17 |

JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES:

Now comes Globe Liquor Company, Inc., plaintiff-appellee below, by its duly authorized attorneys, Ben W. Heineman and Joseph D. Block, and prays that a writ of certiorari issue to review the judgment of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit entered on February 14, 1947 (R. 232), rehearing denied, April 14, 1947 (R. 260).

In support of this petition, your petitioner respectfully shows:

OPINIONS BELOW

The District Court did not prepare or publish an opinion. The opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals and its opinion on rehearing (R. 230, 257), are reported in 160 F. (2d) 800.

JURISDICTION

This Court's jurisdiction is evoked pursuant to the Act of February 13, 1925, c. 229, Sec. 1, 43 Stat. 938, amending and reenacting Section 240(a) of the Judicial Code, 28 U.S.C.A. §347.

SUMMARY STATEMENT OF MATTER INVOLVED

The petitioner, a Delaware corporation, recovered judgment against the respondents, citizens of Illinois, in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, sitting in Chicago, on a directed verdict for damages in the sum of $9,704.25 resulting from the breach of an implied warranty in the sale by the respondents to the petitioner of 750 cases of imported Mexican Tequila.¹

Briefly summarized, the evidence disclosed that one Todes, a salesman for the defendants, obtained an order from the plaintiff for 750 cases of Mariachi Tequila (Gold) at a price of $10.75 a case, C.I.F. Laredo, Texas (R. 178-180, 63, 65, 66). The plaintiff was required by the defendants to give, and it did give to the defendants, an irrevocable letter of credit in the full amount of the purchase price (R. 183, 80). In due course the Tequila was shipped from Mexico, the letter of credit was negotiated, and the purchase price paid in full by the plaintiff. Thereafter, upon inspection tion in Philadelphia, the entire shipment was condemned by representatives of the Food and Drug Administration as being adulterated with glass particles (R. 185-189, 87, 90).

At the conclusion of all of the evidence, the defendants filed their written motion for an instructed verdict upon the grounds that they were not principals in the transaction but had acted merely as the agents of a disclosed principal in Mexico, and that the evidence that a portion of the shipment of Tequila was adulterated was insufficient to justify the plaintiff's rejection of the entire shipment (R. 202). This motion was denied and the plaintiff's motion for a directed verdict was granted (R. 176, 177):

Defendants made no motion under Rule 50(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure to have judgment entered in accordance with their motion for a directed verdict. Their motion for a new trial was denied (R. 209).

Defendants thereupon appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. On February 14, 1947, the Circuit Court of Appeals rendered its decision determining that the complaint alleged and that the plaintiff had relied upon an express warranty, that there was no evidence of an express warranty, and that the trial court, accordingly, had erred not only in directing a verdict for the plaintiff but in failing to direct a verdict for the defendants. The judgment of the District Court was reversed with instructions to grant defendants' motion for a directed verdict and enter judgment thereon (R. 230-232). This despite the fact that defendants had made no motion under Rule 50(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for judgment in accordance with their motion for a directed verdict, and despite the further fact that the ground upon which the Circuit Court of Appeals rested its reversal had not been specified by the defendants in their motion for a directed verdict, nor had the point been raised by them in any other way before the trial court.

In determining that it had authority to reverse with instructions to grant defendants' motion for a directed verdict and to enter judgment thereon, rather than to reverse and remand for a new trial, the Circuit Court of Appeals relied upon four decisions of other Circuit Courts of Appeals (R. 231). One of these was West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. v. Cone, 153 F. (2d) 576 (C.C.A. 4th, 1946) then awaiting decision in this Court.²

Thereupon, plaintiff filed its petition for rehearing (R. 233), pointing out that even on the assumption that the Circuit Court of Appeals had properly construed the complaint as alleging an express warranty, the record evidence clearly disclosed the existence of an implied warranty of merchantable quality under Section 15(2) of the Illinois Uniform Sales Act and its breach by the defendants.³

² Each of the other three cases relied upon by the Circuit Court of Appeals had theretofore been reversed by this Court on other grounds, although the fact of reversal was not indicated by the Circuit Court of Appeals in its opinion. Halliday v. United States, 315 U.S. 94 (1942); Berry v. United States, 312 U.S. 450 (1941); Conway v. O'Brien, 312 U.S. 492 (1941).

³ Section 15(2) of the Illinois (Uniform) Sales Act (Ill. Rev. Stats. 1945 c. 121½, § 15(2)) provides as follows:

"Where the goods are bought by description from a seller who deals in goods of that description (whether he be the grower or manufacturer or not) there is an implied warranty that the goods shall be of merchantable quality."

Both parties, as well as the Circuit Court of Appeals, agreed that Illinois law was applicable (R. 258).

The complaint alleged that "the defendants agreed to sell and deliver to the plaintiff seven hundred and fifty (750) cases of Mexican Tequila, more fully described as Mariachi Tequila Gold, in good merchantable condition, fit for human consumption" (R. 3). The plaintiff never contended that an express warranty existed and never made any effort to offer any such proof but proceeded throughout upon the theory of an implied warranty. Plaintiff believes, and so asserted in its petition for rehearing, that the construction of this allegation by the Circuit Court of Appeals was unduly harsh and technical and violative of Rule 8(f) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure which requires all pleadings to be "so construed as to do substantial justice" (R. 252-253).

Accordingly, the plaintiff urged that, in accordance with the provisions of Rule 15(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the complaint should be treated as amended to conform to that evidence by alleging the breach of an implied warranty.⁴

Under Section 15(2) of the Illinois Sales Act, an implied warranty is established (a) if the goods were bought by description, and (b) if the defendants were dealers in goods of that description. The petition recited the evidence showing that the goods had been bought by plaintiff, not by inspection or sample, but by description as Mariachi Tequila (Gold), and that the defendants were dealers. This last was shown by the testimony of defendants' witness and salesman, Todes, to the effect that he had "made quite a number of sales" of the Tequila for defendants and that he had "sold thousands of cases of the Tequila" (R. 243-244). In the plaintiff's view, this evidence required rehearing and affirmance of the judgment of the District Court.

Subsequent to the filing of the petition for rehearing, this Court entered its decision in Cone v. West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co., _____ U.S. _____, 67 S. Ct. 752 (1947); reversing the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit. Thereupon, plaintiff was granted leave to file a memorandum of additional authorities in support of its petition for rehearing (R. 255-256). The plaintiff pointed out that the decisions relied upon by the Circuit Court of ⁴ Rule 15(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides, insofar as pertinent, as follows:

"(b) Amendments to Conform to the Evidence. When issues not raised by the pleadings are tried by express or implied consent of the parties, they shall be treated in all respects as if they had been raised in the pleadings. Such amendment of the pleadings as may be necessary to cause them to conform to the evidence and to raise these issues may be made upon motion of any party at any time, even after judgment; but failure so to amend does not affect the result of the trial of these issues."

Appeals as authority for its final disposition of the case had been reversed or overruled by the Cone case and that, under the circumstances here present, and in view of this Court's decision in the Cone case, the Circuit Court of Appeals was without power to reverse with instructions to the trial court to grant defendants' motion for a directed verdict and to enter judgment thereon, but possessed only the power of reversing and remanding for further proceedings.

On April 14, 1947, the Circuit Court of Appeals denied the petition for rehearing with a written opinion (R. 257). The Court conceded that under Rule 15(h) of the Federal Rules, where evidence is admitted which proves a case different from that alleged in the complaint, the pleadings may be considered as amended to conform to the evidence thus introduced. The Court further stated that the goods had been sold by description (R. 258). However, with respect to the second essential element of an implied warranty, the Court mistakenly stated that the evidence relied upon by plaintiff to show that the defendants were dealers had been kept out of the record on the objection of the plaintiff, and, hence, that the plaintiff could not claim the benefit of evidence which it had had excluded (R. 258). As to its authority finally to dispose of the case in the manner in which it did, the Circuit Court of Appeals took the position that Rule 50(b) of the Federal Rules was not applicable to a case in which the trial court directed a verdict and that "We do not think the Supreme Court's action in the Cone case should cause us to disturb our ruling . . . " (R. 260).

Plaintiff immediately sought leave to file its second petition for rehearing (R. 261), for the purpose of showing that the evidence which the Circuit Court of Appeals had refused to consider was in fact admitted into evidence and included in the record and, therefore, could serve as the basis for treating the pleadings as amended under Rule 15(b) of the Federal Rules. Defendants also filed a motion for a modification of so much of the language in the Court's opinion upon rehearing as stated that no part of the deposition of Todes (which contained the evidence relied upon by plaintiff to establish that the defendants were dealers) was ever read or considered as read in evidence (R. 262-263, 266). By their respective motions, both the plaintiff and the defendants asserted that the Court had misread the record. The Circuit Court of Appeals (by Judge Minton acting alone) denied both motions (R. 267).

In order to exhaust every possible remedy for the correction of the gross injustice resulting from the refusal of the Circuit Court of Appeals to consider testimony duly admitted into evidence, the plaintiff next filed its motion, pursuant to Rule 75(h) of the Federal Rules, to remit the record to the trial court for the purpose of having the trial judge certify whether the evidence in question had in fact been admitted into evidence. The Court (Judge Minton again acting alone) also denied this motion (R. 268-271).

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

I. Whether the Circuit Court of Appeals erred,

A. In refusing to consider testimony admitted into evidence and a part of the record on appeal, of

B. If the record was ambiguous as to the District Court's rulings, in refusing to remit the record to the District Judge, pursuant to Rule 75(h) of the Federal Rules, for his certificate as to whether the testimony relied on had been admitted into evidence and was a part of the record on appeal,
